Spaak Tells 3 Neighbors Of Greece To 'Decide'

Failure to Work With Investigators Is Condemnation, He Warns in Speech

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP).—Greece's three northern neighbors were offered the choice today of—

1. Cooperating with whatever commission the Assembly may send to the Greek border.

2. Standing condemned as aggressors.

The choice was offered them in a dramatic speech to the Assembly's Political Committee by Premier Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, president of last year's Assembly and probably the most influential individual among all the delegates here.

"What shocks me most in the attitude of the three governments," said Spaak, "is that they willfully refrained from cooperating with the subsidiary group."

Hits 'Mockery' of Authority

He was referring to the 11-nation committee which stayed in Greece to investigate border incidents after the main commission of the Security Council had finished its inquiry.

"It would be hard to mock more completely a decision of the Security Council," Spaak went on. And he quoted a saying of former Premier Edouard Herriot of France that "he who refuses arbitration is an aggressor."

Spaak reminded the Yugoslav delegate, sitting a few seats from him at the big oval table, that Marshal Tito himself had invited six prominent Americans to look at conditions along the Greek border. At least four, including former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and GOP Presidential Candidate Harold S. Stassen, declined. Byrnes said the United Nations should conduct the investigation.

"If he (Tito) can organize a commission of investigation composed of hand-picked personalities," Spaak demanded, "would it be more 'humiliating' to accept a commission of inquiry appointed by the whole of the United Nations."

'Slander,' Yugoslav Cries

Twice during Spaak's speech the Yugoslav delegate, Ales Bebler, interrupted him with "It's untrue!" And "That's a slander!"

"If you say this is slander," Spaak answered, "then the investigators sent by the Security Council are

Prosecutor Fails To Ask Death in Overell Slaying

Santa Ana, Calif., Oct. 3 (AP).—Denouncing the two defendants as a young couple "willing to kill to get what they wanted," Assistant Attorney General Eugene Williams closed the State's case in the Overell murder trial tonight without making a specific demand for the death penalty.

Concluding a dramatic, impassioned, three-hour address, Williams had Louise Overell, 18-year-old defendant, sobbing with her head in her hands. Her codefendant and boy friend, George Gollum, sat with chin in hand, face flushed.

"Mr. and Mrs. Overell had worked for a lifetime to build up a sizeable fortune," the chief prosecutor thundered. "They had done this by dint of hard work and sacrifice. They had come to the sunset of their lives; he was 62 and she 57. And they looked forward to the enjoyment of their later years . . .

"This young couple, these two defendants, they want all this. They want something for nothing. They want wealth without struggle. That is the damnation of modern youth. They were willing to kill to get what they wanted."

His denunciation came in the closing moments of the pair's 19-week trial on charges that they murdered the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Overell, aboard their yacht in Newport harbor last March 15.

Dodgers Even Series With 3-2 Storybook Finish in Last of 9th

Arnold Line Employes Win 15c Pay Rise

Arbitration Accord Called 'Inadequate' By Union Spokesman

Some 400 employes of the Arnold Bus Lines yesterday won an immediate wage boost of 10 cents an hour, with an additional 5 cents increase to be spread out through February 18.

The 10 cents hike is retroactive to last May 18, date of expiration of the old contract. An additional 3 cents will be added to pay checks November 18 and the remaining 2 cents goes to workers three months later.

The wage award, contained in an arbitration agreement, was held "grossly inadequate" by W. M. Homer, union arbitrator, who dissented to the decision. Employes had sought a 38 cents hourly wage increase. The old hourly wage rate was $1.07.

Neutral Arbitrator Concurs

Concurring in the agreement were Douglas Hatch for the company, and John E. Dwyer, neutral arbitrator.

Observers felt the wage decision would influence the outcome of the Capital Transit Co. arbitration, now in process. Capital Transit workers are asking a 35 per cent hike over the present $1.20 hourly scale. When the full Arnold increase become effective, their top scale will be $1.22.

There was activity on another front yesterday for the nearby Virginia transit line. The company's newly granted rate increase, announced Thursday by the Interstate Commerce Commission, will be protested by two Arlington groups.

The protestors are: the Arlington Bus Riders Association, headed by President S. J. Ortman; and the Arlington Public Utilities Commission. They plan to file petitions for reconsideration within 10 days, it was announced.

Five to Ten-Cent Boost

The ICC approved fare increases of 5 to 10 cents for transit service to Arlington and Fairfax Counties.

H. H. England, general manager of the Arnold Lines, estimated the rate would add approximately $22,000 monthly to company revenues. He claimed the newly signed contract would cost the firm about $10,000 monthly, however.

Other major features of the wage award included:

1. A change in the present progression system, boosting wages by 5 cents hourly after the first six months, but retaining the one-year top scale proviso.

2. A boost in "guaranteed" weekly rates for "extra" drivers.

Lavagetto Robs Bevens Of No-Hitter With 2 Out in Final Frame

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Whew! If these eyes are to be believed, the Dodgers, just before being embalmed and shrouded with a no-hit defeat by the Yankees, bestirred themselves with two out in the ninth and won the fourth game of this World Series.

With their only hit of the ball game, they won it, 3 to 2, when Floyd (Bill) Bevens, Yankee pitcher, was reaching for the first no-hit game of World Series history and found instead—Cookie Lavagetto.

There was Bevens out there in the ninth with eight and two thirds hitless innings to his credit, and putting a glorious finish to his drab record of the regular season.

And in the stands, 33,443 Brooklyn fans were imploring Pinch Hitter Lavagetto to end the torment of Bevens' work.

On base were two Dodgers, two of those who got the 10 bases on balls Bevens' issued. And the Yankees were holding a 2-1 lead.

And it was strike one on Lavagetto who swung futilely on the first pitch. And then, well . . .

A "Three" Grows in Brooklyn

Lavagetto walloped the next pitch he saw high over Right Fielder Tommy Henrich's head, halfway up the right field wall.

From second base, Pinch-Runner Al Gionfriddo scurried home with the tying run. All the way from first, Pinch Runner Eddie Miksis scrambled across the plate with the winning run.

For Lavagetto, it was a two-bagger.

For all Brooklyn, it was a long-shot dream come true.

That was the illogical finish of a happily crazy ball game for Brooklyn, that tied the series at 2-2, and restored the Dodgers to a menacing role in the series.

Brooklyn's starting pitcher didn't last out the first inning. The losing pitcher went the route and was charged with only one hit. Hugh Casey, the winning pitcher, threw only one pitch.

Also 10 Bases on Balls

In defeat, Bevens achieved a World Series record. He bettered by a full inning the 7 2-3 hitless performance of Yankee Red Ruffing against the Cardinals in 1942.

But he picked up another record of dubious distinction. With his 10 walks, he surpassed the mark of nine bases on balls issued by Jack Coombs of the Athletics against the Giants in 1910.

It was Bevens' wildness that eventually caught up with him. The first Brooklyn run, back in the fifth inning, stemmed from two walks in a row, a sacrifice and an

4 More Weeks in Maryland

Virginians Must Be Registered Today to Vote November 4

Virginia's registration deadline for the November 4 elections is today while Marylanders have until November 1 to declare their intentions of voting in 1948.

Arlington's 11 precinct registrars will be on duty from 9 a. m. to 5 today to register residents who have pai dtheir poll taxes.

Alexandria central registrar Fred Petitt's office will be open from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., and Fairfax Registrar W. Franklin Gooding will hold office hours from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

In Arlington, most precincts yesterday reported heavier than average last-minute registrations, despite the number of new voters who signed up for a special referendum held last May 27 and are still eligible to vote.

Mrs. Kathryn T. Dinges, Lyon Park registrar, said that great interest in Arlington's School and County Board elections is being shown. However, many voters in her precinct have been disqualified by failing to pay poll taxes at least six months prior to the election, she added.

John W. Jackson, chairman of the Arlington Electoral Board, said about 240 persons had been registered at the Arlington Court House during the last five days, with 70 signing up yesterday. He termed the registrations "pretty heavy."

Alexandria registrar Petitt handled about 30 voters yesterday, more than the usual number on a nonpresidential election year, while Fairfax registrar Gooding said his business was "not noticeably heavy." He said that about 20,000

Bar Sets Up Civil Rights Probe Units

Racial Relations, Loyalty Tests And Police Actions To Be Dealt With

Four subcommittees to probe possible violations of the civil rights of Washingtonians were set up yesterday by the District Bar Association.

Three of the groups will deal with any complaints concerning:

1. Police actions deleterious to public rights.

2. Loyalty tests for Government service.

3. Racial relations.

The fourth subcommittee is to investigate and report on the advisability of amending the D. C. Code so as to provide for immediate preliminary hearings in all arrests and for bail postponement in proper cases.

The groups are part of the Civil Rights Committee of the Bar Association.

Comprehensive, McNeil Says

George E. McNeil, head of the bar association, said that the scope of the subcommittees, as he understood it, was very comprehensive.

According to B. Tracy Ansell, chairman of the group to prove possible violations of civil rights by the police, two complaints mentioned to his group were the Bunch and Clegg cases which have been recently been publicized widely in the press.

Julius Willie Clegg, 26, of 1106 21st st. ne., an employe of The Washington Post, charged that he was arrested the morning of August 2, held by police for 34 hours without a charge and beaten by two detectives. The grand jury heard evidence in the case but returned no indictments.

Ruled Accidental

John F. Bunch, 64, of 18 3d st. ne., died of unexplained injuries in Gallinger Hospital August 4. His family charged that he had suffered the fatal injuries after his arrest by police on a drunk charge. A coromer's jury returned a ruling of accidental death.

Other members of Ansell's committee are John Breckinridge, Robert M. Gray and Milton S. Kronheim, jr.

The subcommittee on arrests and arraignments has Edward Burling, jr., chairman, Arthur D. Condon, Fred P. Myers and Nathan L. Silberberg.

The loyalty test subcommittee includes Hilary W. Costello, chairman, Jackson Brodsky and Claude A. Thompson.

Treasurer of Ga. Named to Raise Democratic Fund

George Hamilton, State treasurer of Georgia, was named finance director of the Democratic National Committee yesterday and given the job of filling the party's 1948 campaign chest.

Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, who made the appointment with the approval of his successor-designate, Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), said Hamilton would undertake an immediate survey of the party's finances and lay the results before the National Committee meeting here October 29.

Albany Dock Union Obeys Strike Writ

Longshoremen End 10-Day Walkout on Court Order; Grain For Europe Loaded

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP).—Striking AFL Longshoremen today obeyed a Federal Court order, the first of its kind issued under the Taft-Hartley Act, and returned to work after tying up the Port of Albany for 10 days.

The National Labor Relations Board requested the order, issued by Federal District Judge Stephen Brennan in New York City late yesterday. The Government agency alleged the International Longshoremen's Association and its affiliates were violating sections of the Taft-Hartley Law prohibiting secondary boycohts.

The temporary restraining order, effective for five days, ordered the union to end the strike and directed it to appear in Syracuse at 11 a. m. Tuesday to show cause why an injunction should not be issued.

Grain Ship Loaded

About 37 men rfeported for work at 1 p. m. to unload a 100,000-bushel grain barge and to fill a European-bound ship with 300,000 bushels of grain. A spokesman for D. J. Roach, Inc., one of two companies supplying longshoremen at the port, said additional workers would be called to work when other ships and barges dock.

Four ships, two to pick up grain for transport to Europe, were reported en route from New York City to Albany.

In New York City last night, Joseph T. Ryan, ILA president, said the union had at no time sanctioned any strike in Albany.

"We shall certainly obey every restraining order," he said. Adding: "We don't intend to disobey any provision of the Taft-Hartley Law."

Teamsters Involved

C. Nick Testa, business agent for Local 1294 of the ILA, said this morning that Ryan had instructed his union and Local 1643 to return to work.

The strike was an outgrowth of a labor dispute that began last August when Trailerships, Inc., a New York City firm, planne dto ship cargo-laden trailers on two converted Navy landing craft between New York City and Albany.

Locals of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, contending their driver-members should be paid while the vessels made the trips, refused to load the trailers on the ships. The locals said drivers should accompany shipped vehicles, claiming their contracts provided that wages be paid on the distance to the city to which a truck was destined.

The strike of men manning the ships, members of United Marine Division, Local 333, of the ILA, followed. The ILA declared it intended to attempt to force the Albany city administration to settle the dispute between the teamsters and trailerships.

Attorney Hits at Action

The NLRB said it acted on complaints of seven shipping companies, whose cargoes were tied up as a result of the strike. None of the firms use trailerships.

Louis Waldman, attorney for the ILA, called the action "government by injunction with a vengeance."

"Here we have a statute which permits an ex parte injunction and makes it returnable 300 miles out of the city in which it is issued," Waldman said. "This is legislation which has taken us back 15 to 18 years."

The attorney said the union may "make a test of the act."

In Albany, Ira Campbell, attorney for Trailerships, said it planned to file a $500,000 damage suit against the Teamsters under the same provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act on which the NLRB acted against the Longshoremen.

$200 Held Pending Decision

Benefits Due Police Widow May Be Used to Cover Shortage

A $208 shortage in police association funds charged to Pvt. Oscar L. Fisher before his suicide may be paid with $200 benefits due his widow, it was indicated yesterday.

Private Fisher, Fourth Precinct Station clerk who took up collections for three police associations and handled collateral posted at the precinct and accepted welfare funds, shot himself to death September 18.

An examination of Fisher's desk and accounts yesterday failed to produce funds to cover the $750 or more in which the accounts were in arrears. A $145 shortage in welfare funds, discovered prior to his death, was made up with collections from other policemen in the precinct.

Welfare funds are collected for the Juvenile Court.

Capt. John Fondahl, head of the Policemen's Association, said yesterday the $200 benefit to Fisher's widow is being withheld until the association meets October 21 to determine what action should be taken.

Fondahl and officials of the other two groups—the Metropolitan Police Retiring Association and Metropolitan Police Relief Association—said they plan to tighten regulations governing collections.

The Relief Association held its regular quarterly meeting Thursday night. Capt. Clarence Lutz said he expects association accounts to show from $150 to $200 in arrears in Fisher's accounts. He said, however, that Fisher was collecting for Pvt. A. E. Corley and held no status with the association. In event of a shortage, Corley would be held responsible, Lutz said.

Capt. John J. Agnew, head of the Retiring Association, said a meeting will be held "soon" to discuss his group's accounts which had been handled by Fisher.

No Undernourished People Seen, Taber Says in Europe

Berlin, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said today that he had not seen any underfed people during his brief tour of Europe and Turkey and that he did not favor a special congressional session to implement the Marshall Plan.

Taber said he had not seen any underfed people in Rome, Trieste, Vienna, Istanbul, Ankara and Berlin and therefore did not consider the situation as urgent as has been presented.

The people of Europe were not taking their own situation seriously enough, he said, and were not working hard enough—or at least as hard as the people of the United States.

(Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) took a different view, according to the Associated Press, saying:

("I have been in Germany four weeks and I think there is a definite undernourishment all over the country. Although I haven't seen any edema, I have seen a man unable to lift a tire off a truck wheel because he didn't have the strength. I think America is going to have to help to raise the calorie level for all workers.")

Taber said the United States should help rehabilitate Europe but drew the line at helping dictatorship countries. He said that in his opinion the people of Europe would not accept communism.

Asked whether he included Socialist countries under the ban, Taber parried with "there is socialism and socialism."

REP. JOHN TABER

"I am not aware that Britain has a dictatorship government," Taber said when questioned whether he would oppose aid to Britain because it had a Socialist government.

He said he would not favor extending benefits of the Marshall Plan to France if the French people were to fall under a dictatorship.

One American In Soviet to Six Russians Here

Moscow Ban Spurs 'Hill' Demands for An Exact Balance

There are six times as many Soviet citizens who have been legally admitted to the United States as there are American citizens in Russia, according to the most recent official U. S. records released yesterday.

The figures, based on State Department records through last May, were 810 Russians in the United States, as against 122 Americans in Russia.

Congressional demands that this country adopt a strict reciprocity policy and keep the figures exactly equal have been mounting ever since the Soviet government refused to admit Assistant Secretary of State John E. Peurifoy and 11 members of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

It was widely believed on Capitol Hill that Congress will turn its attention to this problem soon after it convenes again.

Action might well mean that the visas of many Soviet officials now in the United States would be canceled.

Estimates Higher Now

The official figures of 810 as of last May differ very materially from the estimates made by various members of Congress of 1500 Soviet citizens now in the United States.

The difference may be accounted for by the fact that Congressional figures have been based on the number of visas granted by this government up to the present time, while the State Department figures are based on the number of persons admitted up to last May.

Meanwhile, official Soviet sources are charging that "reactionary circles" in the United States are seizing upon the inci-

Democracy Extolled by Mrs. Roosevelt

Directs Comparison To Totalitarianism At Soviet Alternate

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 3 (INS).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt delivered a ringing defense of democracy as compared to totalitarianism tonight in opposing a Rusian proposal in the U. N. Social Humanitarian and Cultural Committee.

Mrs. Roosevelt's action was almost in the nature of a "warm-up" for her scheduled bout with Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky when she answers his charges of American warmongering.

In the other corner this evening was not Vishinsky, but S. P. Demtchenko, a Soviet alternate representative.

Price of Freedom

Mrs. Roosevelt, in debating a Russian proposal for the agenda of the coming world press conference in Geneva, March, 1948, fairly shouted:

"We claim the right of criticism and disagreement. It is the price one pays for freedom and for democracy that the government often has to wait for the enlightenment of the people.

"Totalitarianism may move faster for good or ill, but we believe democracy and a free people stand on a firmer foundation."

She reffered to "a controlled press system under which various forms of propaganda 'tasks' can be assigned to the press."

"In a country in which all newspapers and all media of information are under government control these media can be directed to organize in order to put before the people—what that government considers—the priciples of democracy," she said.

"We know that a free press will inevitably interpret certain principles of democracy in different ways—as will the people them-

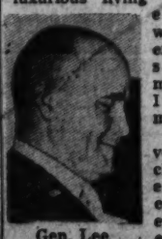
Army Finds Some 'Errors'

Lee Cleared of Mistreating Men, Living Luxuriously

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday cleared Lieut Gen. John C. H. Lee of mistreatment of enlisted men and "luxurious living" but acknowledged there were "certain errors of omission or commission" in his Italian command.



Gen. Lee

An official investigation concluded that the errors discovered "were the exception rather than the rule" and involved no "wrong intent" on Lee's part. After issuing orders to correct the errors noted, the Army marked the case "closed."

Robert C. Ruark, Scripps-Howard columnist, whose charges brought about the investigation, said he would answer the Army Inspector General's report after studying it. His newspapers labeled the report a "whitewash."

Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, Army Inspector General, submitted a 12,000-word report to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Army Chief of Staff, on his probe of the charges. In it, he declared that Ruark "took a few facts, half-facts, rumors and un'.uths" and drew a "wholly erroneous picture" of conditions in Italy.

Little Wheat Involved

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Nation was being treated last night to an argument between two segments of the whisky-making industry over which could "save" the most grain for President Truman's foreign relief program.

During the afternoon the Distilled Spirits Institute, representing about 60 per cent of the industry agreed to cut down its grain use one-half beginning at once.

Meeting with Charles Luckman, chairman of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee, and Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, they agreed:

1. To cut out all use of wheat in the manufacture of liquor.

2. Reduce the use of all other grains by one half.

3. Limit the use of othar grains to othe rthat the top grades used for human food.

4. To call a meeting of the rest of the industry in Washington next Wednesday to attempt to sell the above program to all.

Independents Oppose Plan

Shortly thereafter representatives of three independent distillers, the Publicker Industries, Inc., Continental Distilling Corp. and Kinsey Distilling Corp., all of Philadelphia, attacked the program as being "insufficient."

Instead, they urged the industry to join immediately "in discontinuing all use of grain of any kind in the manufacture of distilled spirits whenever the industry is requested by the Government to do so."

The grain used by distillers amounts to about five million bushels a month, Luckman declared last night. If all joined in the voluntary rationing, as suggested by the institute, the saving would be at the rate of 30 million bushels a year—a long step towards the goal of 100 million that President Truman set for his food group.

Of course, if the proposal by the independents was accepted, the task of Luckman's organization would be more than half completed.

Luckman Avoids Comment

Last night's group of protestants against the institute's program represented about 20 per cent of the liquor industry. The remaining 20 per cent—also not belonging to the institute—are the Schenley Group, headed by Max Rosensteel of New York City. Rosensteel could not be reached for comment on the row within his industry last night.

Luckman dodged any comment on the action. He had not received the copy of the telegram from the Publicker-Continental-Kinsey group, one of his public relations experts advised.

However, one member of his group raised the question as to what was meant in the Publicker telegram offering to cut out the use of grain "when requested by the Government to do so."

The question was raised as to whether those terms might mean the 100 per cent surrender of grain only after official Government action—an authority the Citizens Food Committee does not possess.

Institute's Offer Belittled

The protesting group last night pooh-poohed the offer of the institute. They declared that the proposal to cut out use of wheat was meaningless, as little wheat is used by any American distiller at this time, and little had been used since before the war.

They expressed astonishment that they were not invited by Luckman and Anderson to yesterday's conference, in view of the fact that they represent a 20 per cent segment of the industry.

They further pointed out that

Food Saving Plans Held Inadequate

President's Economic Advisers Favor Commodity Controls, Speculation Curbs

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The President's Council of Economic Advisers warned the Cabinet yesterday that a voluntary food conservation program was insufficient either:

1. To make available sufficient food to Europe, or
2. To solve the problem of domestic runaway inflation of prices.

The council recommended, therefore, reimposition of wartime commodity controls—but not including consumer price control or consumer rationing—and enactment of legislation to prevent speculation in the commodity markets.

Third Quarter Report

The warning and recommendations came, it was learned from informed sources, in the council's third quarter report.

Two members of the three-man body, Edwin G. Nourse and Leon H. Keyserling, discussed the report with the President and his Cabinet yesterday. The document will probably not be made public.

The council is said to feel that the voluntary conservation program of the Administration should be pushed, as useful both psychologically and positively in saving some food.

But, they believe that speculation, commodity withholding and price gouging, coupled with the urgent foreign food need are such that more than voluntary action is necessary.

Another recommendation was that the Administration quickly initiate a concrete program, containing legislative proposals, analysis of the administrative problems, legal considerations and other aspects incident to restoration of controls and adequate foreign aid.

The council, it was indicated, did not dismiss outright the question of restoring consumer rationing. This step may become necessary in the future and may have to be considered later, they said.

The report, it was reported reliably, advanced an argument on these lines:

The domestic price level has soared beyond any semblance of reason. The situation, with respect to a bust following the present boom, is very dangerous.

But there has been a gross exaggeration of the effect on inflation of the export program, in the past and as contemplated in the Marshall Plan for the future.

Plan's Effects Outlined

The facts are that the Marshall Plan, even if carried out in full, would not increase the American export surplus beyond its recent level. It would merely keep it from dropping off as sharply as would otherwise occur.

That export surplus had been running up to the middle of this year at an annual rate of about 12 billion dollars. It fell off sharply during the third quarter, and unless foreign aid is continued, will drop to a yearly rate of about seven billion dollars by the end of 1947.

The contemplated foreign aid program would pin the rate to about nine or ten billion dollars. It would not increase the rate, as certain people have misconceived it, to 16 or 18 billion dollars.

Even the peak volume of exports, occurring during the second quarter, did not seriously affect the price level. For during that period prices leveled off. During the third quarter, when exports decreased, prices actually rose in serious degree.

Other Factors Stressed

The rate of the export surplus, even at the peak, was no greater than normal during any prewar period of American prosperity.

Accordingly, it must be that there are other, more important, factors affecting prices.

These, the report suggests, are speculation, profitering and generally bad policies in a boom period of overreaching and charging all the market will bear.

This points to the fact that voluntary conservation measures will be insufficient. The council argues that the supply of food and other living cost items is large enough; it is only that present high prices are doing a job of rationing, but a bad job.

Low-Income Group Hit

People with low incomes are already being rationed, but unjustly and uneconomically. Too much food is being turned away from low income groups. To these groups, voluntary rationing cannot carry much of an appeal.

Since the volume of supplies is adequate, if only it were properly distributed, the situation is not the same as during the war years, when half of the Nation's produce was diverted from the civilian consumer. And therefore, no such drastic control measures as price fixing and consumer rationing seem necessary at the moment.

Instead, the council proposed laws to prevent speculation on the commodity exchanges, just as the SEC inhibits grossly harmful speculation on the stock exchange.

Allocation Powers Favored

The report also proposed restoration of wartime powers giving the Government the ability to allocate commodities at the source.

These powers could be used to restrict the amount of grain going to feed cattle and to make alcohol; to penalize the feeding of cattle to excess weights; to control the millers' wheat extraction ratios and to effect other regulations at the producer level, not at the level of the ultimate consumer.

These measures all would require new legislative authority from Congress. But the council also suggested that certain powers, already available, were not being brought into use with enough vigor.

A close reading of the report was said to intimate that the Department of Agriculture, with the size and scope of its buying program, could accomplish more toward aiding foreign shipments.

Arm Americas Or Aid Europe, Lucas Says

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 3 (U.P.).—United States Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) said today that unless Congress grants emergency aid to western Europe by December 1 the United States must be prepared to spend 100 billion dollars for hemispheric defense in the next four years.

Lucas, in an interview, said Europe now is a "pushover for communism."

"And if the Communists ever got a foothold in this hemisphere we would be in real danger," he said.

The Senate Democratic whip said that if Congress lets Europe "sink or swim" without American help, the United States must be ready to spend 25 billion dollars a year for the next four years to defend the shores of North and South America.

"There is no question but that communism is a world movement," he said.

Lucas said that if Senate committee hearings on European relief are not concluded before December 1, calling Congress back to consider a relief program "would be an empty gesture." He said whether a special session of Congress will be called will depend "entirely on the speed with which these committees end their hearings."

'Imperative' to Feed Europe, Keenan Says

Chicago, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who served until recently as a military government adviser in Germany, said today he believed it was "absolutely imperative" to feed Europe's hungry.

Keenan appeared as a witness before the midcontinent subcommittee of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report.

He said he spent 21 months abroad as labor adviser to United States Army officals in Europe. He called upon the country to consider the political implications of hunger in Europe and said that so long as it endures the United States will find it difficult to persuade others of the advantages of democracy.

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP).—James R. Walsh, who maintains that his study of the female form in motion is purely academic, said today that women "wobble" when they walk.

He blamed it on their high heels.

His acute observation came in the course of his "purely legal" study to determine why 90 per cent of the damage claims against the city result from falls by women.

An attorney in the corporation counsel's office, Walsh said he wasn't surprised at women's lack of equilibrium.

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

Hunting for ducks in the heart of the city is a profitable sport these days, even for the most sit-by-the-fire Washingtonian.

The ducks—plump products of the flourishing Long Island duckling industry—can be found in some Washington stores at prices ranging around 33 to 37 cents a pound.

A little determined tracking may be necessary to locate them. Once bagged, however, they make a thrifty dish for company dinner on a cool evening, plus soup for the family next day.

Two appetizing accompaniments for roast duck—sweet potatoes and sauerkraut—also rate the "good buy" tag right now. Three pounds of sweets can be bought for 19 to 25 cents. Sauerkraut is selling around 10 to 15 cents for a No. 2½ can, and will also be available in bulk when the weather gets colder.

Ingredients for a salad to serve as a crisp contrast to savory duck are plentiful now. Lettuce prices have dropped sharply in the past few weeks, and are now about 10 to 12 cents a head. Cabbage is quoted at 2 to 5 cents a head by various stores, and celery at around 15 cents a bunch.

Fresh pumpkin for a pie to top off this hearty meal is now available on the market. Or canned pumpkin can be bought for around 25 cents for a No. 2 can, enough to make a large pie.

Plant at Dnieper Dam Turning Out Steel

Moscow, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Part of the Zaporozhe steel works at the Dnieper dam has resumed operations and has already delivered 9000 tons of sheet steel to the Stalin automobile factory, it was announced today.

Zaporozhe was the largest steel works in the Soviet Union before the Dnieper dam was destroyed by the Germans.

In addition to the steel produced, the plant turned out 90,000 tons of cast iron and 40,000 tons of slabs, the announcement said.

the offer to stop grain purchases by their competitors was empty, as, they asserted, American distilleries have been buying heavily of grain in recent months, and have supplies sufficient to maintain operations for some time.

Liquor Supply Plentiful

The supply of liquor on hand now, the independents asserted, is plentiful for at least a year without any increase in prices.

The official statement from the protesting group was unusual in that it referred to the "huge quantities of grain now being used for beverage production," a phrase of the nature generally employed by dry opponents of liquor in all its forms.

The entire statement of the independtns follows:

In view of the international food crisis and the huge quantities of grain now being used for beverage production, our companies, representing a large part of the country's distilled spirits industry, stand ready to join immediately in discontinuing all use of grain of any kind in the manufacture of distilled spirits whenever the industry is requested by the Government so to do, for such period of time as may be appropriate to save the necessary grain.

"Kinsey Distilling Corp."

Continental and Kinsey are both subsidiaries of the Publicker Industries. When Publicker interests heard of yesterday's meeting, they sent a group headed by Lawrence E. Brown to take part. However, no invitation was forthcoming from the Citizens Committee.

Brown announced that they will attend the Wednesday meeting "if we are invited."

Heading the delegation from the Distilled Spirits Institute was Joseph A. Engelhart of Louisville, Ky., president. After the meeting, Engelhart's group left town and was on trains en route home when the Publicker blast was unloosed.

At the institute offices, it was predicted that the Schenley group would "go along" with the institute at Wednesday's meeting.

The Harriman Foreign Aid Committee, President Truman's advisory body on American resources available for European aid under the Marshall Plan, yesterday called for higher margins in grain dealings.

The group thus joined Agriculture Secretary Anderson, who has been fighting for weeks to increase margin requirements on domestic grain exchanges to one third the amounts involved.

In explaining the action, Commerce Secretary Harriman indicated that his committee fears a continuing bull market in grains and other commodities will react unfavorably on the administration's foreign aid program.

First, it is felt a further increase in prices will raise the cost far above the 21 billion dollars estimated at the 16-nation Paris conference.

Second, the committee fears higher prices will upset all present estimates for stop-gap or temporary relief for famine-threatened nations abroad.

Harriman vigorously denied widespread reports that the State and Commerce Departments had found fault with the Government grain-buying program as administered by Anderson. Instead, he said, it was in full accord with Anderson's policies.

Although he insisted he did not disagree with Anderson's program for grain buying, he added that his committee stands fast for upping shipments abroad 100 million bushels above the figure Anderson set as the limit obtainable.

"The committee," Harriman said, "would not urge increasing margins if it were not convinced that speculation was raising prices."

Harriman also went on record as favoring extension of export controls beyond next February—an indication that his committee will so recommend to Congress.

Earlier Anderson urged more efficient livestock feeding practices as a means for conserving much of the Nation's grain supply. He called upon farmers to cut down on feeding grain to animals, in order that more supplies for starving Europeans may be saved.

One pound less for each hog, he said, would save seven million bushels of grain. Much of the grain fed to cattle goes into fat that is largely wasted.

"Feeders, at this time, should not aim at top grades—the famous corn-fed beef," he said. He urged more feeding of hay both to beef and dairy herds.

Warrants Sought For Strike Leaders

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP).—Warrants charging rioting were asked today by Prosecutor James N. McNally against leaders of the six-weeks strike of CIO garage mechanics.

The prosecutor moved against the strikers as a new outbreak of violence occurred in suburban Ferndale where three pickets were jailed after a plate glass window was smashed during a mass demonstration.

Raye Dooe, business agent of striking local 415, CIO United Auto Workers, and 18 other members of local 415 and Ford Local 600, UAW-CIO, were named in the complaints drawn up by the prosecutor.

His action followed a lengthy investigation into disorders September 18 at Floyd Rice Motor Sales in Detroit.

Five of the men named, including Dooe, are members of local 415 which went on strike August 19 in a demand for a new master contract with an estimated 77 dealers in the Detroit area.

The others were members of "flying squadrons" of the Ford local who picketed in support of the garage mechanics. Lee Romano, head of the Ford "flying squadrons," was among the latter.

Discussion Scheduled In Airline Strike

New York, Oct. 3 (INS).—The American Overseas Airlines today accepted a National Mediation Board invitation to send a representative to Washington Monday to present the company's version of the pilots' strike which has grounded all AOA planes.

An airlines spokesman said the invitation was accepted with the understanding that its representative would not be required to discuss the strike with the pilots' union until the strikers had returned to work.

[The United Press said David L. Behncke, president of the Airline Pilots Association (AFL), had accepted an invitation to meet Monday with the National Mediation Board to discuss the strike.]

The pilots' strike, in its fourth day, was ordered by the union after negotiations with company officials broke down.

Matsonia Tied Up As Dock Dispute Grows

Los Angeles, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Shutdown of Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors in southern California today spread to San Francisco, where the giant liner Matsonia was tied up by CIO walking bosses.

At the same time arbitration of the dispute between the Waterfront Employers Association and ship and dock foremen over their unionization was brought a step nearer today. Secretary of Labor Lewis Schwellenbach announced appointment of Arthur C. Miller as chairman of the Coast Labor Relations Committee.

The appointment was acceptable to the CIO International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union which is seeking to bargain for the walking bosses. Miller also won the approval of the Employers Association and of the Marine Trades Association.

The Matson liner had been due to arrive here Wednesday, a few hours after the port was ordered shut down by the waterfront employers, but was diverted to San Francisco. Passengers scheduled to disembark here were sent south by train.

Food Saving Plans Held Inadequate

President's Economic Advisers Favor Commodity Controls, Speculation Curbs

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The President's Council of Economic Advisers warned the Cabinet yesterday that a voluntary food conservation program was insufficient either:

1. To make available sufficient food to Europe, or
2. To solve the problem of domestic runaway inflation of prices.

The council recommended, therefore, reimposition of wartime commodity controls—but not including consumer price control or consumer rationing—and enactment of legislation to prevent speculation in the commodity markets.

Third Quarter Report

The warning and recommendations came, it was learned from informed sources, in the council's third quarter report.

Two members of the three-man body, Edwin G. Nourse and Leon H. Keyserling, discussed the report with the President and his Cabinet yesterday. The document will probably not be made public.

The council is said to feel that the voluntary conservation program of the Administration should be pushed, as useful both psychologically and positively in saving some food.

But, they believe that speculation, commodity withholding and price gouging, coupled with the urgent foreign food need are such that more than voluntary action is necessary.

Another recommendation was that the Administration quickly initiate a concrete program, containing legislative proposals, analysis of the administrative problems, legal considerations and other aspects incident to restoration of controls and adequate foreign aid.

The council, it was indicated, did not dismiss outright the question of restoring consumer rationing. This step may become necessary in the future and may have to be considered later, they said.

The report, it was reported reliably, advanced an argument on these lines:

The domestic price level has soared beyond any semblance of reason. The situation, with respect to a bust following the present boom, is very dangerous.

But there has been a gross exaggeration of the effect on inflation of the export program, in the past and as contemplated in the Marshall Plan for the future.

Plan's Effects Outlined

The facts are that the Marshall Plan, even if carried out in full, would not increase the American export surplus beyond its recent level. It would merely keep it from dropping off as sharply as would otherwise occur.

That export surplus had been running up to the middle of this year at an annual rate of about 12 billion dollars. It fell off sharply during the third quarter, and unless foreign aid is continued, will drop to a yearly rate of about seven billion dollars by the end of 1947.

The contemplated foreign aid program would pin the rate to about nine or ten billion dollars. It would not increase the rate, as certain people have misconceived it, to 16 or 18 billion dollars.

Even the peak volume of exports, occurring during the second quarter, did not seriously affect the price level. For during that period prices leveled off. During the third quarter, when exports decreased, prices actually rose in serious degree.

Other Factors Stressed

The rate of the export surplus, even at the peak, was no greater than normal during any prewar period of American prosperity.

Accordingly, it must be that there are other, more important, factors affecting prices.

These, the report suggests, are speculation, profitering and generally bad policies in a boom period of overreaching and charging all the market will bear.

This points to the fact that voluntary conservation measures will be insufficient. The council argues that the supply of food and other living cost items is large enough; it is only that present high prices are doing a job of rationing, but a bad job.

Low-Income Group Hit

People with low incomes are already being rationed, but unjustly and uneconomically. Too much food is being turned away from low income groups. To these groups, voluntary rationing cannot carry much of an appeal.

Since the volume of supplies is adequate, if only it were properly distributed, the situation is not the same as during the war years, when half of the Nation's produce was diverted from the civilian consumer. And therefore, no such drastic control measures as price fixing and consumer rationing seem necessary at the moment.

Instead, the council proposed laws to prevent speculation on the commodity exchanges, just as the SEC inhibits grossly harmful speculation on the stock exchange.

Allocation Powers Favored

The report also proposed restoration of wartime powers giving the Government the ability to allocate commodities at the source.

These powers could be used to restrict the amount of grain going to feed cattle and to make alcohol; to penalize the feeding of cattle to excess weights; to control the millers' wheat extraction ratios and to effect other regulations at the producer level, not at the level of the ultimate consumer.

These measures all would require new legislative authority from Congress. But the council also suggested that certain powers, already available, were not being brought into use with enough vigor.

A close reading of the report was said to intimate that the Department of Agriculture, with the size and scope of its buying program, could accomplish more toward aiding foreign shipments.

Cheer Leader Seriously Injured

HOPE HENDERSON, 16, of 745 Thayer st., Silver Spring, Md., Montgomery Blair High School cheer leader, is paralyzed from the waist as a result of a spinal injury received Thursday when she practiced stunts for yesterday's football game between her school and Georgetown Prep. Blair's students, as well as the team, which lost the game 32-6, were downcast over the popular student's accident. Doctor's hold some hope that she will walk again

1,500,000 Take Part In Protest; British Re-Ship Refugees

Jerusalem, Oct. 3 (AP).—An estimated 1,500,000 Arabs, protesting the proposal to partition Palestine, engaged in a bloodless general strike today under the eyes of police armed with automatic weapons.

While the walkout which paralyzed Arab sections of the Holy Land was in progress, the British began the trans-shipment to Cyprus of 3500 irregular Jewish immigrants from two refugee ships intercepted by British naval vessels yesterday and brought to Haifa. This potentially explosive situation also passed without violence.

As the Arabs stayed away from their jobs and flocked by the hundreds of thousands to mosques for prayers and to hear political addresses, similar protests against partition were held elsewhere in the Arab world.

Evidence of Solidarity

The Arabs were caled upon to strike as an evidence of solidarity against Zionism. They heeded the advice of their leaders to avoid dangerous demonstrations.

Except at the start and finish of speeches in the mosques the streets were deserted most of the day in the all-Arab city of Jaffa. Police had expected strife in the troublesome border area between Jaffa and the Jewish city of Tel Aviv. There and elsewhere in the Holy Land the police carried tommy guns instead of the usual rifles.

At Haifa the Arabs maintained a complete strike but made no effort to demonstrate even near the docks where the Jewish refugees were being trans-shipped.

The only incident occurred in Haifa when a group of Arabs, most of them teen-agers, stoned a car carrying British and Jewish newsmen. There were no casualties and the police dispersed the crowd.

Sees Inside Liberation

(In Cairo, Mahmoud Labib Bey, commander of the Palestine Arab youth organization, declared that "Palestine will not be liberated from inside but from without." He declared that wealthy Egyptians should be compelled to buy land in Palestine to prevent it falling into Jewish hands.

(Arab shops closed in Lebanon cities in sympathy with the walkout of Palestine Arabs.)

With the refugee ships Paducah, renamed the Redemption, and the Northlands, renamed the Jewish State, both docked at Haifa the British followed the usual deportation routine in moving the Jews to Cyprus detention camps.

Approxmiately 800 of the 1500 irregular Jewish immigrants on the Paducah were sent to the island aboard two transfer ships. Officials said the same shuttle ships would take the rest of the passengers of the Paducah and the 2000 aboard the Northlands to Cyprus. The Northlands is a former United States coastal vessel of about 750 tons.

Dutch Queen to Take Rest, Let Princess Juliana Rule

PRINCESS JULIANA — QUEEN WILHELMINA

For reasons of health, Queen Wilhelmina will step down from the throne and turn rule of the Netherlands over to her daughter

Amsterdam, Oct. 3 (AP).—Wilhelmina, whose golden jubilee as Holland's Queen is less than a year away, soon will relinquish temporarily her royal power to Princess Juliana for reasons of health, the Netherlands government announced today.

The 67-year-old Queen, who has been reported suffering from fatigue, plans to stay at her summer palace, Het Loo, for a rest, her secretariat said.

A communique, issued after Premier L. J. M. Beel told newsmen of the Queen's decision, said Wilhelmina had requested it be made clear that there was no reason for alarm over her condition.

Legislation appointing Princess Juliana as regent will be introduced soon at a joint session of the two chambers of the Dutch Parliament, it was announced.

Juliana's regency is not an automatic one as is constitutionally the case when a monarch "has become unable to rule." Her oath will say that she is to perform the royal duties "as long as the execution of the royal power has been laid down."

The 36-year-old princess is married to Prince Bernhard. They have four daughters.

Wilhelmina was born August 31, 1880, daughter of the late King Wilhelm III, and succeeded to the throne on the death of her father, November 23, 1890. However, she did not come of age until 1898 and was crowned September 6 of that year. She is the widow of Prince Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who died in 1934.

Conservatives Raise British Election Fund

Brighton, England, Oct. 3 (AP).—Britain's Conservatives launched a drive today for one million pounds (four million dollars) election campaign fund, and party spokesmen said they believed the fate of the Labor government would be staked on the outcome of a general election within a few months.

Party Chairman Lord Woolton called on Conservatives, gathered here in their annual conference, to be ready to fight an election campaign "at any moment," and said the fund would be used "to prepare for the great fight for liberty which is ahead."

Labor spokesmen dismissed the wave of optimism as "Tory propaganda" and "wishful thinking."

The conference delegates unanimously affirmed their stand for preferential empire tariffs.

Oliver Stanley, former Colonial Secretary, said the American campaign for reduction and eventual elimination of preferential trade within the empire was "based on wholly wrong premises."

L. S. Amery, a former cabinet officer, said empire preference was essential to permit Britain to compete against "the lower standards of other countries and the enormous surplus of American production."

Churchill drew tumultuous cheers from delegates and townspeople today when he drove to the convention hall.

In a brief address he told the delegates "I believe firmly that we shall succeed after a period of heart-searching and strenuous effort in bringing our country back again to a fair enjoyment of the great inheritance it had won for itself and hoped it had won for all the nations of the world."

Germans Fear Unrest Over Dismantlings

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 3 (AP).—German political leaders predicted today that the publication of a new American-British list of plants to be dismantled for reparations would cause new unrest and possibly governmental crises in the British occupation zone.

Tension has developed in the industrial Ruhr following German reports that 900 to 1800 factories were on the list for removal, including Germany's entire ballbearing industry, virtually all the so-called "peaceful" section of the great Krupp works and three plants which manufacture coal-mining equipment.

List Expected Next Week

The list, expected to be published next week, was compiled after American and British officials decided last August to raise the industrial level for western Germany to approximately the 1936 standard.

The German politicians made their predictions in interviews. Declaring he feared a cabinet crisis, Dr. Karl Arnold, minister-president of the North Rhine Westphalia, said:

"We anticipate the new list will cause growing unrest among the population. This unrest may make it impossible for officials of the German administration to carry on."

Emergency Meeting Probable

An emergency session of the Lower Saxony Parliament probably will be held as soon as the list is published, Deputy Minister President Alfred Kubel said.

Kubel said he recently told touring American Senators and British members of Parliament that the Germans never would approve "a plan which has been drafted without the advice of German experts being asked."

After German trade union leaders at Hamburg declared Saturday that orders had been issued throughout the British zone for strikes as a form of resistance to the American-British plans to dismantle large numbers of German factories, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, declared: "If German unions refuse to obey orders they can hardly expect us to keep shipping in food to feed them."

Edda Engagement Denied

Naples, Italy, Oct. 3 (AP).—A member of the family of Piero Capuano, wealthy Neapolitan jeweler, denied publicly today that he was engaged to marry Edda Mussolini Ciano, daughter of the late Benito Mussolini and widow of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Fascist foreign minister.

Priest Wounded by Yugoslavs Given Term, Already Served

Belgrade, Oct. 3 (AP).—Msgr. Jakob Ukmar, the Vatican prelate who was wounded at Lanische August 24 when another priest was killed by a crowd at a confirmation ceremony, has been sentenced to one month at forced labor by the Yugoslav court at Pisino in Venezia Guilia, Tanjug news agency announced today.

The Yugoslav news agency said the sentence was considered already served inasmuch as the prelate had been arrested more than a month ago, and that he would be set free.

It added that the Rev. Father Stephano Cek, the Paris priest, was sentenced to six years at forced labor for "instigating bloodshed" in the incident, and that 12 other defendents were sentenced to 3 to 10 months imprisonment for hindering worshipers from entering the church and for breaking into the parish priest's residence.

The Rev. Father Milo Bulesich was slain in the incident. Yugoslav officials said the crowd was angered by the priest's ruling that "enemies of the church" would be barred from acting as godfathers at the confirmation.

(Ansa, Italian news agency, said Msgr. Ukmar would remain at Fiume Hospital temporarily because he was not sufficiently recovered to travel.

(Ansa said Slavko Sankovic, accused of killing Father Bulesich, and Elvio Medizza, charged with injuring Msgr. Ukmar, were among the defendents who received sentences of five months.)

Czechs Ask Who'll Enforce Palestine Rule

By John G. Rogers

Lake Success, Long Island, Oct. 3 (NYHT).—Czechoslovakia raised a crucial and touchy question on Palestine today by asking the United Nations and its big power members to explain at the start whether any country or countries or the U. N. as a whole is willing to enforce any proposed solution of the Holy Land problem.

No answer was supplied, and the only other country offering to speak today was Lebanon, which assailed any Palestine solution except immediate independence of the country under its Arab majority.

Enforcement Agency Lacking

Implicit in the Czech question put by Karel Liscky, Czech member of the 11-nation U. N. committee which investigated Palestine all summer, was the following reasoning:

Any solution on Palsstine recommended by the Assembly will have to be enforced physically. Therefore, before the 57-country Palestine Committee sets out to arrive at recommendations, it would be a good idea to know who stands ready to enforce the decision, if anyone.

It is probable, however, that Liscky will have a hard time getting an answer. As for the U. N. itself, it has no enforcement agency and efforts to create one have been proceeding at less than snail's pace in the Military Staff Committee for over a year.

Complications Involved

As a practical matter, big power enforcement in Palestine probably would be limited to Britain, the United States and Russia. Britain, the present holder of the Palestine mandate, has announced that it is likely to withdraw soon and entirely from Palestine and that it reserves the right to refuse even to help in collective enforcement of a Holy Land settlement.

On this last point, a British spokesman said today that Britain certainly would not promise in advance to enforce or even help to enforce a Palestine solution until the solution was known.

It is regarded as likely that the United States will take the same position of refusing to sign a blank check on enforcement before the details of the solution have been arrived at. As for the Russians, there is no hint of their attitude on enforcement, but neither the Americans or British want them in Palestine with troops.

Iturbi, Son-in-Law Reach Agreement Over Children

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—Pianist Jose Iturbi and his violinist son-in-law, Stepha Hero, literally kissed and made up in court today to seal an agreement ending their fight for custody of Hero's two young daughters.

Iturbi, whose daughter committed suicide last year after separating from the violinist, agreed that Hero should have custody of the girls if the pianist was given the right to visit them.

After Iturbi's attorney had withdrawn the pianist's petition for custody of the girls, Hero left the courtroom for his parents' home in Queens, accompanied by Maria Teresa, 10, and Maria Antonia, 9.

Clay Approves Amnesty Plan For Nazis

Berlin, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay today approved a conditional amnesty which will permit 500,000 Nazi offenders to escape trial for their Hitlerite activities and return 250,000 Nazi followers to supervisory jobs before they are denazified.

The conditional amnesty was contained in three amendments to the intricate American zone denazification law submitted by German members of the American zone council of states. Clay approved them in an effort to cut six months off the denazification task and finish all trials by next spring.

Clay insisted that the modifications were not a "general amnesty" of the type recently issued by Russian occupation authorities, which absolved nominal Nazis of all blame for Hitlerism.

The 500,000 Nazis affected by the new rulings still may be tried in open court if they desire, but it is anticipated most of their cases will be disposed of by routine administrative procedures without trial. All cases still are open to review by American officers.

The amendments will allow an estimated 250,000 not yet tried by denazification courts to regain immediately executive positions in all except the highest levels of government and industry. Previously they were forced into menial labor jobs.

2 Killed, 20 Injured In Jamaica Riot

Reds Protest Turk Action on Moslem DPs

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 3 (AP).—Tass News Agency announced from the Soviet Embassy today that Russia had protested officially against the "recruitment of Moslem-Soviet citizens" by the Turkish government in displaced persons camps in Italy and western Germany.

The Soviet protest followed closely a Yugoslav objection to receiving immigrant Yugoslav Moslems.

Turkey has answered the Yugoslav note, it was disclosed, but there was no indication of a reply yet being given to the Russians. Prime Minister Kasan Saka declared two months ago, while he was Foreign Minister, that Turkey always would offer protection to her racial brethren.

Coincident with Turkey's reception of Moslems, there has been what observers view as a growing disinclination of some Russian Orthodox Catholics to return to the jurisdiction of Patriarch Alexei at Moscow.

Highly informed persons said 12 bishops representing about 400,000 Orthodox Catholics in the American zone of Germany had sent appeals to Maximos V, patriarch of the Greek Orthodox Church, asking his protection. The patriarchate is at Fenar on the Golden Horn, in Turkish territory.

Maximos, patriarch of 130 million Greek Orthodox Catholics all over the world, is reported to have directed Archbishop Thiatron Germanos of London to go to Germany and report on the situation.

Navy Modernizing Seabag of Sailor For Jet Power Age

The Navy is modernizing the sailor's seabag for the age of jet power and the atom bomb.

The seabag, a combination clothes hamper, storeroom and collapsible suitcase, has been an essential part of a sailor's life since iron men slung their hammocks aboard wooden ships.

Down the years, it has become a little old-fashioned.

Today's sailor no longer carries his bed on his back wherever he goes, because all ships have folding steel bunks, the Navy explained. Seabags were designed for tying to that bed roll.

The new models have handles on them and a pocket for toothpaste. Four designs are being tried out by enlisted men traveling across country.

Sailors, who long have cursed naval tradition heartily as they scrubbed their canvas seabags snow white, will be glad to know that one of the new styles is olive drab and the other three royal blues.

Brazil Backs Ukraine for Council Seat

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 3.—A back door campaign is being pushed to have the United States withdraw its opposition to Ukraine membership in the Security Council.

Latest to plead for withdrawal of Secretary Marshall's adamant stand against that Soviet state is Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil, president of the General Assembly. The Assembly is expected to meet again next week to try to end the deadlock between the Ukraine and India for the Security Council seat.

Aranha, The Washington Post learned, pleaded with them as head of the Assembly—and also for the Latin-American bloc which gave most of its votes to the Ukraine nomination in return for Russian support of Argentina.

He also approached the Indian delegation and asked them to withdraw, thereby leaving the field clear to the Ukraine.

Both the United States and India refused. But Aranha was reported to have won support for his argument among many of American delegation.

Aranha is said to have told the American delegation that by its agreement to accept the Ukraine as a member of the United Nations, they also became bound to accord her all the privileges of membership.

The Soviet delegation is also reported to have asked India to withdraw her nomination.

Mountbatten Joins Church of England

London, Oct. 3 (AP).—Buckingham Palace announced today that Lieut. Philip Mountbatten had been received into the Church of England by the Archbishop of Canterbury at a formal and private ceremony in preparation for his November 20 marriage to Princess Elizabeth.

Previously a member of the Greek Orthodox Church, Philip thus has embraced not only the religion of the kings and queens of England but also renounced his Greek nationality and his title of Greek prince.

Booby Trap In Auto Kills Ex-Sheriff

Etowah, Tenn., Oct. 3 (U.P.).—T. Burkett Ivins, one of the old-line officials of "Bloody McMinn" County, who lost his job in last year's battle of ballots and bullets, stepped on the starter of his car today and was blown to pieces by a booby trap.

Sheriff Knox Henry, the young GI who led the McMinn political revolt, immediately called on the FBI for help in solving the murder. He believed that an Army explosive—possibly a land mine—had been rigged into the car for detonation by the starter.

The explosion demolished Ivins' car but his 6-year-old grandson, Danny, who was standing a few feet away, escaped with a case of shock.

Ivins was a member of the old McMinn County machine headed by Paul Cantrell. Sheriff Henry said he doubted that the slaying had anything to do with the Cantrell machine or the new administration.

Ivins recently was tried for slaying Charles Dunn, son of a political opponent, last spring. It resulted in a mistrial. He was awaiting a second trial. Acquaintances said the Ivins and Dunn families had been feuding for years.

Ivins was a former McMinn County sheriff and was court clerk when defeated for reelection in the turbulent election of August, 1946. That election was settled when the GIs took possession of the ballot boxes at nearby Athens after a night-long battle in which a score of persons were wounded.

Russia Calls Dutch Aggressor in Java

Won't Observe U. N. Order Because Of Foreign Support, Gromyko Charges

By a Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 3.—TheSecurity Council's "cease fire" orders in Indonesia is being ignored, Russia charged tonight, because the Dutch government "has support in this matter from some other governments."

Andrei Gromyko declared also that the Netherlands is "the aggressor in this case," and offered a Soviet resolution calling for withdrawal of troops by both sides to the same positions they held when the Netherlands started its "police action."

Immediate denial of any aggression was made by Eelco N. van Kleffens, Netherlands Ambassador to Washington, who accused the Indonesian Republic leaders of committing atrocities and continuing to hold hostages—some as concubines.

Consul's Report Read

Ineffectiveness of the order by the United Nations' chief arm for settling disputes was shown in a report read to the Council by its commission of six career consuls in Batavia.

"We find that the cease-fire order is not fully effective and that casualties and damage continue," declared their interim report. It added that the situation would continue unless the demarcation line between the opposing armies is obesrved without further dispute.

"Advances by Netherlands troops between July 30 and August 4 were in the nature of spearheads and some fighting occurred," declared the report. "While the main bodies of Republican troops in most areas retreated, considerable numbers of Republican troops remained between the spearheads and guerillas remained in all areas.

"The Indosean scorched earth policy and other disturbances, including looting and heavy loss of life especially among the Chinese, were intensified between and behind the spearheads during and after the Dutch advance.

Line Disregarded

"On August 29 the Netherlands East Indies government declared its intention to 'complete restoration of law and order and the complete disarmament and winding up of all armed organizations' opposing NEI authority within a demarcation line covering Dutch advanced positions.

"The Indonesians did not accept the Dutch demarcation line. The Dutch line entailed patrol and other activities which were regarded by the Indonesians as hostile movements. Patrol clashes and sniping results without dimunition notwithstanding the cease-fire order."

The consuls admitted they had been unable to discover any practical measures which would secure better compliance to the cease-fire order "or reduce casualties." They declared they could continue to try.

Resolution Rushed

The Council, agreeing that the situation was becoming serious again, rushed through a resolution putting into immediate effect an arbitration plan already approved by all participants in the fight. The three arbitrators were empowered to begin work immediately. The three are from Belgium, Australia and the United States. Russia and Poland abstained from voting, but it was approved.

Gromyko did not elaborate on his statement that the Netherlands was finding support for its refusal to abide by Council orders because of allies among other governments.

He also took exception to the report as lacking objective. It "gives the impression that in Indonesia, where the Netherlands government is engaged in action against the Indonesians, it is the Chinese who are being killed while the Indonesians survive," he declared.

"Indonesia is being maltreated by an aggressor," he declared. "She is having to resist an invader."

Van Kleffens Replies

Ambassador Van Kleffens objected to Gromyko's "slightly intemperate expressions."

"If the council wants to be useful," he declared, "why does it not call on the government of Indonesia to put an end to the senseless and cruel violence and to equally senseless destruction of the country's economic assets."

Van Kleffens presented numerous documents of atrocities committed against Netherlanders—complete with photographs.

The Russian proposal for withdrawal of all troops, he said, "is charged with dynamite" and certain to lead to "terrible acts of retaliation" which would occur if republican officials returned.

Diplomacy in Action . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PUNDITA WELCOMES RUSSIAN—Mrs. Vijaylakshimi Pandit, Ambassadress from India to the Soviet Union, welcomes Andrei A. Gromyko (right), Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, to a reception in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Mrs. Pandit, chairman of the United Nations General Assembly delegation from India and first Indian woman envoy, gave the reception for United Nations delegates

liars. The court of this Assembly will judge."

Spaak's speech gave powerful support to the American delegation in its attempts to condemn Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania for helping the Greek guerillas, and to set up a permanent Assembly commission along the border.

Yesterday Nissim Mevorah of Bulgaria, and earlier today Dmitri Manuilsky of the Ukraine, had made some impression among the delegates by saying the United States was artificially exaggerating the alleged threat to the peace. Both of them had conceded freely that the Communist governments to the north had given asylum to guerilla "refugees," but nothing more.

The French delegation had submitted amendments omitting any outright condemnation by the Assembly of the three Balkans countries, and a number of the non-Soviet delegates were thought to be wavering with the French.

Speak, however, left the condemnation conditional upon the attitude of the Greek neighbors in this debate. It was apparent that he would seek a vote first upon the American plan to set up a commission. If the debate produced no assurance of cooperation from Yugoslavia—the only one of the three countries represented in the Assembly—then the delegates would be asked to vote the condemnation.

Speak contrasted the attitude of Greece toward the U. N. investigators with that of her three northern neighbors. Greece, he said, had cooperated in every way, and had let opposition witnesses testify. That was something that would not have been tolerated in "certain other countries," he told the committee.

Yugoslavia and the others had refused, he said, on grounds that it would infringe on their "national sovereignty."

"I am surprised," Speak told the committee, "to see this old 'reactionary' idea of national sovereignty taken up and championed by governments which say they are the vanguard of progress."

Manuilsky of the Ukraine, who spoke for the Soviet bloc, charged that the American resolution "would be an attempt to extend the foreign interference now so evident in Greece to Greece's three northern neighbors." Again, as he did before the Security Council last year, he accused the "illegal" Greek government of oppressing "democratic groups" and fomenting civil war.

Greece's northern neighbors have only done "the just and humane act" of giving asylum to "refugees," he said, whereas American and British "interference in Greek internal affairs" is being ignored.

Sir Carl Berendsen of New Zealand said it was obvious that a potential threat to the peace existed. The only question still disputed, he said, was where responsibility lay. For this reason he supported the American proposal for an Assembly commission on the spot, for "if the Assembly cannot or will not undertake this task, then right-thinking men and women the world over will be affronted and appalled."

While Maryland has no election this year, election laws there requires that a new registrant "declare his intentions" of becoming a voter at last one year prior to the first election in which he may cast a vote. Subsequently, on the registration day preceding the election, the prospective voter presents his declaration of intention paper and is entered on the voting rolls.

Montgomery County officials have arranged for supplemental boards of registry to act on declarations throughout the county to accommodate an expected last minute rush before the November 1 deadline.

Policy Already Adopted

The Department of the Army indicated yesterday that it has already adopted a strict reciprocity policy.

Army Department spokesmen said that Russians were not invited to see a new weapons demonstration at Aberdeen, Md., because Russia doesn't let Americans see similar shows in the Soviet Union.

The same treatment was applied to Poles and Yugoslavs, and for the same reason, the department added in an official statement.

Groups Are Listed

The 122 Americans listed in Russia were as follows: 102 Embassy officials and employes, 10 press correspondents, 9 business men and engineers and a lone naval observer at Odessa.

The 810 Russians in the United States were: 26 Embassy officials, 112 employes, 119 consular officials and employes, 226 members of the Soviet Purchasing Commission, 136 officials and employes of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, 154 delegates to international organizations, 1 student and 36 "miscellaneous" individuals.

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) said yesterday that a new wave of Russian propaganda against the United States "is performing the salutary service of putting this Nation on guard" against the Soviet Union.

The New York lawmaker said in an interview "it is becoming clearer all the time that the greatest hope for enduring world peace is a strong United States."

Ives said Americans "have got to recognize that it is cheaper to have an expensive peace than another war."

Senator Reed (R., Kans.) said he is "for almost anything that will make Russia behave."

"She is following a most outrageous policy," the Kansan said. "But I hate to have us get in a retaliatory mood. However, the time for appeasement has passed."

Then she smiled and said to the other members of the 57-nation committee:

"At least we are able to agree on the place and time of the conference on freedom of information."

With one more blow at her Russian adversary, she added:

giving them a $2.50 increase retroactive to May 18, an additional $1 increase November 18 and a weekly salary of $42.50 by February 18.

Union Shop Rule Removed

3. The union shop provision in the contract was removed to comply with Virginia law but the check-off system was retained.

4. Approval of a 4 cents hourly differential for "owl" run drivers.

5. Approval of a new severance pay plan, providing two weeks' pay after two years and a top of 10 weeks after 10 years.

6. A directive to the union and company to try to work out a satisfactory pension plan during the next contract year.

7. No action was taken on a union demand for longer paid vacations.

AFL employes of the firm, who belong to Division 1079 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, struck for nine days in the spring of 1946 after union and company officials failed to settle contract issues in negotiations.

isolated cases of maladministration and probable miscarriages of justice, none of which were condoned and fostered by General Lee," Wyche declared.

"Those isolated cases," he added, "are too few in number and not of such character as to reflect properly the true over-all conditions within the theater."

Details Ruark's Movements

The Inspector General gave a detailed outline of Ruark's movements while in Italy, and contended that he could not have obtained a fair picture of life there in view of the short time he stayed and the few people he saw.

Ruark spent only 36 hours in Leghorn, Lee's headquarters and scene of most of the alleged complaints, the Inspector General said.

As to charges that Leghorn was "salute crazy," he remarked that "General Lee is a firm believer in the exchange of military salutes." However, he declared that compliance with saluting regulations appeared not to have been overdone except in isolated instances.

Strict, Not Severe

Wyche noted that discipline in the theater "while strict, is not severe." And he stressed the importance of American troops on occupation duty being well-disciplined, courteous, neat and of high moral character.

In approving the report, General Eisenhower called attention to three faults in Lee's theater which "could have been corrected."

General Lee, he said, should have "taken special steps" to make it clear that his personal indorsement of membership in an organization known as the "Fellowship of United States-British Comrades" was not a virtual "command" to join "Ike" said there was "undue pressure" exercised by some commanders to induce subordinates to enroll.

Routine Very Severe

"Unsatisfactory conditions" existed in the disciplinary camp in Italy, Eisenhower stated. He said that offenders, many quite young, were locked up with men guilty of the worst crimes. And he declared that the daily routine of the camp was "very severe," noting that the men spent "an active day of 17 hours."

Some officers in Italy, "Ike" also stated, required their soldier-chauffeurs "to wait unconscionably long hours to suit (their) social conveniences."

The chief of staff said that some complaints of violation of promises about assignments and some cases of unfairness in shipment of dependents overseas may have been justified but that the fault was the War Department's, not Lee's.

Complaints Numerous

Throughout Wyche's report there was indication of dissatisfaction on the part of many soldiers in the theater which may stem partly from General Lee's deeply religious, moral nature and the conditions in Italy. There were many complaints, it was said, against curfew laws, strict limitation of passes, off-limits, and action taken against soldiers contracting venereal disease.

The Inspector General found these restrictions not "unduly severe" in view of the youth of most soldiers in Italy and the "environments in which many of them moved when not supervised or controlled."

Printers Let 25 Contracts Go Unrenewed

By The Associated Press

The American Newspapers Publishers' Association said yesterday about 25 newspapers in the United States now are operating without contracts with their printers because of the "no contract" policy adopted by the AFL International Typographical Union.

George Dale, chairman of the ANPA'S special standing committee on labor relations, said approximately 75 additional papers had reached the reopening stage in their contracts but had been unable to negotiate with the ITU because of the union's new policy.

The ANPA has no report that any of its 400 members with ITU contracts are accepting the ITU's plan for posting "conditions of employment" in lieu of a contract, Dale said.

No Strikes So Far

No strikes have resulted so far from the new ITU policy. Contracts of several of the 25 papers now operating without agreements expired September 30, Dale said, but some of these contain provisions keeping them in effect automatically until new ones are signed.

At its Cleveland convention in August, the ITU decided it no longer would sign contracts but instead its members would continue to work under posted conditions of employment. The ITU long has had a closed shop status; the Taft-Hartley law bans closed shop contracts.

One suit against the ITU under the Taft-Hartley law has resulted from the union's policy.

The Nassau Daily Review-Star at Rockville Center, N. Y., filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board in New York City last Tuesday charging the union refused to enter into collective bargaining in good faith and execute an oral or written agreement.

Baltimore Hearing Delayed

A similar test of the ITU policy arose earlier when the Graphic Arts League, an organization of 32 Baltimore print shops, charged in a complaint that the ITU "entered upon and engaged in a preconceived and continuous plan and course of action for the purpose of violating the provisions" of the new labor law.

Subsequently, the Baltimore union members offered to sign a written contract if an agreement could be reached.

The ITU and its Baltimore Local 12 yesterday received an eight-day postponement of a hearing on the charges they have engaged in an unfair labor practices by refusing to bargain collectively.

The hearing originally was scheduled for next Monday. Ross Madden, regional director of the NLRB, reset it for October 14. The union had asked postponement until November 3.

7 Purged U. S. Employes Lose State Loyalty Board Appeal

Seven persons fired for "security reasons" lost their appeal to the State Department loyalty board yesterday.

The board allowed three more, who were discharged, to resign without prejudice, instead. Their records will show they quit, and will indicate nothing that would stop them from getting other Government jobs.

The seven who lost their appeals probably will not be able to get back on the payroll.

The 10 State employes were fired last July, on the authority given Secretary of State Marshall to purge those he thought poor security risks. The Secretary said at the time that in some of the cases there was evidence of undue association with foreign powers. The names were not given out.

Maynard B. Barnes, former envoy in Bulgaria, Conrad E. Snow and Darrell St. Clair were named to a review board, to hear appeals of such discharges. The board's action in the 10 cases was announced yesterday by Michael McDermott, State Department press officer.

McDermott said the board was a continuing one, but would not say whether other cases are pending.

Nathaniel P. Davis Costa Rican Envoy

President Truman has appointed Nathaniel P. Davis, Princeton, N. J., to be United States Ambassador to Costa Rica, the State Department announced yesterday.

Davis, now counselor at Manila with the personal rank of minister, succeeds Walter J. Donnelly, who recently was appointed Ambassador to Venezuela.

Clergymen Shocked as 2 Wed Divorcees

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—A group fo 12 clergymen of the Episcopal Church issued a statement today which said the marriage of two Episcopal clergymen to divorced women was "a shock to the whole church" and which asked bishops of the church for a clarifying interpretation of two canons governing marriage.

The statement was released by the Rev. Leslie Lang, rector of St. Peter's Church here. Clergymen from nine States signed it.

Lang said the marriages referred to were those of the Rev. Benedict Henry Hanson, of Baltimore, to Elizabeth Donner Winsor, first wife of Elliott Roosevelt, and of the Very Rev. Kirk B. O'Ferrall, former dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in Detroit, to Mrs. Isabelle W. Morrill.

The statement said that the bishops of Lexington and Michigan, who sanctioned the marriages in their respective dioceses, had "divorced the canons from their necessary relation to the doctrine and tradition of the church and have based their action upon a legalistic interpretation of the canons alone."

The statement was signed by the following:

The Rev. Roelif H. Brooks, St. Thomas Church, New York City; the Rev. G. F. Burrill, Christ Church, Williamsport, Pa.; the Rev. Daniel Corrigan, Grace and St. Peter's Church, Baltimore; the Rev. Edward H. Eckel, jr., Trinity Church, Tulsa, Okla.; Dean R. Edwards, St. Paul's Church, St. Paul, Minn.; the Rev. F. Gray Garten, St. Stephen's Church, New York City; the Rev. Charles L. Gomph, Grace Church, Newark, N. J.; the Rev. W. D. F. Hughes, St. Luke's Cathedral, Portland, Me.; the Rev. Leslie Lang, St. Peter's Church, New York City; the Rev. Nelson W. Mackie, St. Barnabas' Church, Apponaug, R. I.; the Rev. Lauriston L. Scaife, Calvary Church, Pittsburgh, Pa.; the Rev. Albert J. M. Wilson, Christ Church, Greenwich, Conn.

VA Studying Extra Fee Charged By Maryland U.

The Veterans' Administration yesterday was studying whether it "can or must" pay $20 extra fees for its GI students at the University of Maryland.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, announced the extra fee would help pay a $1,450,000 building fund to build a stadium, chapel and swimming pool.

A VA spokesman said there "is a question whether we can pay such an increased fee to be used for that type of capital equipment. Present laws call for payment of customary fees charged to all students."

Trial Delay

We hope that the delay by the Corporation Counsel's office in referring the Clegg case to a police trial board does not mean that the affair is to be shelved. There has been a conspicuous silence since the Commissoners turned the matter over to the Counsel. Now the indications are that because of pressure of other work, any action in the Clegg case may be postponed for a month. We earnestly hope that the Corporation Counsel's office will find a way to speed up the process. For the case now to be conveniently forgotten would be to compound the injustice that resulted from the grand jury's refusal to indict the members of the Police Department responsible for Mr. Clegg's mistreatment—a refusal that we suspect was conditioned by the peculiar manner in which the case was presented by the District Attorney.

There is, we think, a vital issue at stake in the Clegg case. If illegal arrest, unlawful dentention and brutality are tolerated in one instance, they will no doubt be tolerated in others. Indeed, the misconduct has been attended by the usual indifference on the part of the District Commissioners to which the Police Department and the community are getting accustomed. We believe that there is ample evidence to warrant prosecution of members of the sex squad and others involved in the Clegg case before a trial board for violations both of the law and of police regulations.

To be sure, a trial board is at best an inadequate substitute for the work that should have been done by the grand jury. To ask police to judge themselves is a questionable procedure. But it is seemingly the only way now in which offending members of the department can be brought to book. And there is no reason why a trial board should not be competent to dispense punishment in this case provided the evidence is fairly presented. In justice to Mr. Clegg and to all Washington citizens, whose civil liberties are ultimately concerned, we think the Corporation Counsel has a responsibility to press for prompt action—and, incidentally, to point out the woeful deficiencies in the District statutes applying to incommunicado detention of prisoners.

Length Of The Skirt

Any minute now we may find one or more of our presidential aspirants coming out with a stand on the "new look." For the major fashion change this fall has not only given rise to heated public controversy on an esthetic basis; it is affecting the Nation's business index and its foreign policy. Abroad even governments are getting involved. British women have been notified that unless they want their clothes rations cut, they will have to continue wearing short skirts so as to save cloth—even though Britain is exporting longer ones to America. Princess Elizabeth has set an example in keeping with the official line by buying a suit with a skirt just covering the knees. In Warsaw, where newspapers reflect government attitude, one paper has advised women to eschew the longer and more luxurious dresses, because they put a strain on production.

Here, as European aid becomes the issue of the day, fashion argument increasingly centers about the ethics of more extravagant use of cloth. In a recent debate on the new styles on a Town Meeting of the Air, the one question that went unanswered by four fashion experts participating was: With the shortage of clothing prevailing in Europe, should we use more material to provide new wardrobes for ourselves? This question was awarded the prize for being the most pertinent one asked.

Longer skirts have probably not taken as much extra cloth as have the fuller and more voluminous cuts of dresses and coats. Most Americans of good taste will agree with the fashion experts that skirts needed moderate lengthening, that they had reached an awkward and unesthetic height. Also it was inevitable that with all Government controls off, fashion, which moves in cycles, and which had a major silhouette change long overdue, would break out in striking new forms. Clothing manufacturers abetted the change. But, they ask, why should they be expected to refrain from making new models any more than automobile manufacturers? Why should they not provide the public with new products the same as do food processors?

Why indeed—if the public will buy? Government order L-85, that so long kept the silhouette in the short-skirted, tubular design, has, like rationing and price control, gone with the wind. Now the voluntary restraint of consumers is being depended upon to cut down food consumption here so that Europe may eat. Consumers will also determine whether the extreme new clothing models that feature "yards and yards and yards" of fabric, according to advertisements, will be accepted or the more moderate styles approved. Only consumer action can now increase the supply of goods for a textile starved world. It is probably harder for many women to cut down on what they consider their chic than on their meat. Yet before the winter is over Europe's rags may make textiles an important part of foreign policy.

Five-Point Program

Aside from a lack of Government example, which (as we have been insisting) is necessary as a starter, the five recommendations of the Citizens' Food Committee lacks enough specificity to arouse citizen cooperation. Perhaps the committee has a more pointed program in mind for submission to the American people. The opportunity will occur on Sunday night when the campaign will be launched on a Nation-wide hookup by President Truman, Secretary Marshall and Mr. Luckman. Mr. Luckman's elaboration of the five-point program will be awaited with much interest. For if the conservation campaign is to work, the committee must make clear to all Americans, regardless of their social position, just how they personally can contribute. It is on the achievement of a personal identification with the emergency effort on the part of every citizen that the campaign will depend for its success.

Thus when the committee says "Buy the cheaper cuts," it should, in our opinion, say what the cheaper cuts are. Moreover, it ought to weigh the advisability of naming an explicit figure, such as "Don't buy meat over 69 cents a pound." In telling housewives "Don't overcook meat," the committee could help by outlining recommended cooking times for various cuts and weights of meat. Indeed, the committee might well publicize suggested cooking rules not only in this category, but also to make more concrete two of its other recommendations, namely, "Use leftovers" and "Save wheat in other ways." What, for instance, are some new ways to serve last night's broccoli? And what are some menus for using more plentiful wheat substitutes? For ourselves we favor meatless days.

On the committee's other suggestion, "Don't serve too much," little comment is needed. Serving sizes can be cut down in the kitchen and unwanted "seconds" can be eliminated—and this applies to restaurants, too—without injuring anyone's diet and with an actual beneficial effect for most of us. The point is that many Americans, especially those in income brackets particularly squeezed by inflation, think they are economizing on food to the limit right now. The committee's job is to show them where they are not saving what they might, and to give them definite hints on what to buy and what not to buy in helping ship more grain abroad.

One facet of the food-saving campaign seems to us psychologically wrong in its effect on the peoples we are trying to help. That is the slogan: "Waste less." This phrase carries the connotation, as a correspondent points out in a letter today, that we will continue our abundant diets and toss the Europeans scraps that have been going into the garbage. That is a misrepresentation of our intentions, open to exploitation, which an adroit change in slogan could cure. For all the criticism, Senator Taft was fundamentally right when he said "Eat less." The accent must be on voluntary saving. Moreover, the campaign will have more of an appeal at home if the humanitarian motive is coupled with our national security—in other words, as a measure that may ultimately save our own necks. Doubtless this will be the burden of Secretary Marshall's address. But when all is said and done, the Government must show the citizen an example, not to mention such interests as the distillers, who by indulging in a four-week lay-off, could save 40 million bushels of the 100-million goal.

Young Man's Game

During the war the saws about Air Force colonels still in the middle reaches of adolescence were so widespread as to become ponderous. Practically every GI musical comedy belabored the theme, even to the extent of including neon-lighted stars on the shoulders of make-believe brass hats under 21. That this good-natured ribbing is not so far-fetched as it might seem is proved by the reorganization of the Air Force announced this week by Secretary Symington. The new heads of the independent Air Force are not precisely downy-cheeked youngsters, but they are definitely the youngest top-level military staff the country has seen. The new Vice Chief of Staff of the Air Force, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, is 48. The Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Lieut. Gen. Lauris Norstad, is a mere 40. The average age of the one full general and seven lieutenant generals who received their promotions under the reorganization is only 45. Moreover, judging from photographs, the new bevy of lieutenant generals is unusually handsome. We don't know whether that is specifically a military asset, but it certainly doesn't hurt the public appeal of the new Air Force.

Such a sprouting of stars seems in sharp contrast to historical military policy. There were, for instance, only two lieutenant generals in the United States up till the Civil War. At the advent of World War II, that rank was held by only a relative handful of men. But lest it be thought that the new separate Air Force is trying to feather its nest, it must be remembered that the Air Force is now a separate operation and calls for rank for its heads equivalent to that held by their counterparts in the Army and Navy. The new promotions are only in line with what has been approved by Congress. We think it is a healthy sign that so many young men have advanced so far in air circles. The Nation has need of their vigor and imagination and alertness. Surely no one can begrudge them the rank commensurate with their responsibility in their vital role as the country's defenders.

Blow To Boycotts

Great importance attaches, in our opinion, to the temporary restraining order—the first of its kind under the Taft-Hartley Act—issued by Judge Brennan in New York to halt a strike in Albany. It was inevitable that the union in question, the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL, should sound off about "Government by injunction." But it hastened to end the strike, undoubtedly realizing the weakness of its position. For in seeking the injunction in this case the NLRB had asked for nothing less than relief of a legitimate business from strangulation by organized labor.

Members of the ILA in Albany struck, without authorization from ILA officials, in retaliation for a boycott by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The teamsters had revolted against a new "trailership" business enfranchised by the Interstate Commerce Commission to haul cargo-laden trailers up and down the Hudson River between Albany and New York. It is said that they refused to agree to the use of the "trailerships" by trucking companies unless their men were paid for the so-called "standby time" required for the trailerships to reach their destination. Apparently this has prevented use of the trailerships, and Local 333 of the ILA, which had a contract to operate the ships, struck in retaliation, tying up vital grain and oil cargoes that ought to be moved before New York's barge canals freeze over.

Here we have a union in effect asserting the right to kill off a new enterprise by use of a coercive power that ought to be restricted to collective bargaining as to wages and working conditions. To be sure, the men who were restrained from striking had gone out in protest against this unwarranted boycott. But it is hopeless to seek any orderly settlement of such disputes by labor union coercion. If we are to retain a competitive economic system it must be free from the suppression of competition by powerful unions as well as by powerful corporations. That is why Congress wrote into the Taft-Hartley Act a provision making it an unfair labor practice for any union or its agents "to engage in . . . a strike or a concerted refusal in the course of their employment to use, manufacture, process, transport or otherwise handle or work on any goods, articles, materials, or commodities or to perform any services, where an object thereof is . . . forcing or requiring any employer . . . or other person to cease using, selling, handling, transporting, or otherwise dealing in the products of any other producer, processor or manufacturer, or to cease doing business with any other person."

It will not be easy to enforce this provision, but a fair and vigorous enforcement is certainly in the public interest. Use of the courts for this purpose is wholly legitimate and proper and action against the teamsters now seems to be in order. Of course, the power thus exercised must be safeguarded against abuse. But we should think that organized labor as a whole would be the last to complain of the use of governmental power to strip off monopolistic strait jackets from our competitive economic system.

Denouement

The defeat of Mr. Floyd Bevens at Ebbets Field yesterday afternoon fulfilled every requirement of classical tragedy, and not even Sophocles himself could have conceived the dramatic intensity and terror of that final inning. It was enough to erase all the complaints that have been made about the uninspired performances of what, 24 hours ago, seemed two rather mediocre professional ball clubs.

Mr. Bevens, according to the classical formula, made his fate without deserving it. He had only one weakness; but it was enough to destroy him. He was wild—so wild that when, with two inadvertent and two intentional wide pitches, he walked Mr. Pete Reiser, the pinchhitter, he had surpassed the record for bases on balls established for the World Series many years ago by Mr. Jack Coombs of the Philadelphia Athletics. But Mr. Bevens had also set another record. He had gone until two thirds of the way through the ninth inning without having allowed a single hit.

There were two fleet runners on base by grace of Mr. Bevens' wildness, when the deus ex machina appeared in the guise of Mr. Cookie Lavagetto. In arranging this particular manifestation, the venerable Mr. Burt Shotten was doubtless guided by some oracle; for at that point all the percentages cried out that Mr. Stanky be allowed to take his turn at bat. Mr. Bevens was wild but apparently impossible to hit; Mr. Stanky's specialty is getting to base without having to hit. Thus, with the bases full, it would have been a question of Mr. Bevens against Mr. Peewee Reese.

Then anything might have happened, including the possibility of a lugubrious immortality for Mr. Bevens as the only pitcher ever to lose a no-hit game. But that would have been mere melodrama; it would have cheated Mr. Bevens of the pity that belongs of right to the tragic victim.

HARVEST MOON

Out of this new moon's cornucopia
The golden fruit will fall like ripened stars,
Quinces and yellow pears and gilded apples,
The fabled fruit of fabulous bazaars.
Into the wide green baskets of the valleys
The plums will drop and bruise their silver bloom;
The small red grapes that taste of smoke and honey
Will nudge the elder-berries to make room.
There with a red vine for a twisted handle,
They will wait richly through the autumn day
Until, in his good time, the husbandman
Will pick them up and carry them away.

"Verdict On Palestine"

Despite the emotional clamor of Jewish nationalists for the creation of a "Jewish state" in Palestine, the growing disposition of the American people to "stop, look and listen" is evident from your thoughtful editorial of September 3. The editorial points out some of the complexities of the problem which has long defied a solution and has been read with interest by the American Council for Judaism. The council constantly has urged that the American people face all the facts lest they be led by their sympathies for suffering humanity to share in a decision that may threaten both world peace and the future of the Jews of the world.

Creation of a Jewish state in Palestine should not be confused with humanitarian pleas in behalf of suffering Europeans, despite the propaganda of Jewish nationalists. Vermont-sized Palestine is only a partial answer for the 250,000 Jewish DPs who seek a new home, as acknowledged by the U. N. Special Committee on Palestine in recommending admission of 150,000. It never has been the answer to the total problem of 850,000 DPs of all faiths and many national origins.

Another misconception shared by many Americans is what Jews are. For a period of 2000 years, since the destruction of the last lingering remnant of the Jewish state, Jews have existed as a religious community only. In America they are Americans of the Jewish faith, differing from their fellow Americans only in religion. The American people always have been vigilant in maintaining the separation of church and state. Will the American people sanction tying church and state together in Palestine?

The American Council for Judaism has insisted that the solution of the problem of the Jews, a religious and not a national group, rests on recognition of the inalienable rights of the individual. Significantly the U. N. Special Committee on Palestine acknowledges that Palestine is not a solution to the Jewish problem. Members of the council are profoundly concerned lest the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine foist a new nationalism on the world, inimical to the interests of those of Jewish faith who are and wish to continue to be, citizens of the United States and many other nations.

If a Jewish state is to be created in Palestine, it must become a "foreign" state to Americans of Jewish faith, and its people a foreign people.

Impolite Men

I suppose it is asking too much of most of the men of today to give up their seats to women standing in a bus or a streetcar, but couldn't they at least help us hold our packages? I don't mean daytime shoppers' packages, but those of us working women who have to do our shopping, be it personal or for the house, during the lunch hour and then carry them home on the express buses after work. I have held bundles, briefcases, even overcoats, many times for men, and am glad to do it, and I think they might do the same for us.

The other morning an express from Fairlington was unusually crowded. At one stop a young girl got on carrying a large sack, her purse and a stack of school books and notebooks 6 inches high. Her precarious attempts to grasp, and hold onto, the pole at the front of the bus brought no offer of a seat, so I suggested that she let me hold her books. I already had on my lap a package of my own, my purse, a carton of cigarettes and another passenger's briefcase. There were three perfectly good empty male laps in front of the girl but not one of the men offered to hold her books. May I add, however, that one of them did hand the books from the girl to me.

As for women having to stand on homeward-bound express buses, yes, I know the men have had a hard day's work, too, and if women are going to insist on men's privileges they must expect to accept the hardships as well, but I'll be willing to wager that the majority of those women standing are going home after a day in the office to cook dinner for their husbands, who are probably sitting in some other bus.

Bonds For Britain

The quickest and otherwise most effective means for the United Kingdom to get relief from its acute dollar shortage would be for the British government to float a two-billion U. S. dollar loan in this country by volunteer subscription, a peace bond, guaranteed by the British government, bearing interest at 3 per cent, free of British income tax and all other restrictions to handling the bonds freely in the financial markets of the world, and repayable in 20 years.

In the case of Great Britain, there is no law of the United States against raising such a foreign loan. It should have the moral support of the Treasury Department and could easily be cleared by the Securities and Exchange Commission in this country. Three per cent is a little less than that charged by the World Bank or the International Monetary Fund. A 20-year period for repayment would make a stronger appeal to the private investor than the 50-year period provided for any other international loans.

There are no doubt several million Americans who for various reasons are anxious to help the British, especially if such aid is rendered in a voluntary manner and on a relatively sound business basis. CHARLES J. FOX.

Food Blunder

With no protest evident from any side, our national leadership appears to be intent on committing what history may consider to be our greatest postwar blunder.

Two ill-chosen words may jettison any benefits in friendship that might accrue to us from our aid to Europe. In a campaign slogan that will be heard in Europe as well as in America, that will be heard with glee by Russia as well as by some of our domestic Reds, we are rawly saying in effect: Well-fed Americans, it isn't necessary to eat less; just save on your garbage.

What undernourished European will respect us for "wasting less?" Presented in this spirit, our gifts will have no permanent value, and can only inspire resentment against the giver. If we were, however, to indeed "eat less" and so succor the starving of other lands, there would be some national credit that we gravely need.

A slogan is such a little thing, but sometimes such an earth-shaking thing. It takes no great imagination to see what these two slogans can mean in Europe. By "eating less," and by telling Europe that we are eating less, we can help destroy the Russian propaganda that we are a fat and selfish nation, bloated on our dollars. On the other hand, by only "wasting less," and making that our slogan, we can stir anew a bitter resentment in Europe, for we seem to be confessing that we are mean givers, who can afford to give the crust of bread while we complacently enjoy the loaf.

More Dogcatchers

Recently your paper reported that the 1948 budget request of the District of Columbia Pound has been increased several thousand dollars for additional men to man more wagons for the dogcatchers.

I feel sure that the many dog lovers and other taxpayers of the District will agree that the additional money should be spent for playground equipment or in some other beneficial manner for the children of our city instead of providing all-day joy rides for the dogcatchers. TAXPAYER.

"The Cold War"

The common man desperately seeks the right answer in the foreign-policy debate between Mr. X and Walter Lippmann. What enforcible foreign policy possesses self-sufficiency to arrest the aggressive conspiracies of predatory communism?

Top planner X vigilantly would contain Soviet aggression with magical levees of counter power at every threat of inundation. So frustrated and confined, he argues, the rising tide of disillusionment of an enslaved proletariat will drown the Hitler-like usurpers of power.

Mr. Lippmann dissents. He, too, would contain totalitarian aggression but well above the quicksands of the discredited cordon sanitaire. No levees of eroding sand close to ancient flood waters. Rather impregnable dams rock high in mountainous reservoirs of tested friendships and alliances. Then the masters of the disputed lowlands have the alternative of productive power or vengeful floods of chastisement.

As between two geopolitical disciples of Clausewitz debating strategic shift of a cordon sanitaire, Mr. Lippmann's arguments appear the more persuasive. At least his reasoning conforms to the preemptory fiscal challenge confronting any plan. The weakness of the plan of X is that it presupposes blank checks of power and material payable anywhere on demand. Mr. Lippmann knows it will be bitterly debated parsimony delivered too late.

But both plans admittedly are stratagems purposed to circumvent the malicious sabotage of the U. N. by the atheistic slave masters of communism. With the veto they have made a suicide pact out of the common man's desperate need for the healing of peace. They offer his compelling hunger for justice and security no alternative but death. Our only choice is whether we will die for ideals more precious than life or yield to ruthless masters whose slavery is worse than death.

Our very dilemma gives us the answer. A suicide pact has no validity before any tribunal of justice and reason. Compel these atheist slave masters to convert their moral intransigence into its overt equivalent. If it is bluff, let us call it soon. If it is real, then better an end with terror than terror without an end.

But the odds are the atheists of the Kremlin are jittery pretenders whose only power is fear. Their souls have no moral fiber. They are fighting ideological war where the predominance of moral fiber is the determinant of final victory. Stand up to them and the vengeance of the disillusioned will entrap their retreat. First rock high in the mountains as Mr. Lippmann proposes. Then their inevitable smothering with the plan of X as moral judgment overtakes those who curse God.

Educational Bogymen

By Malvina Lindsay

Old Maids And 'Profs'

IF MORE MEN are to be inveigled into teaching there is needed, along with increased salaries, a campaign to root the "perfesser" stereotype out of the public mind. It could well copy the crusade women teachers have successfully been conducting against their cadaverous old maid symbol.

Not that the women have yet won their war. The gaunt, beak-nosed, emotionally starved spinster is too strongly entrenched in American fiction, humor, oratory, to be easily driven from her main mythical livelihood, teaching. But her chief creators, the cartoonists, now consider her passe. Generally they draw a more modern and attractive version of the woman teacher.

This hasn't happened by accident. A movement recently begun by Ontario, Canada, teachers to build a new teacher picture in the public mind to replace the "bun-haired old maid" has brought to light the fact that American teachers have long been working along this same line. For years women teachers, with moral backing of the National Education Association, have been writing letters of protest—sometimes blasting ones—whenever they found themselves portrayed in newspapers or magazines in their hackneyed, spectacled role. Bellwethers in the movement, many of whom are married by the way, have collected cartoons, and now can point to tangible evidence of the evolution they have helped bring about.

ONTARIO TEACHERS, through their federation, are appealing to their Department of Education to give compulsory courses in grooming, make-up, clothes and social graces to teachers in training, and also to help teachers on the job in improving appearance and personality. American campaigners against the traditional teacher caricature feel that teachers are responding to the cult of smartness the same as other women and can hold their own in looks and graces anywhere. They are more concerned with getting the public to see that the concept of teachers as dowdy, repressed and unsocial is obsolete.

This public attitude has done much to keep young women from entering teaching. Not only has the "old-maid teacher" label frightened them, but also the habit of regarding teachers as would-be duennas of society. "Better watch out—Miss So-and-So's a schoolmarm!" even yet holds as a witticism in some communities.

Strength of the traditional old-maid image in American life is shown by Mrs. Dorothy Yost Deegan's recent study in which she found that spinsters in novels today are almost the same type as they were 100 years ago—thin, gaunt, unpleasant, self-centered, dependent emotionally on relatives. For her book The Stereotype of the Single Woman in American Novels, she was given by Pi Lambda Theta, national honorary association for women in education, its $400 annual prize for significant research in the problems of professional women. The group hopes this exposure of lazy and hackneyed literary thinking will do the old-maid cause generally some good.

ONE REASON for teaching being branded an "old maid's" calling was the longtime ban against married women in schools. The wartime teacher shortage caused this to be lifted in many communities, though single women are still widely preferred by school boards. Present efforts to get more men into elementary schools, to change the feminine overbalance there, may make "old-maid schoolmarms" still scarcer.

Men in all fields of education bear the brunt of the "perfesser" concept, which generally is that of an undersized beetle-browed, spectacled visionary. In higher reaches of education he becomes a "theorist" or "long hair"—always dogmatic and impractical. Human resentment against authority, and a sense of inferiority to those suspected of too much learning have emotionally reinforced this picture in the public mind.

Men teachers long have loftily ignored this devitalized stereotype of themselves, but there is no doubt it has influenced many a youth with football aspirations to stay out of teachers' training courses. Since ridicule of "perfessers" is one of the stocks in trade of demagogues, it has also greatly handicapped men of valuable specialized knowledge in making urgently needed contributions to problems of government. Men in education should join with women in vigorously challenging those who ignorantly or maliciously libel their profession.

Geography Poll

In the October Reader's Digest, there is condensed from The Washington Post of July 20, 1947, a map of Europe which is numbered but not lettered. The question is asked, "Can you pass this map test?" The Digest says college people could only locate 7 out of 12 countries, high school graduates 6 out of 12 and grade school or lower 3 out of 12. This sounds as if school time is wasted. As a good half or more of all news concerns Europe, it seems like the average voter is not well posted or does not care much about places which are likely to become important in his or her life.

As for myself, I only entered the first year of high school, but was able to locate all countries in their exact position. I do not consider this much of a feat, but on the other hand am surprised at the average answers reported by the poll. Does the average voter know where the States in our Union are located? This should be essential to our everyday life.

Tories Move Left

By Barnet Nover

The Real Division In Europe

NOVER

THE PLATFORM which the British Conservatives overwhelmingly approved at their annual convention held at Brighton throws an extraordinarily revealing light on one of the great realities of postwar Europe.

The reality is that, whether we like it or not, there is no going back anywhere in the Old World to what Americans would call a system of unrestricted free enterprise.

THE BRITISH Conservative Party is the party of Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden and a host of others who proudly wear the Tory badge.

Historically, it is the party of the propertied class, the moneyed interests, the big producers, the rich and well born. The very term, "Tory" is a synonym of reaction.

Nonetheless, at Brighton, and with extremely few dissenting votes, the Tories approved a party program, the so-called "industrial charter," that would give conniption fits to their counterparts in this country.

While denouncing the Labor regime in unmeasured terms—the speaker called it "fantastically incompetent"—the Conservatives gave their approval to certain types of governmental action which, for a long time the Laborites alone supported.

The Brighton conference admitted the necessity of some government controls and a measure of economic centralization. It was agreed that, when and if the Conservatives come back into power, they will make no move to abandon the nationalization of the mines and the Bank of England, or give up altogether public ownership of the railroads.

THIS PROGRAM falls very far short of that program of socialization to which the Labor government is committed and toward which it was moving helter-skelter when pulled up short by the financial crisis.

Nonetheless, the Brighton program does represent an historic change in the Conservative party's position.

The party is still committed to a program of free enterprise, but free enterprise within limits and subject to a greater or lesser degree of government supervision, intervention and control.

WE CAN TAKE it for granted that the Conservatives did not reach the decision to support the "industrial charter" drawn up by a group of young and progressive Tories without prayerful thought. Political considerations played their part in causing the change in Conservative thinking.

The events of the last months have tended to dissipate much of the original enthusiasm with which the Labor government was greeted when it came into office in the summer of 1945. Plagued by forces beyond its control, it has also committed very great blunders.

Nontheless, it remains solidly in power. During the past two years it has won an unprecedented number of bye-elections. Its ardent supporters may constitute only a dwindling group in the United Kingdom. Yet the Labor government has continued to receive widespread acceptance if for no other reason than that the British people saw no satisfactory alternative in a Tory regime.

WHAT the conservatives have done is to meet head on the criticism that they are merely a party of negation, representing a point of view that time and circumstances have made obsolete.

Their new platform, while obviously not likely to win the support of those who want more socialism rather than less, is designed to attract those who feel that under existing circumstances some measure of socialism is inevitable.

Significantly, what has now happened in Great Britain has previously taken place in other countries of western Europe which, seeking to make a war-damaged economy operate, have found it impossible to go back to what existed before but are, at the same time, dead set against communism.

Some Americans, former Gov. Harold Stassen among them, argued that the condition for American aid to Europe must be a pledge by the beneficiaries to restore free enterprise. What has just happened in Great Britain shows that this is a vain hope and a dangerous suggestion. Even with a gigantic financial broom a strong current of events cannot be swept aside.

Walter Lippmann is in Europe. His column, "Today and Tomorrow," will be resumed on his return.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Italian Communists

ROME, ITALY.—Leaders of Italy's Communist Party have claimed a membership up to five million to make it the largest party in Europe. They actually may have three million paid-up members, perhaps even four million, which is astonishing in a country in which the Catholic Church is so important.

Childs

The No. 1 Communist is Palmiro Togliatti, who was schooled in Moscow for more than 15 years. No. 2 is Giuseppe di Vittori, head of Italy's General Confederation of Labor, which claims a membership of 6,700,000.

Togliatti rarely sees any Americans. Di Vittori is less exclusive. I interviewed him.

Di Vittori is typical of the fanatical men who are seeking to forge the bonds of communism throughout all of Europe. He is big, with thick shoulders and a big head with a shock of black hair. During the early days of fascism he was in and out of jail and then in exile.

For four years during the civil war in Spain Di Vittori was a political commissar in the International Brigade. If any toughening process had been necessary, this supplied it.

It was a trial by fire and those who came through it were given Moscow's stamp of approval. Even during the years of the Nazi triumph they moved through Europe on papers forged by the Communist underground, which defies all regulations. In Poland I met the same type, in at least one instance in a key government position.

DI VITTORI talked about the politics of the members of his labor organization. Fifty-eight per cent are Communist, he said. Twenty per cent are Socialists who went along with their leader, Pietro Nenni, in a union with the Communists. Twelve per cent are Christian Democrats, 2 per cent right-wing Socialists and 2 per cent Republicans.

These, of course, are Di Vittori's figures. He brings them out with a take-it-or-leave-it confidence. The word assurance is inadequate. This is a force of nature—something inside the man that has carried him thus far and he intends it to carry him all the way no matter what obstacles, human or otherwise, he must ride over.

The agricultural workers in the north were slaves, he said, nothing more than slaves before they were organized. There is no emotion in this comment. It is part of the driving force.

The most pronounced response came when I suggested that he must be a very tough man to have come through so much. It was not true, he said. That sounded like the distortions in the American press, where the Communists were made out to be barbarians.

We believe in legal methods," he said. "We want to avoid a civil war. There has been too much bloodshed. We shall not force a resort to arms. I myself am a humanitarian."

IN THE DEEP VOICE coming out of the same blank face, this had a surprising sound. It made me think of something, and suddenly I remembered what it was. If Gargantua, that force of nature out of Africa displayed by the Ringling Brothers in their circus, had suddenly beaten his chest and proclaimed himself a humanitarian, it would not have been any more surprising. I had remembered in Gargantua's face the same fixed singleness of purpose.

In his droning voice, Di Vittori talked about the aims of his group. There were twofold: (1) To improve the condition of the worker "within the framework of the national economy," (2) to consolidate and develop still further the rights acquired under the republic.

He also uttered a warning. He said that if help came—no matter from what source—to put back those who were in power before the republic, then his followers would meet force with force.

On the subject of the Catholic Church, Di Vittori was interesting. The church, he said, need not be an obstacle to progress. It depends on who heads the church and whether that individual goes along with the "big interests" or with the workers.

"If the Catholic Church," said Di Vittori, "will defend and develop the Christian doctrine as preached by Christ, then the church can work for progress with the workers."

Here is a man who is playing for keeps. He believes that the same fanatical force that carried him through jail, exile, four years of war in Spain and fighting with the partisans in Italy against the Germans will carry him to ultimate power. These are the men who would reshape Europe under the inflexible sign of the hammer and sickle.

Taft Heads For Canvass Of Midwest

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

En Route to Chicago, Oct. 3.—Senator Robert A. Taft today left the range country behind him and headed back to the friendlier Midwest for another round of speeches and a home ground delegate canvass.

Taking leave of the two-car press contingent that reported his Far Western "trial run," Taft will make a beeline tomorrow for his Cincinnati, Ohio, home.

His Midwestern circuit, mostly booked before his six-State coastal tour, will start Monday in Cincinnati with a long-distance radio collision with Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

Over Blame for High Prices

Taft, who all over the Far West has laid high prices to Roosevelt-Truman policies, will be challenged from Denver, Colo., by O'Mahoney: The subject: "Who's to Blame for High Prices?"

The Ohio Republican has booked these other Midwestern appearances:

October 8, in Des Moines, Iowa, before the Iowa State Bankers Association. (On October 7 Harold Stassen will address the same group.)

October 9, in Chicago. Taft here will make two speeches, one before the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce and the other before local GOP women.

October 16, in Columbus, Ohio, before the Ohio State Federation of Republican Women. Harold Stassen has been invited to address the same group the same day.

October 17, in Columbus, before the High School Principals' Association.

Letter to Give Decision

Taft, who first planned to publicly unveil his presidential intentions at the October 16 Columbus engagement, now says he will make his decision known "late in October."

His decision will be announced in the form of a letter to the Ohio Republican State Central Committee, which asked him to run.

Reaching Cincinnati late tomorrow, Taft is expected to go into a huddle shortly thereafter with Representative Clarence Brown, the man who will direct his campaign if he runs. Brown has been canvassing Taft sentiment in other States, notably in the greener Midwest and Southern delegate fields.

Eislers Ready For Hearing, Lawyer Says

Hollywood songwriter Hanns Eisler and his wife are prepared to surrender to immigration authorities for possible deportation proceedings as soon as a warrant of arrest is served, their attorney said last night.

The Justice Department said the warrants are being flown to Hollywood for service there as soon as possible.

The warrant for Eisler calls for his arrest on the ground that he has violated Section 137 of Title 8 of the United States code which bars from permanent residence here anyone who "shall be or shall have been" a member of any group dedicated to overthrowing the United States Government.

Admitted Joining Party

Eisler testified in hearings before the House Committee on Un-American Activities that he had joined the Communist Party in Germany in 1926 but said he was always inactive. He admitted, however, that he took a leading part for years after that in the International Music Bureau with headquarters in Moscow.

The warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Eisler simply charges that she was not entitled to entry here as a nonquota immigrant which appears on her visa.

A spokesman for the Justice Department stated last night that the criminal division is waiting only for certified copies of Eisler's testimony before proceeding further.

The House committee asked the Justice Department to press charges of perjury and false passports against Eisler and then "forcibly deport" him from the United States.

55 Are Arrested in Slovakia; Anti-State Activities Cited

Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—A Slovak department of interior communique reported tonight that a new group of 55 persons had been arrested for anti-state activities "directed by emigres from abroad."

"The activities of this group, composed mostly of intellectuals . . . must be considered as very dangerous and were directed by emigres abroad with whom they maintained contact through agents," the communique said.

It said those questioned formed a separate group from "plotters" arrested recently in Zilina.

At least 146 persons were previously reported arrested in connection with the alleged plot which reportedly was aimed at separating Slovakian from Czech lands.

Slovakian Communists have been violent in recent attacks on what they term anti-state elements in the Slovakian government.

Some political observers here believed, however, that the Communists were attempting to maintain political unrest by keeping alleged plots in the news as a means of strengthening their hand in next year's elections.

The Czechoslovak Ministry of Interior reported in Prague that police searched the offices of Deputy Prime Minister Jan Ursiny on September 25 and September 27 and arrested his chief of cabinet, two secretaries and one other employe in connection with a "conspiracy" investigation.

5 Executed In N. C. Gas Chamber

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 3 (U.P.).—North Carolina executed five men in the gas chamber today in one hour and 27 minutes.

Two of the executed were white men. Four of the five were murderers, and the fifth died for first degree burglary, a capital offense in North Carolina. Gov. Gregg Cherry refused to intervene. He said he hopes the mass executions would be an example to young criminals.

Earl O'Dear, 23, jammed a wooden ice cream spoon into the intricate lock mechanism of his cell because "I just didn't want the guards to get me out." This forced a last-minute shift in the execution schedule, but he and his murder companion died 40 minutes later in the cyanide execution room.

Because of the spoon, Jethro Lampkin, 20, and Richard McCain, 21, Negroes, died first—for murdering an aged bookkeeper in a holdup.

The chamber was cleared of gas and O'Dear and Messer, were brought in together and executed for murdering a taxi driver and his wife.

Willie Cherry, 26, Negro burglar, was fifth. He confessed after sentence that he raped the white woman whose home he robbed.

Quake Jars Portugal

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Several persons were injured but no deaths and little damage resulted from a mild earthquake which shook Portugal last night. Reports told of cracked walls, tumbled chimneys and broken glassware.

CAB Investigates 3 Airlines' New Low Cargo Rates

The Civil Aeronautics Board denied yesterday petitions by independent air freight carriers and forwarders to suspend new low cargo rates proposed by three airlines to be effective Sunday, and at the same time ordered an investigation of the new rates.

This action was the first by the Government in the growing battle between the scheduled airlines and the noncertified cargo carriers which has brought air freight rates down from an average of about 26 cents a ton-mile to about 12 cents.

The noncertificated carriers are those which operate without a formal certificate from the CAB establishing their route. The petitioners were represented by the Independent Air Association, which includes six noncertified carriers and the Air Freight Forwarder Association, which serves as a sort of middleman between shippers and carriers.

The Gallup Poll

Boys Are Easier to Bring Up Than Girls, Most Parents Say

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 3—Do parents have a harder time bringing up boys, or bringing up girls? That's been a subject of argument in many a household. To find out what parents themselves, and prospective parents, really think about it, a nation-wide survey was conducted on the question:

Which do you, yourself, think is easier to raise—a boy or a girl?

The weight of opinion leans toward boys as easier to raise than girls.

Here's the vote of all people questioned, both parents and non-parents:

Boys easier to bring up	42%
Girls easier	23
No difference	24
No opinion	11

How about parents who have children of both sexes and have therefore had experience with boys and girls?

Their reaction is almost the same as the rest of the country. By nearly 2-to-1 they vote boys easier to raise than girls. The percentages follow:

Vote Of Parents Who Have Both Boys and Girls
Boys easier to bring up	40%
Girls easier	22
No difference	35
No opinion	3

People who have no children are also of the opinion that sons would be easier to raise.

Boys are easier to bring up, parents say, for the following reasons:

They require less care and attention.

They are not as expensive.

They have fewer social problems.

They are apt to be less emotional and temperamental.

On the other hand, parents who think girls are easier to raise give these reasons:

Girls are more obedient.

They are more easily contented, less demanding and ambitious than boys.

Boys get another break in the replies to a second question in the poll:

If you had a (another) child, would you rather have a boy or girl?

The vote:

Boy	40%
Girl	25
No difference	27
No opinion	8

Women are more interested in having daughters than men are judging by the following:

	Men	Women
Want boy	45%	34%
Want girl	19	32
No difference	27	27

Pakistan Brings India Strife Before the United Nations

Lake Success, Oct. 3 (A.P.).—Pakistan brought the communal strife with Hindu India before the United Nations today and was immediately rebuked by India for claiming "thousands and hundreds of thousands are being butchered" in struggles on religious lines following partition of old British India.

Speaking for the Moslem dominion, which was admitted as the fifty-seventh member of the United Nations only last Tuesday, Pakistan Delegate Abdussattar Pizzada charged that on the Indian subcontinent "people not in the hundreds but in the thousands and hundreds of thousands are being butchered."

He spoke before the 57-nation legal committee of the U. N. Assembly during debate on "genocide."

Pakistan Is Warned To Arm for Early War

Karachi, Pakistan, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Moslem Pakistan must mobilize at once and be prepared for war with Hindu India within two months, Mohdhashim Gazdar, a Moslem League leader, declared today.

"I say to the Pakistan government: Mobilize, mobilize, mobilize!" Gazdar said in a press statement. "Train and arm every Moslem between the ages of 18 and 50! Train our women for war service!

"This must be done within the next two months."

He added that "it is crystal clear that the infant Pakistan, born only six weeks ago, is about to be strangled by India and its leaders. Every one of them has declared war against us.

"Therefore, we must immediately start to organize ourselves. Mobilize! must be our watchword."

Gazdar is a member of the Sind Provincial Legislature.

3:30—Henry J. Kaiser and John R. Steelman, presidential assistant.

Bids on 4 Passenger Liners Opened by U. S. Ship Line

By the United Press

The first postwar action toward building new United States passenger ships was taken yesterday when the Maritime Commission opened bids of four companies on construction of five vessels for the American President Lines.

The Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. entered lowest bids on the ships which will be used in round-the-world service. Each of the ships will accommodate 189 passengers and 162 crew members.

Other bidders on the 500-foot, 19-knot combination passenger-cargo ships were Bethlehem Steel shipbuilding division. New York Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. and Ingalls Shipbuilding Co. At least two companies will receive contracts since no one may build more than three ships.

The Newport News company entered bids ranging from $12,350,000 for one ship on a fixed price basis down to $9,690,000 for each of three vessels on a fixed price basis. Under the latter arrangement, the price later could be adjusted to take into account increased labor and materials costs.

Estimated construction time ranged from 600 days for the first ship to 780 days to build three.

Bethlehem Steel bid $16,641,000 fixed price for one vessel, $11,159,000 for each of three on an adjusted price basis. The respective prices were 14 million dollars and $11,387,000 for New York Shipbuilding and $12,832,748 for Ingalls Shipbuilding Co.

Each company bid about $200,000 higher under a different form of contract requiring a higher pressure engine for the ships.

The ships, first new passenger liners planned for America since the war, will be built under a construction subsidy from the Government taking into account lower foreign building costs.

The ships are medium sized, being about 15,000 gross tons by comparison with 25,000 tons gross for the America, this country's only luxury liner at present.

World Relief Drive Planned By Lutherans

Greater Washington area Lutheran churches will sponsor a world relief drive October 12-19, it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Clarence T. Nelson. He is chairman of the Lutheran Ministerial Association Relief Committee and pastor of Augustana Lutheran Church.

Church folks will be urged to contribute clothes, food, bedding, toilet articles, medical supplies, self-help materials, toys and school supplies. The committee is hoping to ship at least a freight car load of relief goods to the Lutheran World Relief warehouse at Easton, Pa.

Members of the relief committee are the Revs. Robert E. Van Deusen, director of the Lutheran Service Center; Donald F. Bautz, executive director of the Lutheran Inner Mission Society, and Edward R. Biey, pastor of Zion Church, and a group of laymen—Werner F. Gerlach, of St. Stephen's; C. Raymond Fowler, Christ Church; Lester J. Hook, Takoma Church, and Henry Seidel, Luther Place Memorial. Lutheran officials of local business firms will furnish trucks to pick up the donations at church depots.

Hero of French Underground to Serve Here

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Dr. Pierre Toureille, who soon will assume charge of the Washington French Congregation, was an active worker in the French underground movement.

The French government awarded him the Croix de Guerre and Resistance Medal for risking his life to save Protestants and Catholics, French and non-French, from the Gestapo.

Dr. Toureille carried on his underground activities while serving as chaplain under the French Federation of Protestant Churches, ministering to prisoners and refugees, many of them in concentration camps. He is a graduate in theology of the University of Strasbourg, and holds an honorary doctorate degree from the University of Bratislava, Czechoslovakia. He has served pulpits in Bordeaux, Congenies and Beziers.

The Washington French Congregation will resume its fall services tomorrow at 4 p. m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, 16th and H sts. nw. Dr. Florian Vurpillot, founder and pastor-emeritus of the congregation, will preach until the arrival late this month of Dr. Toureille. The. Rev. Andre Liotard resigned as pastor of the congregation to take up ministerial work in France, where he was a chaplaincy official in the war.

MORE ABOUT FOREIGN CLERGY

Speaking of foreign clergy: orthodox and Polish bishops, Episcopal prelates, Methodist clergy and nuns and monks of Anglican religious orders will participate in the Washington Catholic (not Roman Catholic) Congress of the American Church Union here Wednesday and Thursday.

The American Church Union is an organization of so-called "high" Episcopal churches. The Rev. Albert J. DuBois, rector of St. Agnes' Episcopal Church here and chairman of the congress, says the union's objective "is to bring the Episcopal Church as a whole to a realization of its inherent catholicity."

There will be an opening meeting Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Episcopal Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, 16th and Newton sts. nw., and a banquet there Thursday at 7 p. m. A solemn pontifical mass will be held Thursday at 11 a. m. at the Washington Cathedral.

OLDEST CATHEDRAL USHER

Col. William J. Moore, 85, is the oldest usher serving the Washington Cathedral, in age and point of service. A native of the Blue Grass State, he claims to have missed only five Sundays in 18 years' service at the cathedral. He and James Sinyard, both of whom attended the laying of the cathedral's foundation stone September 29, 1907, ushered at last Sunday's fortieth anniversary service. Sinyard is a tobacco farmer of La Plata, Md. Writing poetry is one of Colonel Moore's hobbies, and his inspirational booklet, "Fifty Gold Nuggets," is now in its second edition.

ANOTHER CHURCH FOR SIXTEENTH STREET

When Temple Baptist Church worshipers break ground for their new church at 16th and Juniper sts. nw., tomorrow at 5 p. m., it will mark the beginning of another endifice on this "Avenue of Churches."

Riding up 16th st. one afternoon, your reporter counted 19 churches of 12 denominations, beginning with historic St. John's Episcopal Church at 16th and H sts. nw., and ending at Christ Lutheran Church at 16th and Gallatin sts. nw. In addition to Lutheran and Episcopal there are Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Unitarian, Universalist, Mormon, Presbyterian, Christian Science, Church of God, Swedenborgian and Divine Science. A number of congregations have bought sites on this street for future buildings, among them the Seventh-Day Adventists, the Hebrew Academy and B'nai Israel Synagogue.

Temple Baptist Church, now at 10th and N sts. nw., will also celebrate its 105th anniversary and the fourth anniversary of Dr. John E. Briggs' pastorate tomorrow. Speakers at the groundbreaking will be Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., and Dr. James M. Dawson, executive secretary of the Baptist Joint Conference Committee on Public Relations.

Dr. Maier to Speak At Lutheran Rally Tomorrow

Dr. Walter A. Maier whose "International Lutheran Hour" radio audience is estimated to reach 20 million listeners on Sundays, will address a Lutheran rally tomorrow at 3 p. m. in Constitution Hall. It will be sponsored by the Lutheran Action Council.

Maier

The program will open with a "Parade of the Nations," with youths of Walther League and others carrying flags of 100 countries. There will be an organ recital by John B. Wilson, organist of Christ Lutheran Church, and selections by a double octette of the National Lutheran Chorus.

Former Congressman John W. Boehne, member of the board of directors of the Missouri Lutheran Synod, will introduce Dr. Maier. Louis H. Meints, 710 King st., Alexandria, is chairman of arrangements for the rally. A luncheon will be tendered to Dr. Maier today at 1:30 p. m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, 30th st. and Bunker Hill rd., Mount Rainier.

Communion Sunday Rites Set in Area

Many Greater Washington area Protestant churches tomorrow will join in observing annual "World-Wide Communion Sunday," sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches' evangelism department.

Feature of the observance at Columbia Heights Christian Church, 1435 Park Road nw., at 10:50 a. m. will be the dedication of a pulpit Bible, in memory of Mrs. Stella J. Williams.

Mrs. Williams was for many years president of the Berean Bible Class. The Bible is a gift of her children, Mrs. Margaret Bauer, and Russell, Richard and Norman Williams. The Rev. Harry L. Ball will preach on "Courageous Christianity."

Chevy Chase Baptist Church will sponsor a combined "Rally Day" and "World-wide Communion Sunday" observance at 11 a. m. Dr. M. T. Rankin, secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention's Foreign Mission Board, will address the Adult Bible Class at 10 a. m.

Dr. Robert W. Brooks' sermon theme at 11 a. m. at Lincoln Congregational Temple's observance of world-wide Communion Sunday will be "Where Excellence Is Required."

The Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer, pastor of Takoma Lutheran Church, will preach at communion rites at 11 a. m. on "Courage for Today." There will be three communion services at Luther Place Memorial Church, at 9 a. m. and 11 a. m. and following the presentation of the religious film, "And Now I See," at 8 p. m. Dr. L. Ralph Tabor will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Shining Hour."

World-wide Communion Sunday will be observed at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church at 9 a. m., 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.; at Epiphany Episcopal Church at 8 a. m., 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., and at Calvary Baptist Church at 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m.

As Petworth Methodist Church marks the observance at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., Dr. John C. Millian will preach, his evening subject being "One World—One Fellowship."

"The Power of World Fellowship in Christ" will be Dr. Fred S. Buschmeyer's communion theme at 11 a. m. at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church. The pastor is preaching a sermon series on "Spiritual Messages Out of Modern Europe."

NATIONAL CITY RITES

The Rev. Myron Chrisman, new associate minister, will participate in World Communion rites tomorrow at 10:50 a. m. at National City Christian Church, Thomas Circle. Dr. J. Warren Hasting, pastor, will speak on "Crusading for Christ." He will address the weekly "Church Night" dinner October 9 at 6:15 p. m. in the social hall, 1308 Vermont ave. nw., on "Fishers of Men."

Additional Service

Beginning tomorrow, an additional Holy Communion service will be held at 9:30 a.m. and an evensong service at 7:30 p.m., at St. John's Episcopal Church, with Dr. C. Leslie Glenn preaching. There will also be Communion tomorrow at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Alexandria Minister Has Navy Record

The Rev. James Lawrence Basil Williams, new minister-in-charge of Immanuel-on-the-Hill Episcopal Church, Alexandria, was serving as a Navy officer when he decided to enter the ministry.

Williams

Before being commissioned in the Navy early in 1941, he served on the faculties of the Universities of Virginia and Minnesota, specializing in business administration.

While in the service, Mr. Williams helped develop and organize the V-7 Reserve Midshipman program and was commended by the Secretary of the Navy for his contribution toward establishing the V-12 college program. He was on Admiral Stark's staff as personnel officer for naval forces in Europe, and held the rank of lieutenant commander upon his release from active duty.

Mr. Williams says that one of his aims is to have his parish serve both the students and faculty of the Episcopal Theological Seminary and also the residents who have moved into the seminary area since the building boom.

"We now have a campaign under way to build a parish house which will serve the community, and also function as sort of a laboratory for seminary student work," he stated.

When Immanuel Church was built in 1880, it served as worship center for the seminary and for Episcopal High School. The seminary was established in 1823 by Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star-Spangled Banner," and by other Virginia, Washington and (then) Georgetown Episcopal churchmen.

Dr. Waddell to Speak

Dr. H. Clayton Waddell, new minister of the Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church, Chillum Heights, will address the Brotherhood of West Washington Baptist Church, 31st and N sts. nw., Tuesday at 8 p. m.

Dr. E. S. Jones Will Speak on United Church

Dr. E. Stanley Jones, noted Maryland-born Methodist missionary to India, will speak here twice Monday in behalf of "The Crusade for a United Church of America."

The missionary will speak at 8 p. m. in Constitution Hall, where he will be introduced by Arthur S. Flemming, Civil Service Commissioner and Federation of Churches president. Judge Norris C. Bakke, counsel for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and prominent Presbyterian layman, will preside at the luncheon session at 12:30 p. m. in Barker Hall, YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

Tickets for the Constitution Hall meeting are available at the Federation Building, 1751 N st. nw. Dr. Alfred W. Hurst, pastor of Cleveland Park Congregational Church, is chairman of arrangements for Dr. Jones' visit.

Wilner to Head Congregation for 20th Straight Year

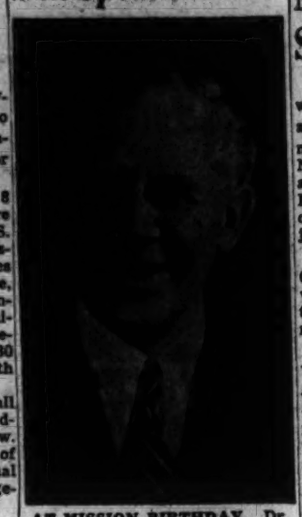
Joseph A. Wilner this week was reelected president of Adas Israel Congregation, 6th and I sts. nw., for the twentieth consecutive term.

Wilner

A Washington resident for 40 years, he has been active in civic, religious and philanthropic affairs, including past president of the Jewish Social Service Agency and of District Lodge No. 5, B'nai B'rith.

Adas Israel Congregation, organized in 1869, has bought land at Connecticut ave. and Porter st. nw., on which to build a new synagogue at an estimated cost of a million dollars. Rabbi Solomon H. Metz is the congregation's spiritual leader, and Jacob Barkin is cantor.

Philadelphian Will Speak Here



AT MISSION BIRTHDAY. Dr. Ross Stover, widely known pastor of Philadelphia's Messiah Lutheran Church, will address the sixty-third anniversary annual meeting of the Central Union Mission October 13 at 8 p. m. in the Mayflower Hotel Ballroom

Lyons to Preach On 'Revelation'

The Rev. Kenneth Lyons, pastor of Anacostia Methodist Church, 14th and U sts. se., tomorrow at 8 p. m. will begin a sermon series on "The Book of Revelation." His opening topic will be "The Tightly Closed Book." The series will extend through December 7. Walter A. Fowler, District budget director and president of the congregation trustees, will lead an old-fashioned hymn "sing" at the special services.

Memorial Service Is Planned; Service Guild Schedules Tea

A cross and two candlesticks will be dedicated tomorrow at 10 a. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church honoring Ransom Norman Chapman, who died in action April 16, 1945. Mrs. Russell B. Chapman, mother of the deceased, and a brother, Russell B., jr., will participate in the service.

The Wesleyan Service Guild of Chevy Chase Methodist Church will give a tea tomorrow from 4 to 6 for business women and young mothers.

The Deaconess Board of John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church will sponsor a pew rally tomorrow at 8 p. m. . . . Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, will address services there tomorrow at 11 a. m. in the Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. . . . The Rev. Douglas Newman, minister of Arlington's Calvary Methodist Church, will speak Monday through Friday at 8:45 a. m. on the "Arlington Church of the Air" program over WARL, the program being sponsored by the Arlington Ministerial Union.

Nearly 1000 church school teachers of the Washington Episcopal Diocese have been invited to a "Service of Dedication" to their work tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the Washington Cathedral. Bishop Angus Dun will preach.

Brazilian Cardinal To Preside at Mass

Carlo Camillo Cardinal de Vascomselles Motta of Sao Paulo, Brazil, will preside at a solemn high mass tomorrow at 10 a. m. at St. Matthew's Cathedral.

Carlos Martins, Brazilian Ambassador to the United States, and Senora Martins, and 20 members of the embassy staff will attend the mass. The celebrant will be the Rev. Leo Burke, of the Oblate House of Studies, Catholic University. Participating in the service will be Bishop Arsene Turquetil, former vicar apostolic of the Hudson Bay area and now of the Oblate House of Studies.

D. C. Baptists Start Revival Tomorrow

The District of Columbia Baptist Convention's simultaneous evangelistic campaign will be launched with a mass meeting tomorrow at 3 p. m. at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, president of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., will address the rally on "Christ Is the Answer." A 200-voice choir from 10 churches will sing.

From October 12-26, Sunday and weekday revival meetings will be held in 30 Baptist churches, with guest speakers from many States. Baptist clergymen will attend daily campaign breakfasts the first week at Luther Rice Memorial Church, 5315 N. Capitol st., and during the drive's second week, at Petworth Church, 7th and Randolph sts. nw.

Baptist services in the coming week will stress visitation and personal evangelism.

Ancient Rite of Tonsure Given Seminarians at Catholic U.

Seminarians from Catholic University religious houses received tonsure this week, they were participating in a rite antedating the Christian era.

Tonsure—the first step toward the priesthood—is where the ordaining bishop shaves the candidate's head and places the surplice upon him.

According to the Rev. John Lubey, assistant pastor of Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, 8th and N sts. nw., the custom was started by the Jews, who shaved their hair as a sign of separation from the world and of penance.

"As early as the first century, candidates for the priesthood had their heads shaved in the form of a cross," explained Father Lubey, "and with the passage of time would let the hair grow back. The custom has now been modified, with the result that the candidates have their heads shaved in five places, symbolizing the four corners of the cross and the center of the cross.

"For purposes of conventionality, priests who are going into parish work allow their hair to grow back in. However, members of such orders as the Franciscans have their heads shaved to the extent of leaving just a rim of hair around the skull, and let it remain so, since they are the monastic type.

"When a candidate's head is shaven and he receives his surplice, it means he is now separated from the world and all worldly possessions. He belongs entirely to God and is God's property. God and sacred things become his whole interest."

The surplice is a white garment worn over the cassock, or long robe.

The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop and administrator of the Washington and Baltimore archdioceses, and the Most Rev. Michael J. Keyes, titular Bishop of Areopolis and affiliated with the Marist College, were the ordaining prelates for the ceremonies this week at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, where the 266 candidates received tonsure and minor orders.

Priest Calls World 'Pagan,' Blames Women for It All

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

The world has gone "pagan" and women are the cause of it all, a Catholic priest declared yesterday.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward P. McAdams, speaking at commencement exercises at Providence Hospital's school of nursing, said:

"The trouble with the world today is that women don't want to be women. The greatest sin women ever committed was to throw down their ideals . . . to throw them into the dust."

Then the priest, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, expressed the belief that women "are going to run this world for a long, long time." He said "they're behind everything . . . and get what they want."

Later Monsignor McAdams, reiterating his belief that "women don't have any ideals now," said the modern woman seeks only a "new automobile and a fur coat."

He called on them to "reform" for unless they do "there is no hope for the world." The priest added:

"Women can make a man do anything they want."

Earlier, speaking to the 48 graduating nurses at St. Peter's Church, Monsignor McAdams warned that the "psychiatric condition of the United States today is terrific."

"What it's going to be 15 or 20 years from now no one can foresee," he added.

He said that today's nurses will have to "deal with patients who are not afraid to die but who want to die—men and women who are afraid to wake up in the morning and face the problems of the day."

These patients, he told the nurses, will "tell you things that they would be afraid to tell either priests or doctors." You will, he added, "be the nearest thing to heaven to them."

The girls were urged to be "true to their ideals . . . to set an example" to others.

Anti-Catholicism Threatens U. S., Archbishop Says

Boston, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Archbishop Richard J. Cushing of Boston said Thursday that a wave of anti-Catholicism threatened to sweep the United States and warned against "leaders of new bigotry" who are creating interfaith tensions.

He told delegates to the Holy Name convention that "only America stands to suffer from artificially fostered bigotry."

In what he termed an answer to the "accumulated taunts and challenges of the hostile," he said the Catholic Church:

1. Favored separation of church and state.
2. Would not, if it could, alter the Constitution.
3. Sought and wanted no special privileges.

Yuletide Rush Starts Early At Red Cross

With Christmas only 12 weeks away, the community service office of the D. C. chapter of the American Red Cross is already doing its shopping.

At a meeting yesterday, Red Cross officials presented their list of needs for the holiday season to representatives of 36 of the organizations which annually work with them at Christmas time.

Field directors from Walter Reed, St. Elizabeths, and Fort Myer told the representatives of the needs of their institutions and explained the early December deadlines on some of the requests.

Miss Caroline Schlater, field director at Walter Reed Hospital, said it is necessary to create the Christmas atmosphere early.

There are as many men in the hospital now as there were during the war, she pointed out, and many of them are more seriously ill. Her list of needs included materials for decoration, food and individual gifts.

Mrs. M. E. Gardner, field director at St. Elizabeths, told of the pleasure gained by the hospital patients from holiday season activities. Many of them, she said, looked to the Red Cross alone for their gifts.

From the master list of needs for Washington institutions presented yesterday, organizations will choose what they wish to contribute, community service will act as a clearing agency, presenting requests and preventing duplication of requests.

It Just Couldn't Happen—Not Even in Brooklyn

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, Oct. 3.—At 3:50 p. m. today, Floyd Bevens shuffled off the diamond toward the Yankee dugout, then turned for a last look at the scoreboard. He stood there, hands on his hips, feet wide apart and his jaw slack—the complete figure of a man in disbelief that the thing that happened to him could happen, even in Brooklyn.

POVICH

Hadn't he just pitched the third one-hitter in World's Series history? Didn't he hold the Dodgers hitless for eight and two thirds innings to better every previous World Series pitching mark? And this made scene on the field, with Brooklyn citizens mobbing the Dodgers and celebrating madly? Did it mean he was a beaten pitcher?

Yep, that's what it was. In the cruellest belt from the fates that any World Series pitcher ever got, Bevens was beaten, on one heart-breaking pitch that Pinch Hitter Cookie Lavagetto walloped for a flaming two-run double against the right field wall. What do you have to do to beat these Dodgers? The big Oregonian is learning the facts of life concerning the Brooklyn club.

IN THIS SERIES, the Dodgers are living up to all of their advance billing as a crazy-quilt outfit that wins games and loses games against all reason. In the series opener they outhit the Yankees, six to four, and lost. They had a bad 10-3 beating in the second game, and then turned on the Yankees to outslug 'em in 918 melee. Today, well, they won on one hit to the Yankeeseight.

Today the Dodgers were held to no hits until two were out in the ninth, but that didn't necessarily mean the Dodgers had no runs. They did come up with a run in the fifth. They scrounged for it, without a hit, after getting two bases on balls and putting a sacrifice and an infield out to use. They had no right in the ball game, you'd say, but there they were putting the tying and winning runs on base in the ninth and getting 'em home with their only hit of the afternoon.

The morning papers will tell Bevens why he lost the ball game. The box scores will show it—ten walks by Bevens. Every run the Dodgers scored was walked on base. Bevens was a good pitched when he got his stuff over the plate, and he had a right to the brilliant outfielding support he got on occasion. But that base on balls will murder a pitcher. He'll remember today, perhaps, the old baseball adage: "The greatest outfielder in the world can't field a base on balls."

Rack one up, too, for ancient Burt Shotton in his battle of managerial wits with Bucky Harris of the Yankees today. Both of 'em were knee-deep in strategems in that decisive ninth inning, and Shotton was the clear winner. Harris might have pulled a boob trick. That's debatable, but more of that later.

Shotton reacted like a master to the demands of the situation in the ninth, overlooking no asset on the Brooklyn bench. When Furillo walked with one out to put the tying run on base, Al Gionfriddo was moved in as a pinch runner to improve the Dodgers' speed. After Jorgensen popped up for the second out, Shotton moved in Pete Reiser to hit.

It was with a 3-and-one count on Reiser that Shotton took the big gamble. He gave Gionfriddo the office to steal. Failure there would have made a collective bum of Shotton and the Bums. Shotton would be white meat for the second guessers. But Gionfriddo didn't fail. He stole the base, and the Dodgers had the tieing run in position to score on a hit.

Now the onus was on Harris. It was the Yankee manager who took the next gamble. Against the cardinal rule of percentage baseball, Harris put the winning run on base with orders to walk Reiser. He was persuaded no doubt by the fact that Reiser had a 3-and-1 count against Bevens and might get a fat pitch, but you don't put the winning run on base willingly. Anyway, barring a home run, the most Reiser could achieve was the tying run.

Harris has now lost his last two gambles in this World Series and they've both cost the Yankees ball games. The afternoon before, with the tying run on second, the winning run on first and none out, he spurned the sacrifice and Joe Di Maggio grounded into a double play. That might have been typical Yankee baseball: The Yanks haven't played for one run all season, why start now?

But today's sequence was even more costly. The Yankees had a game virtually in the bag when Harris put the winning run on. He did pull a pitcher in the first game, when he had a 2-1 lead, for a pinch hitter, and win out with a big inning. It looks as if Harris is gamble-happy.

Veeck Admits He is Trying To Trade Manager Boudreau

Cleveland, Oct. 3 (AP). — Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians, admitted today he has been trying to trade his manager, Lou Boudreau, to the St. Louis Browns.

But he said, in a dispatch from Brooklyn by Gordon Cobbledick, sports editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, that public sentiment or a possible shift in Boudreau's position could alter the picture.

So Veeck, said Cobbledick's dispatch, will fly to Cleveland tomorrow to see for himself whether the Cleveland public will insist on the present shortstop-manager's retention.

Cobbledick said the deal considered would have swapped Boudreau, Pitchers Red Embree and Bryan Stephens of the Indians for Shortstop Vernon Stephens, Outfielder Paul Lehner and Pitcher Jack Kramer of the Browns.

The sports editor said Veeck finally called negotiations off temporarily after a long conference with Browns officials last night.

Cobbledick quoted Veeck as saying he had received telegrams and phone calls from Cleveland fans, protesting against any player deal that would take Boudreau from the Indians.

"I don't want to do anything to alienate our customers," said Veeck. They're the people who keep us in business. On the other hand, I have to be guided in the long run by my best judgment and the best advice I can get.

"I thought the trade I proposed to the Browns would help us. If I made it and it turned out badly, I would be the one that was hurt, but I don't think it would turn out badly."

Cobbledick asked Veeck to comment on a report that Boudreau had said he would accept a one-year contract as a player in Cleveland "if the price is right."

"All I can say is that it opens a new avenue for negotiations with Lou," he replied.

Terps Beat Delaware; Fordham Trails Hoyas

Georgetown Leads In 4th Period, 40-0

A crowd of 20,000, of which 18,023 paid, turned out to see the Hoyas open their home schedule.

After a scoreless first period, the Hoyas scored three times in the second period to turn the contest into a rout. Sophomore Tom Graham raced for two touchdowns, while Lew Surman, Tony Beyers, Babe Baronowski and John Preston had tallied one apiece.

FIRST QUARTER

McCaffrey returned Raba's kickoff 13 yards to the Fordham 30. Squatrito of the Rams punted to Graham on the Hoya 22 and Graham returned it 10 yards.

After punt exchanges the Hoyas gained possession on the Rams' 39. Surman and Baranowski made it a first down on the 28, but the Hoyas were stopped when a Baranowski-to-Surman lateral failed, shoving the Hoyas back 16 yards. O'Doherty busted off tackle and carried to the 17-yard line. Baranowski, circling wide around end and then cutting back, raced over for a touchdown, but the score was nullified and the Hoyas penalized for holding. Back on the 30, the Hoyas were smeared for two straight losses, winding up on the Fordham 44. Raba on fourth down kicked to Bloomer, who was dropped on the 1-yard line by Sarashevitz as the quarter ended. Georgetown, 0; Fordham, 0.

SECOND QUARTER

The scoreless tie ended on the very first play of the second period as Graham took Squatrito's punt on the Ram 35 and legged it across the goal. Werder's try for the extra point was blocked and Hoyas led, 6 to 0.

Six minutes and 50 seconds later the Hoyas had another TD. Graham set up the tally which climaxed a 38-yard Georgetown surge. Beyers busted through center for two and the score. Baranowski's drop-kick was good and the Hoyas led, 13-0. Benonis intercepted Bloomer's pass for Fulham on the G. U. 48 and returned it to the Fordham 45. The Hoyas drove to theri third tally. A Raba to O'Connor pass, good for 18 yards, helpe da lot, but Graham was the boy again, racing 21 yards between tackle and end for the third score. Baranowski's kick was blocked and Georgetown led, 19-0, at halftime.

Blue Hens' String Ends at 32, 43-19

Maryland University's gridiron forces ended—but convincingly—a 32-game undefeated streak of the Delaware University Blue Hens last night, rolling up a 43-19 score before the largest crowd ever to witness a football game here.

Some 16,400 saw the Terps, playing their first year under Coach Jim Tatum, ring up their second triumph of the young season with touchdowns in every period.

Again it was Lou Gambino who paced the Terps' triumph over South Carolina last week, who featured the host's onslaught. He again rang up three touchdowns to steal the point honors from Delaware's Billy Cole, who tallied twice.

FIRST QUARTER

Maryland scored in the first few minutes. Werner of the Terps took a Delaware punt on his own 10 and ran it to the 30. Two brisk dashes by Turyn, then two Turyn passes, one to Simler for 14, and another to Gambino for 29 yards, produced the touchdown. McHugh's placement was blocked. Score, Maryland, 6; Delaware, 0. Delaware came back with a drive, starting from its own 43. Cole made 20 around left end, and Stalloni smashed to the 27 in a series of plays.

SECOND PERIOD

On the second play of the period, Cole raced around end from the 24 to score. Coady's placement was good and Delaware led, 7-6. But the lead was brief, Murray's kickoff was taken by Gambino on his 12 and carried 88 yards down the right sideline for a touchdown. Schwarz' placement made it 13-7; Terps, Maryland, made it 20-7 on Tucker's pass, good for 26 yards to Idzik on the Delaware 2. On his first shot at the line, Idzik scored. A 4-yard pass from Tucker to Davis on the second quarter's final play gave Maryland another touchdown and two safeties were marked up a little earlier to make it 30-7 at half time. Delaware's Coady accounted for the Terps' first two-pointer by running out of his end zone to pass. Later, Coady fumbled on his own 11, kicking the ball accidentally and finally recovering in the end zone.

Third Period

The Terps were close to two touchdowns early in the third period could not score again until the period was more than half over. Then, on fourth down and needing six yards for a first down on the Delaware 10, Gambino went in. Taking a lateral fro mTucker, Gambino went around right end and scored standing up. The most thrilling play of the night occurred on the neck kickoff. Cole grabbed the ball on his 14 and raced 86 yards to a touchdown. Gallagher's knifelike block of Schwartz onabout the Maryland 30 made it possible. Score, 37-13, Terps.

Hanna Paces GW Victory

George Washington High, paced by Bobby Hanna's pair of touchdowns, routed Mount Vernon High School, 31-7, before 8000 spectators last night at G. W. Stadium.

In chalking up its second straight triumph, G. W. scored twice in the second period on a 6-yard run by Hanna and a 28-yard scoring pass from Corky Fones to Bob Via.

The Presidents added to their total in the third quarter as Hanna bucked over from the 1 for a score and Teddy Potts ran 5 yards for another. In the final period Fones scampered 10 yards for the final G. W. tally.

'Cookie' Nominated For Deputy Mayor

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—Brooklyn today nominated Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto for Deputy Mayor of New York City.

Mayor William O'Dwyer, among those who saw the pinch-hitting Lavagetto slam the ninth-inning double which won today's World Series tilt for the Dodgers, hardly had returned to his office when the telephone began to ring.

It was Brooklyn calling. Citizen insisted that very little, if anything, was too good for Lavagetto. Make him "Deputy Mayor," they said, or at least a "commissioner."

Bullis Beats Allentown

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 3.—Allentown High School's 19-game winning streak was snapped here tonight as Bullis Prep School of Silver Spring, Md., turned back the Canaries, 7 to 0, before a crowd of 12,000.

The lone score came in the second period when Mike Casoli tossed a 30-yard pass to Dick Goelzer, who snatched it out of the arms of three Allentown players and stepped over from the one for the touchdown. Mike Sorrentino hit the line for the extra point.

Flatbush Fantasy

Here's how it happened for the Dodgers in the ninth inning of the fourth World Series game yesterday.

Edwards stepped to the plate. The first pitch was a ball. So was the second. Edwards cracked the next pitch on a line into deep left field, but Lindell backed up against the wall and hauled in the drive. Furillo walked, the pitch bouncing past Berra against the screen, but Furillo was unable to pass first. This was Bevens' ninth walk to tie the record set by Coombs. Jorgensen fouled to McQuinn, who made the catch near the first base field boxes. Reiser, left-handed batter, pinchhit for Casey and was intentionally passed, the tenth walk by Bevens which set a new World Series mark. Gionfriddo ran for Furillo. Ed Miksis ran for Reiser and Harry Lavagetto—a right-handed batter—was sent in to hit for Stanky.

Herndon Loses, 18-8, To Warrenton High

Herndon High School dropped its first game of the season against one victory by losing to Warrenton, 18-8, yesterday at Herndon. Royce Thompson plunged over for the Herndon touchdown in the last quarter to make the score 12-8, but the visitors scored again themselves to sew up the contest.

But It Did! Burghers Go Raving Mad

By Bob Considine

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Oct. 3. (INS).—This mad, monstrous World Series of 1947 reached one of the greatest crests in baseball history today when Pinch-Hitter Cookie Lavagetto broke up Pitcher Floyd Bevens' bid for a no-hit game with a double in the ninth inning that gave the Dodgers a still incredible 3-2 victory over the Yankees.

It was a feat that couldn't happen even in Brooklyn.

But it did! And the stands went more raving mad than any crowd in this reporter's memory.

The crowd plunged out of the lower stands like a flood that has broken its dam, and amid the wildest banshee yells it threw itself against the Dodger players, who in turn were pummeling Lavagetto black and blue.

Grown Men Act Like Kids

Grown men actually turned somersaults on the infield in an hour of frenzy hardly paralleled in baseball.

The red-coated guards were knocked aside in the idolatrous rush.

A youn gfan snatched Lavagetto's cap, to enshrine it, and guards cahsed him wildly across the infield as he fled.

Somewhere, an organ faintly played "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning," it's bellowing pipes drowned out by the human pipes of the mob.

The stands remained filled long after their accustomed time . . . filled with Brooklyn fans who still couldn't believe the miracle, but knew only that it had happened—and right in front of their eyes.

Like a Dream Come True

He was a man in a dream. He had been a pitch or two removed fro mbaseball immortality. Now he shares the World Seriees record of allowing only one hit, a mark also owned by Ed Ruelbach and Claude Passeau. But it was small balm.

When the boys go at it again tomorrwo in Ebbets Field, additional police protection will be needed to keep the burghers from beating down the gates for admission.

Frank Shea, the youthful Yankee pitcher who blew midway in the first game, will oppose Vic Lombardi, the little Dodger southpaw who was belted out of the box in the second game.

It is certain now that the series scene will shift back to the vast Yankee stadium on Sunday.

The crowd today, bigger than yesterday's, paid $195,260 for the privilege of seeing the unforgettable game. That swelled the four-game "take" of the series to a new record—$1,161,260. The players' share of $493,674.82 also is the biggest melon the series participants have ever cut.

Lavagetto's Double in Ninth Ruins Bevens and Yankees, 3 to 2

infield out, and then he walked those two men in the ninth.

Along the way, Bevens had brilliant fielding support from the Yankees to save his no-hit ambitions. Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Lindell made spectacular catches of three long balls, and Tommy Henrich backed up to the wall for another.

Shotton, Harris Match Wits

Lindell went far back to the left-field wall to haul down Gene Hermanski's drive that opened the ninth, and then Bevens' game began to get out of hand. He walked Carl Furillo and put the tying run on base.

Now the game went strategic, with Manager Burt Shotton taking the first gamble in his duel of wits with Manager Bucky Harris, and winning.

After Johnny Jorgensen fouled to First Baseman McQuinn for the second out, Shotton moved Pete Reiser in to hit for Casey, and then gave the steal sign to Al Gionfriddo, running for Furillo.

The Dodgers, a gambling club all year, were banking everything on Gionfriddo's ability to steal on Larry Berra, the Yankee catcher, who has been a soft touch for Brooklyn base runners since the series started.

There was a 3-and-1 count on Reiser when Gionfriddo lit out. He made it by an eyelash, with a head-first belly slide before Phil Rizzuto could put Berra's throw on him.

Bucky Orders Reiser Passed

Umpire Babe Pinelli at second base called it safe resolutely, and now the Dodgers had the tying run in scoring position.

Here Harris took the big gamble. Against all orthodoxy, he ordered Bevens to walk Reiser and put the winning run on first base.

There was new activity on the Dodger bench. Miksis was sent in to run for the injured Reiser, who had sprained his ankle the day before. Lavagetto, oldest player in point of service on the Brooklyn club, was the pinch hitter.

Lavagetto's swat was a horrifying thing for the Yankees from its inception. That it would hit the wall and drive in the tying run from second was easily seen.

But the Yankees didn't bargain for the full horror of it. Bouncing off the wall, the ball skipped between the legs of Right Fielder Tommy Henrich and he had to chase it halfway to the infield.

A Yankee Threat Dies

Up to that heart-breaking pitch for Bevens, it was all Yankee in this game. And they were threatening to improve their 2-to-1 lead in the ninth when they filled the bases with one out against Hank Behrman, the third Brooklyn pitcher.

Lindell, who is establishing himself as the No. 1 man for the Yankees in the series, opened the ninth with his second hit, a single to left. He was forced at second by Rizzuto, but on Bevens' bunt, Behrman's throw to second was too late and both runners were safe.

Now Stirnweiss singled to center for the eighth Yankee hit of the game, but Rizzuto cautiously stopped at third.

That's when Casey got the pitching job. He took the allotted six warm-up pitchers and then got the Yankees out on the first official pitch he threw.

Henrich rammed it back into the box, and Casey started a double play via home plate and first base, little dreaming of the coming events in the bottom of the ninth that would make him today's winning pitcher.

It was a dismal start the Dodgers made today. Rookie Harry Taylor couldn't get any Yankee out in the first inning, and they took a 1-0 lead. The first man out in the inning, in fact, was Taylor.

Stirnweiss greeted him with a single to left and Henrich followed with a single to center that moved Stirnweiss to second. Berra grounded to Robinson, and the bases were full of Yankees when Reese dropped Robinson's throw to second.

Gregg Pitches Out of Hole

Taylor walked the run in, with a pass to Joe DiMaggio, and was lifted. Hal Gregg moved in and got rid of the Yanks on McQuinn's pop fly and double play ball lashed at Reese by Bill Johnson.

Sudden and authoritatively, the Yankees made it 2-0 in the fourth inning, getting the only run Gregg allowed until he was removed after the seventh.

In a splurge of Yankee power, Bill Johnson whaled a high triple into the centerfield corner and scored on Lindell's two-base smash against the wall in right, before anybody was out.

The Dodgers, meanwhile, couldn't get up a gallop against Bevens despite his wildness. He walked two men in the first inning, another in the second and another in the third, but there was nothing resembling a Brooklyn hit.

A Run Without a Hit

The first faint sign of a Brooklyn hit was in the fourth when Hermanski walloped a long drive into deep center, but Joe DiMaggio pulled that one down with a spec- his back to the plate.

Came the fifth, though, and the Dodgers got a run without a hit. Bevens walked Jorgensen and with none out he committed the cardinal pitching sin of walking the pitcher, Gregg. Stanky sacrificed them along and the Dodgers got their run when Reese grounded to Rizzuto who was content to get Gregg going into third while Jorgensen scored.

With Bevens still bidding for his no-hitter in the seventh, George McQuinn kept it alive by a dazzling stop of Jackie Robinson's scorching drive.

In the eighth when Hermanski's drive to deep right soared to the wall with two out and none on, Henrich backed against the barrier and pulled it down with a leap.

They Go Wild over Bums

But a circus giant couldn't have reached the two-bagger that Lavagetto rammed against the right field wall to win the ball game.

The Borough of Brooklyn piled out of the stands then. Almost before his joyful teammates could reach Lavagetto as he turned at second base to make sure the winning runs were home, the citizens came boiling out of their seats and stampeded every Dodger in sight with delirious bear-hugs. It was wonderful.

Alexis Wins Laurel Race With Ease

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 3.—Christiana Stable's Alexis, who pulled up in his previous start at Garden State Park when it was believed he had gone lame, showed nothing but sure-footedness today as he won the Jefferson, outstanding event of the Friday program.

The crowd disregarded that previous effort to install him the odds-on favorite and Alexis held on to win by a half length from Mrs. K. O'Malley's Miss War. In third position came H. A. Grant's Eb, with P. A. Markey's Hi Neighbor fourth and the only other starter.

Ridden by Jockey Carson Kirk of the Silver Spring Kirks, Alexis paid a mere $2.60 and was clocked in 1:45 1/5 for the mile and a sixteenth, over a fast track. It was his third victory of the year in 22 starts.

Buttler Misses Fourth

Apprentice Leon Buttler sought his fourth victory of the day on as many mounts aboard Miss War, but the daughter of Man o' War lacked enough stretch zip although she ran a capable race.

It was a parade from start to finish for Alexis. Miss War made repeated bids under a hard drive. Eb and Hi Neighbor might as well have "stood" in the barn.

Due to the vest-pocket field there was straight and place betting only. The wagering of $52,415 was a new low. However, despite Alexis' favoritism the track escaped a "minus" place pool.

Two favorites held the key positions on a pay-off of $13.60 on the daily double which for the first time figured less than a parley. It was a personal victory for Apprentice Leon Buttler, who rode both.

Captures Daily Double

In the first race he took County Dude to the front early and kept him there to the tune of an individual mutuel of $4.60. In the second, he was aboard Hawkwood Aress and this one was never caught, paying $6.60.

Maryland's lack of the "consolation double" rule again left some bettors holding the bag. Northern Trust was a late scratch in the second race. Those who held tickets off the first winner and ending on Northern Trust only received their money back. In several States the consolation double, figured on the first winner, would have returned about even money.

Northern Trust, owned by C. Bordonaro and trained by L. Sylvestra, was scratched because the track identifier was not positive he was the right horse. The gelding was ordered held until other trainers who had the horse confirmed his identity.

Coolidge Loses 2d In Row, 13-0

The victory was Central's second in a row and it was Coolidge's second straight defeat.

Central scored the first on the last play of the third quarter on a 10-yard pass from Jim Pantos to Jim Panor, who caught the ball on the Coolidge 49 and raced to a touchdown. The extra point attempt was blocked.

Ross Keith kicked out of bounds on the Coolidge 6 late in the fourth quarter to set up the final score.

With the ball only a few yards from his own goal line, Coolidge's Jesse Houston tried to pass, but Hal Sponsler knocked the ball out of his hand and Tackle Bob Douglas fell on it for a Viking touchdown. John Roman's extra point try was perfect and the contest ended a few moments later.

Trainers Swamp Wilson by 25-0

Tech opened up the scoring in the second period with a 65-yard march, Bugs Thompson lugging the pigskin over from the three. Julius Poms' placement was good and Tech led, 7-0.

Bob Bell of Tech intercepted a Pat O'Neill pass on his own 45 to set up the second score late in the second quarter. End Jim McCauley scored from the 9 on an end-around play. Poms' kick was wide. Thompson climaxed a 45-yard drive in the third quarter when he scored from 3 yards out. Poms' kick again was off.

Joh Passas' plunged over from the 6 in the final period. Poms' conversion try failed.

Tardy Rizzuto Be (Littled) by Cop

He had a hard time convincing a policeman he was a player.

"Go on, beat it," one officer said. "Don't give me that stuff. You can't even play first for a midget team."

Grid Winners?

Irish Get Call Over Pitt This Weekend

By Harold Classen

New York, Oct. 3 (AP).—This is supposed to be the year of dollar-a-pound steak and butter—plus an unbroken string of Notre Dame victories.

So there should be little doubt concerning the Irish's 1947 debut tomorrow against Pittsburgh, a defensive team that last Saturday held Illinois scoreless for three periods before going down, 14 to 0. Notre Dame has the power to equal last year's 33 to 0 count over the Panthers.

Other forecasts for weekend's gridiron struggles (last week's record, 48 winners, nine losers):

Southern California-Rice: not much difference between the two clubs but the game is being played in Los Angles and that means Rice had to do a lot of traveling. Southern California.

Georgia Tech-Tulane: after Georgia Tech whipped Tennessee by 27 points last week, how can 27 points last week, how can one forsake the Ramblin' Wreck. Georgia Tech.

Colorado-Army: Maybe the Cadets' backfield isn't as good as the foursome of a year ago but Villanova spent all last Saturday looking in vain for a hole in the 1947 Army line. Army.

North Carolina-Texas: North Carolina had a tough game last Saturday and made a long trip for this struggle, but the Dixie club gets the nod in the belief that the Texas T, in use for only the second time, will sputter unreh pressure. North Carolina.

Alabama-Vanderbilt: As long as there is no money involved, here's a guess for a dark horse. Vanderbilt.

Louisiana State-Georgia: The Bulldogs still miss Mr. Trippl. Georgia.

UCLA-Northwestern: The West Coasters still seek revenge for that Rose Bowl pasting by Illinois. UCLA.

Stanford - Michigan: Perhaps Stanford's loss to Idaho is not a true indication of the team's strength, but Michigan still would be too good. Michigan.

Skipping over the remainder in a hurry:

East: Colgate over Kings Point, Springfield over Connecticut, Dartmouth over Syracuse, Harvard over Boston University, Holy Cross over Temple, Penn over Lafayette, Penn State over Bucknell, Princeton over Brown, Yale over Cornell, Rutgers over Western Reserve, Muhlenberg over Albright, Massachusetts over Bowdoin, New Hampshire over Rhode Island, Maine over Northeastern, New York over Brooklyn. (That's right, mister, football—not baseball).

South: Tennessee over Duke, Auburn over Louisiana Tech, Mississippi over South Carolina, North Carolina State over Davidson, Virginia over VPI, VMI over George Washington, Wake Forest over Clemson, West Virginia over Washington and Lee, William and Mary over the Citadel, Richmond over Rollins, Kentucky over Xavier.

Southwest: Arkansas over Texas Christian, Southern Methodist over Missouri.

Midwest: Indiana over Wisconsin, Kansas over Iowa State, Ohio State over Purdue, New Mexico over Kansas State Oklahoma over Texas A & M, Tulsa over Drake, Mississippi State over Michigan State, Minnesota over Nebraska.

Far West: California over St. Mary's, Washington over Oregon State, Santa Clara over Fresno State, Utah over Hawaii, Utah State over Colorado A & M, Washington State over Idaho, Oregon over Navada.

Virginia, VPI In Top Clash

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 3.—Old Dominion's leading football attraction of the week pits the University of Virginia against V. P. I. in Victory Stadum here tomorrow and some 22,000 wil lbe on hand to see the ancient rivals whack each other around, beginning at 3 p. m.

This will be the thirty-second clash between the Cavaliers and the Gobblers wit hthe University of Virginia holding a 14-13 edge. The other four games ended in ties.

Virginia, by virtue of its smashing 33-13 triumph over George Washington last week, is given the nod by observers here, but Tech constituents are quite confident the Gobblers have the stuff to spoil the Cavaliers' hopes.

Th eemassive, rugged Tech line, anchored by Tackle Gus Mangulas and Jack Ittner, held Furman to 25 yards rushing last week as Tech pounded out a 21-7 win. And Tech coaches are looking for the forward wall to turn back the threats Virginia offers in its hard-hitting and fast-running backfield, headed by Bruce Bailey and Quarterback George Heff.

Ray Beasley is Tech's offensive ace and will receive plenty of support from Fullback Bobby Smith, who received a broken nose in the Furman opener last week, but will play tomorrow.

The probable lineups:

Virginia		Virginia Tech
Elliott	L. E.	Hopkins
Kirkland	L. T.	Mangulas
Thomas	L. G.	Barbour
Prissell	Center	Burns
D. Jones	R. G.	Cooke
Barbour	R. T.	Ballard

McCary	Q. B.	Bowles
Bailey	L. H.	Beasley
Pennel	R. H.	Collum
R. Jones	F. B.	Pearce

Western Bows, 25-7, To Ramblers

Repeating the show of power that gave them their opening game victory over defending champion Coolidge last week, Eastern's Ramblers walloped Western's Red Raiders, 25-7, yesterday in an interhigh football contest before 2g00 fans at Eastern.

It was the first loss in two league games for Western. For the second week in a row, it was the powerful Eastern line that stole the show. Tackle Otis Brown and Guard George Roberson were the defensive standouts, helping to hold Western's land sallies to a meager 11 yards.

On offense, Charlie Carhart, reserve left halfback, provided most of the Ramblers' gains, plunging to the third Eastern touchdown in the fourth quarter, after he had passed to Sonny Fleming for the second touchdown in the second.

The Ramblers were off to a 7-0 lead in the first quarter with Quarterback Sal DiGiorgi cracking over from the one after a 63-yard march. Sonny Wesley converted. Carhart's 19-yard aerial to Fleming in the second period made it 13-0, at the half.

Don Strain spearheaded Western's comeback in the third quarter, completing three passes during the 66-yard advance, including his payoff pitch, eight yards, to George Holmes. Strains conversion made it 17-7.

But in the last quarter, Carhart made his touchdown, and in the final minute, Eastern's Center Bob Harkey added another for good measure, intercepting a Holmes pass, and racing 12 yards.

St. John's Downs Charlotte Hall, 13-6

Two passes by Quarterback Jack George yesterday gave St. John's High eleven its second staright triumph of the season, a 13-6 margin over Charlotte Hall Military Academy on the Western High gridiron.

George opened scoring in the second period with a 40-yard heave to End Tom Fannon and in the third session a 6-yard toss, after a 60-yard advance, earned another Johnnie score with Bob Poch taking the aerial.

Charlotte Hall's only score came in the fourth period after a 40-yard march and a quaterback sneak in which Mattingly carried the last 3 yards.

Gromyko Absorbed In News of Series

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 3 (INS). Everybody's doing it—even Russia's Andrei Gromyko, stormy petrol of the United Nations Security Council.

A reporter who approached Gromyko at Lake Success today found him with nose buried in a newspaper—reading about the Dodger-Yankee World Series antics.

Series at Starsbury

Winchester, Va., Oct. 3.—The second of a three-game baseball series between Middletown and Starsburg will be played at Starsbury Sunday. The Middletown Minks won the first game last week, 5-0, behind the three-hit pitching of Pat O'Leary and James Judy.

Policeman Admits Nap At Church On His Beat

Trial Board Due To Report Findings Today in Hearings For Four Officers

One of three policemen allegedly found asleep on their beats recently, admitted to the Police Trial Board yesterday that he took a nap on the steps of a church and neglected to call the station from his box.

Another said he might have fainted while sitting in his car, which, he declared, he had driven to his beat before going on duty. The third obtained continuance of his case.

A fourth policeman denied he neglected his duty or wilfully disobeyed orders when he left an intersection he had been ordered to "take care of." The time for this particular duty had not been specified, he declared.

Findings Due Today

The trial board, which heard the three cases from 10:30 a. m. to about 3 p. m., considered them in executive session after the hearings. Inspector Clement P. Cox, chairman, said the findings and recommendations would not be announced until this morning. Serving on the board with him were Capt. Benjamin C. Kuehling and Assistant Corporation Counsel Henry E. Wixon.

Pvt. Floyd S. Hathorne of the Fifth Precinct, who pleaded guilty to a charge of failure to communicate with the station at 4 a. m. on September 23, was found sitting on the steps of a church asleep as the result of a search made for him, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel William S. Cheatham, prosecutor in all the cases. Hathorne admitted being asleep for a little more than half an hour.

Charles M. Queen of the Eleventh Precinct was charged with leaving a traffic assignment at Benning rd. and Minnesota ave. ne. between 10 p. m. on September 1 during which time a serious accident occurred there.

Setrgt. James H. Gosnell testified he told Queen to take the same assignment he had had the day before, when he stayed at the post from 6 to 10 p. m. Gosnell and Lieut. John J. Ronaye and Queen showed up at about 9:50 and asked what had happened.

Claims Ordedrs Indefinite

Queen testified he was told to patrol No. 8 and 9 beats on September 1, and later was ordered to "take care of traffic" at the intersection in question, which is on No. 8 beat. He said no time was specified for the traffic duty, and when he found the traffic was "light," he left to get a sandwich and to pull a box in anothre part of his beat. Pvts. Charles F. Swann, Thomas F. Wert, jr., and Wyman E. Pyles said they had heard Queen's orders at rollcall, but did not hear any time specified for the traffic duty.

Pvt. Franklin R. Gue of the Eighth Precinct pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report through the signal system while on his beat on the morning of September 11. He denied two other charges, of driving to his beat without permission and failure to constantly patrol his beat.

He explained his presence in his car in back of the Ben Murch School, where Lieut. Lewis D. Redmond and Sergt. Earl Noble found him at about 6:40 a. m., by stating he had been ill and drove the car to that spot before going on duty. While the officers said he was asleep, Gue said he was not sure whether he was asleep or had fainted. He had used up all his sick leave, he said. He is now being treated by a private physician, he declared.

The case of Pvt. Malcolm R. Luebkert of the Second Precinct, charged with failure to ring his box and with driving to his beat, was continued until 10 a. m. next Friday after he said his attorney was out of town.

U. S. Excludes Estonians Who Came in 40-Ft. Boat

Miami, Fla., Oct. 3 (AP).—Eight Estonian refugees who landed here Wednesday in a 40-foot yacht after a 5000-mile trip from Sweden have been excluded from the United States by the board of special entry of the Immigration Department, and an appeal has been made to the United States Attorney General.

Francis J. H. Dever, chief of immigration and naturalization here, who made the announcement today, said the Estonians would be flown to Ellis Island, N. Y., tomorrow for detention until their case is decided.

Airliner Lands Safely After Trouble at Sea

Gander, Newfoundland, Oct. 3 (AP).—Thirty-eight passengers climbed shakily out of a DC-4 Trans-World Airlines plane here today after the pilot had sent an SOS when mechanical trouble threatened its fuel lines while over mid-Atlantic.

Actress Eleanor Parker said two of the plane's four engines cut off and the plane "lurched and seemed to drop hundreds of feet." It seemed like a "miracle" when the engines started again. The plane left Shannon, Eire, last night.

Mansell Makes Perfect Score To Top Police Pistol Matches

The Washington Post

A Colt .38 caliber special revolver is presented to Robert J. Mansell (right), Park Police pistol champ, by Joseph A. Lorch, donor, of 508 Missouri ave. nw.

A perfect score—300 out of a possible 300—gave Motorcycle Pvt. Robert J. Mansell, U. S. Park Police, first place in the individual competition at the Roland G. Ford Memorial Pistol Matches here yesterday.

The first of two days of competition, the matches were held at the White House Police Pistol Range, 28th and M sts. ne. The matches will conclude today with teams and individuals competing from outside the District of Columbia.

In yesterday's individual competition, with 50 pistol shots participating, Patrolman R. P. Hallion of the White House Police was runner up with a score of 298. Pvt. C. A. Byrd of the U. S. Building Guard Force, who lost his left arm in the First World War, claimed third place with a score of 296.

Team Match Results

The results of two team matches also held yesterday are as follows:

Wilbur Slack Memorial Trophy match, won by White House Police, with a total score of 1462. R. P. Hallion, high man on the team, scored 296.

Metropolitan Police Team No. 1 placed second with a total score of 1454. J. B. Layton and M. I. Bridges were high men on this team with scores of 295 each.

U. S. Park Police came in third with a total score of 1445. High man was R. Mansell, who scored 296.

Other teams participating in the match, in the order of finish, were U. S. Special Police, Metropolitan Police No. 2, Uniformed Secret Service, Traffic Division, Seventh Precinct, Sixth Precinct and Metropolitan Police No. 3.

With Smaller Targets

Inter-precinct team match, competing for the Inspector Walter H. Thomas Trophy, won by Traffic Division team No. 1 with a total score of 1111. This match was fired over a different course with smaller targets. High man on the winning team was S. S. Segrist with 287.

Second place was won by the First Precinct with a total score of 1104. High men, H. M. Henninger and C. F. Thompson, scored 283 each. Third place went to the Second Precinct, total score 1081. High man, R. B. McMahill, scored 293.

Other teams participating in the match, in the order they finished, were Seventh Precinct, Thirteenth Precinct, Traffic Division No. 2, Eighth Precinct, Detective Bureau, Twelfth Precinct and Sixth Precinct.

Businessmen's Group Opposes Driver Reexamination Plan

Traffic Director George E. Keneipp's proposal to weed out incompetent auto drivers through reexamination every six years was attacked as a costly, impractical inconvenience yesterday by the Federation of Businessmen's Associations.

In an open letter to the Commissioners, the federation said its board of directors had voted unanimously to disapprove both driver reexamination and Keneipp's plan to fingerprint motorists.

Keneipp immediately replied that "they don't have to sit here and review the reports of accidents and fatalities which occur because drivers have faulty vision or don't know the regulations."

"I'm the one who has to answer to the commissioners and the community for these things," he pointed out.

"They haven't asked me anything about the proposal," he declared. "I'd be glad to meet with them and explain my reasons for making it. I haven't seen their letter and I can't tell exactly what they're objecting to."

"But I haven't changed my mind," he added. "The plan will substantially reduce deaths, accidents and property damage."

The businessmen gave these reasons for their opposition:

1. An additional requirement would be placed on "the already overburdened, overtaxed and overregulated operator."

2. District Government expenses would be 'greatly" increaser.

3. Re-examination would result in loss of time to the individual "who at present suffers undue delay in having his automobile inspected annually because of the lack of sufficient inspection stations and the picayunishness and unreasonable requirements and regulations of such inspection stations and system."

4. It would be impractical in view of the "large number of automobiles operating daily upon the District streets from Maryland, and other States that have no such requirements."

5. Fingerprinting, in addition to being costly, would also be impractical. Other District departments more than nine months in arrears which require fingerprinting "are in their efforts to check fingerprints," the federation said.

National City Bank Loans Increase 50%

New York, Oct. 3.—The National City Bank of New York today announced that its total deposits and resources as of September 30 were $4,622,164,738 and $4,957,416,177, respectively, compared with deposits of $4,664,000,000 and resources of $4,978,000,000 last December 31.

Holdings of United States Government bonds totaled $2,183,146,029, against $2,188,205,130 at the end of last year.

The bank reported loans were up 50.3 per cent, or $1,144,278,147, September 30, as against $1,093,944,555 at the end of last year.

Combined net income of the bank with its affiliate, City Bank Farmers Trust Co., totaled $14,372,583, or $2.35 a share, compared with $13,966,844, or $2.25 for the same period last year.

War Is Not Imminent, 2 French Ministers Say

Paris, Oct. 3.—Fear of imminent war spreading through France became front page news today when two government ministers advised the nation to calm its nerves.

There is no danger of an imminent conflict, Air Minister Andre Mariselli and Navy Minister Louis Jacquoinot told the newspaper Liberation, which displayed their reassuring statements under the headline: "The war is not for tomorrow."

Policemen To Attend Boys' Clubs

Barrett Assigns Uniformed Men In Friendship, Respect Campaign

The Metropolitan Police Department is going to try to prove that a cop is a kid's best friend.

Major Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, said he has obtained verbal permission from the District Commissioners to place a uniformed policeman in each Boys' Club in the city.

The detail probably will be effected sometime next week, Barrett said.

The policemen at the boys clubs will be in uniform and will stay on duty during hours when children customarily are at the clubs.

The action is directed at winning the confidence and respect of the city's youths, Barrett said.

Policemen will be ordered never to hide badges or hats in attempting to trap children and should use tactics which will encourage the children to cooperate with police, he ordered.

Police detailed to the Washington Terminal will be in uniform rather than plainclothes. This is to encourage visitors to the Capital to seek police aid where necessary, Barrett said.

Public Health Nurse Supply Falling Short

The number of nurses engaged in public health work in the United States is failing to meet both current demands and increasing population, according to the 1947 annual census of public health nurses.

While stating that more nurses are engaged in public health work this year than ever before, the census added that "nurses are needed to fill the 2489 vacancies in budgeted positions which were reported by the States at the beginning of the year 1947."

In addition nurses are needed for 1087 counties which had no public health nursing service, and for expanding programs in many medical fields.

In Washington, the American Public Health Association reports that there are 116 nurses now, and that increase over last year has not been appreciable. The association has asked Congress for money for the 1949 fiscal year to increase its nurses by 60.

The Association is attempting to reach a goal of one nurse for each 2000 population but said such a ratio would require approximately 288 nurses, 110 more than it will have even if Congress grants its request.

Difficulties in getting nurses for public health work are due to the fact that the nurses go where they are assigned, and the requirement that all applicants for public health nursing training have at least one year of college.

Freedom Train Sponsor Warns of Communists

New York, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—The American Heritage Foundations, sponsors of the Freedom Train, today warned the mayors of 300 cities where the train will be displayed to beware of Communist exploitation.

"Should those who have no love for freedom seek to mar the wholesomely patriotic spirit of this project, their identity should be established and their motives clearly exposed," the foundation said in a letter to the mayors.

2 Brothers Sentenced in Robbery Plot

Two brothers who conspired to effect a "robbery" in which one, a messenger, was "robbed" of a $3790 payroll last June, were sentenced in District Court yesterday.

Robert Olson, 21, of 5056 6th st. se., received a sentence of one to three years.

His brother, Alan, 19, former messenger for the Credit Bureau Inc., 1221 G st. nw., was placed on probation for three years. Probation granted Robert Olson on a past laarceny charge was revoked.

Following the "robbery" Alan reported to his employers he had been assaulted by two men as he was entering the credit bureau building. He later confessed to his part in the theft, police said.

Joseph Capeto, 48, of 1232 13th st. nw., whose desire to visit a former girl friend was so great that he blasted the lock of her door with four shots from a .32 caliber pistol, was sentenced to 2-6 years. He was charged with assault with a deadly weapon and unlawful entry.

The girl, Hazel Aguilera, lives at 2715 14th st. nw. The incident occurred last July.

50 Churches Join In Institute

Representatives of 50 churches in the West Washington Methodist District, including a number from Maryland, will attend a missionary institute October 9 at 8 p. m. at Eldbrooke Methodist Church, Wisconsin ave. and River rd. nw.

The speaker will be Dr. Clarence W. Lokey, executive secretary of the home missions section, Methodist board of missions and church extension. He was formerly Methodist superintendent of the Bryan District, Texas Conference. The Rev. F. Paul Harris will be host pastor.

Pre-School Play Programs Are Resumed

The Recreation Department has resumed its programs for preschool age children.

At the age of three they are learning to take the hurdle of playing with other children.

Throughout the city the Recreation Department runs 31 pre-school play centers open to children 3 and 4 years old, two to three hours a day, Monday through Friday.

At the Hearst Play Center, 37th and Tilden sts. nw., 40 children yesterday participated in a program that included finger painting, clay modeling and group games.

Sing Tooth Brush Song

Hand in hand they formed a circle to sing "Here We Go 'Round the Mulberry Bush" and then went through the gestures of using a toot hbrush while singing "This Is the Way We Wash Our Teeth."

Mrs. Abbie Flynn, who directs the center, said that kindergarten teacheens have reported that they can tell the difference in children who have attended the centers. They are brighter and more eager to learn than children who have not had the experience, she said.

Not all of the activities at the centers are organized. Free play periods to adjust the children to getting along together on their own are an integral part of the program.

Outdoor Play a Feature

After completing their singing, tthe youngsters at Hearst pulled on their coats to play out-of-doors on a slide formed of boards and benches. They also took turns pounding nails into a packing box.

Mrs. Flynn is assisted by the mothers who take turns in supervising the children's play. At Hearst each mother is assigned to hel pone day every two weeks.

"It is hard to tell," Mrs. Flynn said, "who gets the most out of the centers—mothers or children."

'More Inflation,' Comments Vinson, Receiving Medal

By The Associated Press

Awarded a Medal of Merit by President Truman yesterday, Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson smiled wryly, and said:

"This is another example of inflation."

Vinson's comment came after he had heard the President read a long citation of praise in the rose gardens of the White House, at a ceremony attended by the entire Cabinet.

The citation described Vinson as "one of the foremost Americans of his generation," an outstanding contributor to victory and to the effort to restore economic order and stability after the conflict. Mr. Truman read:

"To the people he was a human symbol of the strength of American leadership."

The citation listed Vinson's services as director of the Office of Economic Stabilization, director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, and Secretary of the Treasury.

Pictures of New Church To Be Shown at Dinner

Pictures of the new edifice will be shown at a parish dinner of St. John's Episcopal Church, Bethesda, October 9 at 6:30 p. m. at the Chevy Chase Women's Club. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church, will speak. The new building is now under construction at Wisconsin ave. and Bradley lane. The Rev. William E. Creighton is rector. Mrs. Clarence C. Keiser is chairman of dinner arrangements.

D. C. Starts Framing Auto Loan Rules

Officials and Bar Association Act to Regulate Companies

Members of the District legal staff yesterday began drafting regulations to govern operation of District auto loan firms.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert D. Wise met with Francis Buckley of the District Bar Association's small loan committee, Edward E. Bailey, District license superintendent, and Bailey's assistant, Chatham Nottingham, to begin a preliminary draft of the regulations.

Wise said yesterday the conference was the first of a series of weekly meetings to consider the new regulatory setup.

District officials and the District Bar Association took action against the unlicensed loan companies after it was found that some of them were charging rates up to 500 per cent on automobile-secured loans.

Last April the loan companies paid $8000 in rebates to borrowers, and applied for licenses to operate under District supervision.

The corporation counsel's office is still examining applications of six persons with criminal records for auto loan company licenses.

Results of police investigation of the six, along with similar reports on 19 applicants without criminal records, were forwarded to the corporation counsel September 24 by License Superintendent Bailey.

Police precinct captains recommended that a license be denied to only one of the six persons with criminal records, Bailey said.

Peace Prospects To Be Topic of British MP

McLean Horse Show to Be Held At Madeira School

With a record entry list on hand, the McLean (Va.) Horse Show Association will present its fifth annual show today at 9 a. m. at the Madeira School, Greenway, in Fairfax County.

More than 100 competitors have submitted entries for the five classes, which will be conducted under rules of the American Horse Show Association. Exhibitors will include a number of the most outstanding horsemen in the Washington-Virginia-Maryland area.

Proceeds of the show will be divided this year between the McLean Volunteer Fire Department and the McLean School and Civic League. In charge of arrangements for the event are Curt C. Mack, Mildred F. Gaines, John C. Mackall, Russell A. Stuart, Mrs. Mary A. Robertson and Thomas C. Barringer.

An added feature of the show will be a jousting tournament, which will be held during the noon recess.

Personal Tax Returns Here Up $200,000 In September

Month's Payments Totaled $1,189,190; Uopened Mail To Boost Figure

Personal property tax payments were nearly $200,000 higher this September than they were during the same month a year ago, James L. Martin, head of the Personal Property Tax Division, announced yesterday.

A total of $1,189,190 in personal property tax payments poured into District tills during the month, compared with $991,353 during September last year, he revealed.

The "take" more than doubled receipts during September, 1944, Martin said.

Tax Collector Guy Pearson said there was "at least as much again" in unopened mail returns waiting to be processed in his office. He said he hoped to have them cleared up by October 15.

Martin said his office wouldn't have an accurate picture of the amount of increase until the end of October. Most payments are made during September and October, he said, and a good indication of how the year's receipts will run can be seen about the first of November.

Tax officials attributed the increase to the higher tax rate ordered by the Commissioners July 1, higher assesments on property made by assessors, and the increase in returns brought on by investigation of persons who previously hadn't filed returns.

Personal property tax bills sent to taxpayers this year added up to $4,869,696 this year, compared to $3,166,625 in 1946, Martin said.

D.C. to Support $16,000,000 of Construction

The District will enter into contracts for approximately 16 million dollars' worth of heavy construction during the next nine months, Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young announced yesterday.

Most of the projects (which do not include highway and sewer construction) will be only partially completed this year, he said. Total cost to the District during fiscal 1948 will be about nine million dollars, he predicted.

Bulk of the work will be construction of schools. Other projects will be an incinerator and garage for the Refuse Department.

Young said he didn't believe the work would "oversaturate" the capacity of local builders engaged in this kind of war.

At present, he revealed, the District has projects amounting to about $1,750,000 under contract, with approximately $500,000 worth of work stil lto be finished.

He indicated, however, that the 53 million dollars worth of capital improvements requested by city department heads in their 1949 budget estimates "is far beyond what the local building industry could absorb in one year."

Fulton Lewis Ousted by Cooperative

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Fulton Lewis, jr., news commentator for the Mutual Broadcasting System, today was dismissed from membership in Southern States Cooperative for actions considered contrary to the best interests of the organization's 211,000 farmermembers in six States.

Lewis was dropped by a 14-member board of directors after a day-long session in which the commentator appeared with his Richmond and Washington attorneys. The news commentator became a member of the cooperative in 1942, the organization said, when he used its facilities to buy feed for his Maryland farm.

Charges against Lewis grew out of a series of broadcasts inwhich he allegedly attack cooperatives in general, and Southern States in particular, and led W. G. Wysor, the cooperative's general manager, to request his withdrawal. Lewis refused, and asked to be heard by the board of directors.

Today Lewis announced through his attorneys that he had no statement to make in reply to the charges. Earlier his counsel had requested a week's continuance, but it was refused.

The board's unanimous decision was announced by Harry N. Nuttle of Denton, Md., president of Southern States, who presided at the hearing. Other board members represent farmers in Virginia, Delaware, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The board found that "Fulton Lewis, jr., in his public utterances beginning February 20, 1947, and continuing at frequent intervals, has acted and is acting contrary to the aims and purposes and the best interests of this association."

Consequently the board resolved "that by reason of the foregoing findings, Fulton Lewis, jr., be and he is hereby dismissed from membership in this association and that he hereafter be denied the rights and privileges of membership."

$3,900,000 Chest Goal Is Called Inadequate

Union Council Told Campaign Must Aim At Over-Subscription

The Community Chest Federation goal of $3,900,000 is not adequate to cover the social welfare needs of Washington, Chest officials yesterday told a union group.

Last week Local 27 of the United Office and Professional Workers of America wrote the Chest Federation office requesting that the goal be increased. Later the Industrial Union Council (CIO) wrote a similar letter backing the stand of the UOPWA.

In his letter to the Industrial Union Council, Edward J. Keyes, executive director of the Community Chest, said that Chest campaigners will drive for oversubscription of the goal. He said that because the goal had been set five weeks ago it was not practical at this time to raise it.

There is nothing to prevent the public giving either the $7,078,000 ask by participating agencies, or the $4,566,000 suggested by the Chest budget committtee, Keyes' letter stated.

It emphasized Chest officials' contention that more money could be raised if a reachable goal was set. Last year's goal of $4,200,000 was undersubscribed by about $480,000.

Meanwhile, Chest workers are preparing for the District campaign, which opens November 12 for a two-week drive.

At a luncheon meeting at the Statler yesterday, Edward Arnold, film star and chairman of the Permanent Charities Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, told the group that "federated giving is the only way to give."

He pointed out that more money could be raised in a combined drive than in a number of small ones.

William E. Leahy, chairman of the Citizens Chest Study Committee, paid tributeto work of the committee, which investigated distribution of Chest funds. The Community Chest Federation, he said, is now endeavoring to reorganize itself into an efficient body to spend the dollars it receives.

Edward H. Foley, chairman of the Chest drive, told the workers that this year's campaign is now completely organized. He stated that the $3,900,000 goal was a compromise figure, and said that with it the Chest hoped to get the four million dollars or five million dollars which is needed.

Election Row Causes Hagerstown Walkout

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—CIO production workers of the Colonial Hardwood Flooring Company walked off their jobs today after the firm declined to permit a collective bargaining rights election to be conducted by Hagerstown's Mayor Richard H. Sweeney.

The employment of any agency other than the National Labor Relations Board in the plant election would be circumventing the intent of the Taft-Hartley Act, William R. Danzer, president of the company, said.

The election is being sought by Danzer to determine if Local 472, United Furniture Workers, represents a majority of the employes.

Danzer declared he would decline renewal of a contract unless top officials of the CIO sign the anti-Communist affidavit and avail themselves of the ULRB services in conducting a bargaining agent election. The present contract expires October 15.

President Charles Devilbiss of Local 472 countered with the proposal that the company permit Mayor Sweeney to conduct the election.

Union officials had no comment today on Danzer's assertion that the walkout was "unauthorized."

Butterfat Mark Set

Purcellville, Va. Oct. 3 (AP).—A Holstein cow owned by the Charles R. Hope and son farm has this year set a new State breed record for butterfat production, the Holstein-Friesian Association announced.

Figures released by the association's advanced registry department showed that the cow, Brackel Farm Rag Apple Linda, produced 927.1 pounds of butterfat in a 365-day period ended last July 9, topping the previous Virginia Holstein record of 923 pounds set in 1945 by Lady Segis Colantha Sensation, owned by L. J. Crowgey of Wytheville.

The Hope cow's milk production of 24,410 pounds during the same period was short of the State record of 25,633 pounds, also held by Lady Segis Colantha Sensation.

The Hope cow was 6 years and 3 months old at the start of the record period and was milked three times daily.

5 Road Contracts Let

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—The State Highway Department announced low bids today on five primary highway construction projects totaling nearly $387,000.

The bids included one for construction of a mile of road and a bridge-culvert over Cromwell's Run on Route 50, in Fauquier County, awarded to Hodgin & Gilliam, Upperville, $138,145.49.

Blast Breaks Window

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 3.—A large plate glass window in a downtown delicatessen store here was blown out by an explosion in a gas oven when a worker lighted it yesterday. No one was injured.

Casket Opening Banned

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—An order, which apparently was predicated upon the impending arrival of war dead returned from overseas graves, was passed by the State Public Health Council to prohibit the opening of hermetically sealed caskets shipped into the State.

The council voted the order yesterday at an executive session at which Dr. Walter E. Vest of Huntington was elected president of the nine-member group for his sixth consecutive term.

Health Commissioner N. H. Dyer reported that the order sets forth that "the opening of hermetically sealed caskets containing the disinterred remains of any persons dead from any cause and shipped into West Virginia for burial is hereby prohibited, except as so ordered by a court of competent jurisdiction."

Herd Improvement Course

Blacksburg, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—A three-week short course to qualify men as Dairy Herd Improvment Association supervisors will be held at Virginia Tech starting late this month, it was announced today.

W. H. Armstrong, assistant dairy husbandman for the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service, said at least five graduates of the course would be engaged as supervisors to fill existing vacancies among the State's 47 operating DHIAs.

Applicants must be high school graduates and preference will be given to men with agricultural, and particularly dairying, backgrounds.

Restaurant Men Elect

Other officers named by the convention were J. E. Bernhardt, Warrenton, first vice president; O. D. Judd, Richmond, second vice president, and C. P. Moore, Richmond, treasurer.

To their board of directors the restaurateurs named Nick Kostopulos, Portsmouth, chairman; D. M. Dean, Richmond; J. B. Parker, Norfolk; W. E. Ewart, Richmond; J. B. Fitzgerald, Charlottesville; L. F. Holsinger, Harrisonburg; G. T. Linkhoker, Roanoke, and Von Patterson, South Boston. Norfolk was selected as the site of the 1948 convention.

Merger Is Voted

Winchester, Va., Oct. 3.—The Women's Missionary Society of the Winchester Conference of the Lutheran Synod of Virginia has voted to merge with the New Market Conference at the 1948 spring convention. Present officers will hold office until that time. They are Mrs. W. E. Eisenberg of Winchester, president; Mrs. Vincent Miller of this city, vice president; Mrs. J. P. Derrick, Woodstock, treasurer; Mrs. Raymond Booze, Stephens City, secretary, and Mrs. J. W. Cline, Middletown, statistical secretary.

New Railway Facilities

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Plans for the construction of an extensive new engine terminal in Winston-Salem, N. C., and new engine and shop facilities in Pulaski, Va., were announced today by the Norfolk & Western Railway.

Squirrel Hunter Killed

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—A squirrel hunting trip with his 12-year-old son cost the life of William Irvin Jordan, 32, in Princess Anne County when a .22-caliber rifle accidentally discharged, sending a bullet into his back.

The bullet emerged through the chest, Dr. H. F. Dormire, Princess Anne coroner, said, and Jordan died less than half an hour later. The coroner reported the shooting as accidental and said no inquest would be held.

He said the son, Irvin W. Jordan, stacked his rifle by a tree—the trigger apparently cocked—and the gun went off striking Jordan 12 inches below the neck.

Kaye Begins Duties

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Sidney Kaye, former toxicologist and associate director of the research laboratory of the Metropolitan Police Department in St. Louis, Mo., today took over his duties in the office of Virginia's chief medical examiner.

Kaye was appointed as toxicologist to work with Dr. Herbert S. Breyfogle, the chief medical examiner, in July. Also starting work with the examiner's office today was Miss Dorothy Adams of Kansas City, Mo., as technician.

Hunting Companion Shot

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 3.—Chester Twigg of Greenspring, Hampshire County, was accidentally shot in the face by Charles Wetzel, a hunting companion, while looking for squirrels yesterday in Hampshire. The two had been hunting but separated. Whetzel said he shot at what he thought was a groundhob moving at a distance. The injured man was taken to a Cumberland (Md.) hospital, where his condition was pronounced favorable.

Russian Art Show Nov. 2

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—The Virginia Museum of Fine Arts has scheduled the first showing here of a portion of the million-dollar Russian art collection willed to it by Mrs. John Lee Pratt, Fredericksburg.

Some 30 of the 600 personal art treasures of the Russian Czars will be exhibited at the museum from November 2 through November 23. State and local police will be on hand to protect the display.

Boy's Find Is Claimed

Baltimore, Oct. 3 (AP).—Just as 12-year-old Raymond Willard had feared, someone turned up today and claimed the $124 he found in a "haunted" house a month ago.

John J. Schissler and his attorney filed the claim with the police, who have been holding the $124 since Raymond found it September 3. Schissler said he is a great-nephew and administrator of the estate of John F. Haul, last occupant of the house before he died.

The police had planned to give Raymond the money in a little ceremony tomorrow. Raymond got that news in bed. His mother said he had a cold brought on by fretting about the money. Now the ceremony is all off, at least until a decision on Schissler's claim.

Raymond still will get the motor bike on which he planned to spend the money. A radio station is giving it to him for providing its "story of the week."

Kiwanis Elects

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 3—The Kiwanis Club in its annual election advanced Claude L. Carrow, jr., second vice president, to the presidency. He is head of the textile departments of the American Viscose Corp. plant here. Other new officers are: First vice president, Howard A. Duncan; second vice president, George W. Riddick; treasurer, Herbert M. Thrush; board of directors, Frank Chandler, R. J. Gardiol, L. C. Grannis, J. Robert Lewin, jr., George S. Lux, Dr. Thomas L. Miller and W. Scott Reid. These officers, with immediate past president James A. Payne, will elect a new secretary.

Heads Red Cross Unit

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 3.—Sheriff M. L. Blaydes has been named to head the disaster preparedness committee of the Spotsylvania County chapter of the Red Cross. Other appointments announced by Mrs. C. W. Henry, chapter chairman, were Mrs. Clarence Hicks to head the first aid committee and Mrs. Janet Crismond, publicity committee chairman.

Again Heads Cooperative

Romney, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—J. E. McDonald, Martinsburg, was elected to his third term as a director of the Southern States Cooperative at a district election meeting here.

About 125 delegates of District 7, which includes 20 counties in West Virginia, 9 in Virginia and 4 in Maryland, chose McDonald again.

Fredericksburg, Va., Oct. 3.—Caroline County's Annual Junior Agricultural and Home Economics Fair will be held October 10 and 11 at Caroline High School, beginning at 3 p. m. and ending at 9 p. m. The participating organizations will be 4-H Clubs and chapters of Future Homemakers of America and Future Farmers of America.

U. S. Mission In Greece Not Wasting Time

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Athens, Greece (By Airmail).—Is the Griswold mission working or idling?

Some newspaper reports have recently given the impression that the Griswold mission is wasting time. This interpretation is certainly inaccurate. The work of the Griswold mission has undoubtedly been handicapped by various factors, however.

First, supplies earmarked for reconstruction have increasingly had to be shifted to the Greek army, which now has first priority on all provisions.

Second, a three-week-long cabinet crisis in Greece has hampered the negotiations of the departmental leaders of the mission with the competent Greek authorities—there was no use in making an agreement with one Minister if he was to be replaced the next day.

Third, although Gov. Dwight P. Griswold arrived in Greece more than two months ago, he came with only a small skeleton staff. Each member of his staff had to be checked with the FBI, and, owing to the cuts in that organization's budget, the clearing of those persons slated to come to Greece has been subject to long delays. Thus the head of the industrial section of the mission, Mr. Reginald Gillmor, arrived only a few days ago, and the road expert of the mission, Mr. E. L. Worthington, formerly highway commissioner in West Virginia, arrived here just recently.

26 Ships Have Arrived

If we take all these delays into consideration, it is indeed remarkable how much has been achieved in a very short time.

Up to now, 26 ships, carrying all kinds of supplies, have arrived in Greece. Out of these 26, 15 brought military supplies, eight carried food and relief, and three had mixed cargoes of military and civilian supplies.

Irrigation Discussed

At present, B. F. Vance, of the AMAG farm division, in charge of the irrigation program, and other American experts, are discussing with Greek officials the problem of irrigation projects.

Five hundred thousand acres of land are now under irrigation in Greece. Of these, 50,000 are irrigated by the aid of pumps. Probably another half million acres could be irrigated by other means, but such projects would require a long time. Thus only projects for irrigation by means of pumps are being pushed.

UNRRA ordered pump units for such purposes a long time ago; 2400 pump units arrived in June. It is expected to push pump irrigation projects with these. By this program, it is believed that pump irrigation can be increased by three-fourths of the present rate.

The pumps are being sold to the farmers. Discussions are being conducted to set the prices low enough to enable poor farmers to buy such pump units. It is also planned to increase the productivity of sections presently arid by drillin wells at various parts of the country.

Purchasers Warned on Credit Costs

Court officials yesterday issued a warning to long-term credit purchasers to examine their contracts more closely as the Corporation Counsel's office reported numerous complaints of overcharging for credit.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King and Assistant District Attorney William S. McKinley issued the warning after hearing a complaint that a purchaser was charged $105 for a $240 loan.

King said he was receiving complaints from persons dealing with used car dealers and credit stores. He pointed out instances where the buyer has signed contracts before the contract was filled in.

Sign in Good Faith

"This sounds like a pretty blind thing to do," he said, "but many people assume everything will be on the up and up after they discuss a contract. They sign their names in good faith, thinking the dealer will fill out the papers according to the arrangements made in the discussion."

"Buyers should make sure they know what they are signing before they sign," King said.

McKinley and King summoned a local appliance dealer to the hearing on the complaint of Sergt. Boyd Williams of Fort Myer, Va. The 22-year-old sergeant told the prosecutors that he had purchased $300 worth of furniture from the appliance company, leaving a $60 deposit.

Return Is Refused

Upon arriving home and figuring out his payments, he found that he was going to have to pay an additional $105 for the $240 credit extended. He returned to the store but they refused to return his deposit.

At the hearing it was found that the contract did not specify the amount of money to be paid for the furniture or for the credit, but just gave the total for both. The dealer returned the $60.

Farmington Hunt Ties 2 For First Place

Coal Gas Causes School to Close

Catonsville, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—Westchester School was ordered closed until Monday after parents, complaining of coal gas seepage at the building, kept more than 250 pupils home today.

The parents, some of whom reported their children had come home with headaches and nausea, said they would not let them return until the condition had been corected. Officials said the coal gas had been filtering into class rooms for more than a week.

Fire and school officials declared the gas was carbon dioxide, which can produce nausea and headache, but is not as dangerous as the poisonous carbon monoxide.

Committee to Visit Annapolis Classes

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—Midshipmen will spruce up on recitations tomorrow, since they will be at work under the eyes of the naval personnel advisory committee.

The committee is paying an informal visit to the Naval Academy to observe classes as well as attend the Navy-Columbia football game.

After the classroom visits, the committee, with high ranking naval officers, will attend the pre-game mess at Bancroft Hall.

WARL Asks Probe of Game Broadcasts

By the United Press

Radio station WARL of Arlington yesterday asked the Justice Department to investigate alleged "monopolistic and restrictive broadcast practices of the major and minor baseball leagues."

And if the evidence warrants, WARL asked the department to "take appropriate action under the antitrust laws." The department promised an "immediate study."

The charges were set forth in a letter to Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett by Frank U. Fletcher, counsel for the independent station.

"The practice complained of," Fletcher wrote, "is that of restricting the opportunity of radio stations to broadcast descriptions of baseball games played by competitive leagues.

"As an illustration, station WARL wanted to broadcast over its facilities (which serve the D. C. metropolitan area) a description of the games being played in New York City by teams who are members of the National Baseball League (i.e. the 'Dodgers' and the 'Giants.'

Frick's Reply to WARL

"Ford Frick, president of the National League, advised WARL that the National League would have no objection to such broadcasts, provided Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, did not have any objection.

"It is, of course, well known that the Senators are in the American League. Upon request for his consent, Mr. Griffith flatly refused to give his consent to any such broadcasts by station WARL.

"The reasons given for such refusal were (1) that such broadcasts might make less valuable the sale of the broadcast rights to the Senators games, and (2) that there was an agreement among the leagues 'not to invade each other's territory'.

"Other sources have led WARL to believe that this 'agreement' is formalized into a written understanding. Whether this latter statement be true, or not, it is obvious from the illustration above that monopolistic and restrictive broadcast practices are being carried out.

Status of Minor Leaguers

"WARL has no personal knowledge, but is advised that the same restrictive practice is followed where a town, not having a major league team, does have a minor league team. Here, if a local radio station desired to broadcast a major league game, it would not be permitted to do so unless the minor league team gave its consent. We are informed that instances have occurred which prevented the broadcast of the major league teams.

"Station WARL strongly believes that the major league baseball games belong to the American public, and that such stations, or advertisers, who are willing to pay a negotiated price for the privilege of broadcasting such games should not be deprived of such opportunity by virtue of a monopolistic agreement designed solely to hold up the price of the broadcast rights to a game in an entirely different league."

Southbound Horse Makes Richmond Do Turnabouts

John Sweat, 68-year-old South Carolina farmer, who is riding a 9-year-old dappled gray mare he bought in Baltimore to a farm near Charleston, S. C., threw officers in a dither when:

He tied up traffic at several congested Broad st. spots. He said she wasn't stolen and besides he wasn't trying to sell her.

Police again were called because a horse was tied to a "no parking" sign in midtown Richmond.

This time the officer found Sweat blocks away asleep on a sidewalk, took him to the horse and said, "Please go south."

Methodist Parley Demands Action To Prevent War

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 3 (AP).—The Methodist World Ecumenical Conference called Thursday for action to prevent another catastrophe "more terrible than the horrors of the two world wars."

It also struck out at race discrimination, moral deterioration and freedom-trampling government.

The concluding message to world Methodism issued at the close of a nine-day conference of church leaders from all parts of the world, declared that in industrial disputes the minister "is under obligation, a divine imperative which he cannot escape, to demand that justice be done."

Declaring the conference was compelled to face problems of state and government, the report took no position on the form the state should take. But it asserted, "we cannot tolerate any governmental form which tramples on the freedom of the individual, reduces man to the level of a mere instrument of the state."

3 Babies Deaths Laid to Injections

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 3 (AP).—Three babies died in the maternity ward of St. Francis Hospital as the result of medicine which Deputy Coroner C. Everett Kelley said tonight he believed had been injected by mistake by an attendant.

Kelley said he was satisfied there was no criminal intent.

W. L. Yaeger, Accountant, Is Dead at 82

William Leonard Yaeger, 82, certified public accountant, died unexpectedly at his residence, 3221 Garfield st. nw., yesterday.

Mr. Yaeger, who was the oldest practicing certified public accountant in Washington at the time of his death, was born in Mauch Chunk, Pa. He was the son of the late Leonard Yaeger, a native of Niederhausen, Germany, and Katherine Esser Yaeger.

He came to Washington in 1901 to enter the brick business and soon after opened his own public accounting office. He was a trustee of the Smithsonian Institution and had been treasurer of the Fussell-Young Ice Cream Co. for 30 years.

Mr. Yaeger is survived by two daughters, Miss Dorothy Yaeger and Miss Mildred Yaeger, both of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at the home on Monday at 11 a. m. with interment in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Victor Rites Set Today

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 4 p. m. in Memorial Methodist Church for former Mayor John Victor, 80, for more than a half century a leading Lynchburg banker, who died early today at his home in Lynchburg.

Mr. Victor, named for a paternal grandfather who was instrumental in establishing Lynchburg's first waterworks in the early 1800s, was similarly active a century later in establishing a new and improved water system for the city while serving in the common council.

He started his career as an office boy for a commercial firm, went to Peoples Bank in 1890 as a bookkeeper, and over a period of 50 years served as teller, assistant cashier, cashier, and finally president of the concern, before his retirement at his own request in 1944. He was succeeded by Scott Nesbit as president of the bank, becoming the institution's board chairman.

He was a steward in Memorial Methodist Church, of which he was a charter member, served as chairman of the church board, and also from 1912 to 1934 as treasurer of the Virginia Methodist Conference.

His wife, the former Fannie W. Mahood, died a few years ago.

He is survived by a brother, H. M. Victor, of Charlotte, N. C., and two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Goode and Mrs. J. R. Millner, both of Lynchburg.

Mrs. Mary Wilson Reid

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—One of Norfolk's foremost patrons of the fine arts and a staunch advocate of civic beautification, Mrs. Mary Wilson Chamberlains Reid, widow of Fergus Reid, cotton merchant, died at her residence here today.

Funeral services will be conducted at Christ and St. Luke's Episcopal Church Sunday at 2:30 p. m., with interment in Elmwood cemetery.

Planes Ready for Blessed Event

New York, Oct. 3 (U.P.).—Postwar aviation is prepared today for anything—even for the babies who are going to be born in the air.

Not only are the ocean planes equipped with bars, convertible dining rooms and observation room, but for adventury expectant mothers who must travel! They have hospital equipment and practical nurses who know just how babies are born.

Ever since a baby was born aboard a South American plane and there was only a very green male steward aboard to assist the mother, the airlines have been seeing to it that they would not be caught unprepared again.

"That," said an Air France spokesman. "Left all the airlines so red-faced they made it a point after that to train hostesses in obstetrics and child care."

After all, this is the atomic age. Air France doesn't anticipate aerial obstetrics becoming a vogue, but foresees the day when aerial births won't be unusual.

Outside of Paris, Air France maintains a school to train hostesses not only in child-care, but how to meet all emergencies, including obstetrical ones.

Mommas actual and impending have no troubles aboard transocean planes. Portable bassinets are provided; the chef sees to the formulas. The plane carries rattles and playthings, story books, checkers and movies.

Off With Those Long Curls

WE'VE been so preoccupied with the revolution in clothing that few of us realize that an equally startling upheaval has been taking place in hair-styling. A heavy mane of hair is as passe today as a knee-length skirt. Stealing into the fashion picture is a sleek, short cap-like coiffure.

This is not to say that every woman will be dashing out to crop her treasured locks this winter. But it is true that most of us will be adopting hair styles that tend to be smooth and restrained. Chic women will do away with coy finglets and exaggerated curls. And many, undoubtedly, will actually clip their hair.

Explain Cap Look

In Washington this weekend to consult with women on hair-restyling is Michel, stylist for a nationally known beauty firm. Michel will be at the local salon on Connecticut ave. through Saturday and will instruct technicians on his particular versions of the "Cap Look."

Michel believes short hair is here to stay for a while. "We must look at fashion with a fresh eye right now," he says. "The new clothes and hats make it imperative that the head be small, the hair short, the line sleek. Even if your hair is not short, it should give the impression of being so. Softness comes close to the face, to harmonize with the new one-sided cloches, the off-face berets, and hats with plump crowns."

Head Must Balance

We must learn to think in terms of balance and harmony, as it relates to the entire silhouette, according to Michel. The smaller, more delicate look of the head balances the full, longer skirts which are reminiscent of 1912.

"Just like your suit or dress, your hair must be cut to suit the face—truly a custom-made coiffure. There is an individual hair style that is best for every type. Even if you refuse to cut yours, it is possible to give it the line and appearance of the new short length."

However, Michel believes that nearly all women will eventually succumb to the short hairdo. He points out that even New York and Hollywood models and actresses who have steadfastly refused to shear their precious long tresses have now accepted the new fashion whole-heartedly.

"And besides," says Michel. "Short hair is so much more comfortable and easy to manage. It's bound to catch on."

This version of the new, short hairdo is advocated by Michel, stylist for a nationally known beauty firm, who is in Washington this weekend to instruct technicians at the local shop on Connecticut Avenue. During his stay he will also hold consultations on restyling with individual customers

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I mend a broken Indian idol, made of either plastic or ceramics?

E. S. B.

Use plastic glue or household cement. Both are clear and will not show when dried.

How can I obtain the "crackled parchment antique effect" on some odd pieces of furniture I have? Some pieces I have seen seem to have a heavy application of paint and others, a thin coating of paint. How is this done? Can an antique glaze be applied over the crackled paint?

M. M. T.

It's been rather hard to find a satisfactory answer to your question. At least one dealer here used to carry a set of paints made especially for giving this crackled effect. However, he no longer sells them, and I've been unable to locate any other dealer in town who does.

The set consisted of two kinds of paint. One was applied first; then before it thoroughly dried, the other was painted over it, and the crackled effect resulted. An antique finish could then be given by rubbing a mixture of burnt umber, turpentine, and varnish over the finish, and wiping it off before it thoroughly dried. A coat of clear varnish then had to be applied to seal in the antiquing.

If any reader knows a local paint company which has the materials for giving this crackled finish, I'd greatly appreciate your sending in the information for M. M. T.

When I was born, my family started International Sterling flatware for me in Trianon pattern. As this pattern has been discontinued, I cannot complete it. I wondered if any reader of your column who also has an incomplete set of this silver would like to take this off my hands?

M. M. N.

How about it, readers? Do you need some pieces in the Trianon pattern?

How can I remove stains from white rayon clothes made by a black slip which faded on them when they got mixed together in washing? All the clothes have a yellowish brown stain from the black dye. I tried lemon juice on the stains, but it did no good.

Since ordinary laundry bleach injures rayon fibers, the business of getting stains out of rayon is sometimes difficult. Hydrogen peroxide is a mild bleach that might help some in this case. A stronger one which won't hurt the fibers is sodium thiosulphite (photographers' hypo) which can be purchased at photographers' supply houses and sometimes in drug stores. It comes in crystal form. Dissolve 1 tablespoon of crystals in 2 measuring cups of water for a solution of correct strength for stain removal.

Helen Borgstrom To Marry Soon

Planned for mid-October is the wedding of Miss Helen Borgstrom and John Kent Lydecker, whose engagement has been announced by the former's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Parry Borgstrom of Washington. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Lydecker of Glen Ridge, N. J.

Miss Borgstrom is a graduate of Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., and of the University of North Carolina, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Lydecker was graduated from the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., and Wesleyan University and during the war was a pilot with the Fifteenth Air Force in Italy.

Not for the Lazy

Hollywood Lovelies Show How To Stretch for Wasp Waists

By Ida Jean Kain

The figure-fixers for today are patterned after Hollywood streamliners. The movie girls know full well that only the lucky can be lazy . . . and slim. Most of the girls in films have to work for a wasp waist, a spare midriff and callipygian hips . . . even as you and I.

To quickly get into the exercise mood, jump—for joy, for your figure. Here's the way Regan Callais, RKO movie dancer, does it. Make believe you're a jumping jack. Stand erect, feet slightly apart, hands firmly on your hips. Now jump up—high and higher. Come down with knees slightly bent and spring right up again. Try it. It is fun, and the best circulation rouser.

Easy Does It

Stand erect, feet apart, hands on hips with fingers pointed down, that is, down the thighs. Now begin slowly and slide the left hand toward left toe. . . . Slide! Don't cheat! Bend to the side, not toward the front. Keep heels on floor. You can just feel those waistline muscles give. Gently return to upright position, and feet still apart, hands on hips, fingers pointed down, slide right hand toward right toes. Don't bend the knees, center all movement through the waist and midriff. Repeat six times, alternating sides. Later increase to 12. Never hurry the exercise. Regan suggests turning your head to the side, too, stretching neck muscles.

Time to Fall Out

Now fall out . . . that is, unless you are up to a rugged exercise. This one gives a stiff workout.

Stand erect, right foot forward, both hands on floor. Bend body forward from the waist, grasping right ankle with both hands. Pull —and pull—head toward the floor, chest toward knee. Pull hard. Slowly straighten up. Repeat, pulling on the right ankle. That exercise is quite streamlining if you keep knees straight and pull hard. It is a favorite with ballet dancers for keeping supple and slim in the middle.

Adm. Tennant Gives Dinner Aboard 'Snipe'

Admiral Sir William Tennant, commander in chief of the America and West Indies Squadron, who has been visiting Washington for several days aboard HMS Snipe at anchor at the Washington Navy Yard, was host at dinner aboard ship last evening.

Earlier in the day he was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club given by Vice Admiral Forrest Sherman with Rear Admiral Thomas B. Inglis as cohost. Following the luncheon Admiral Tennant was entertained at a cocktail party given by the Naval Attache of the British Embassy, Capt. P. W. W. Wootten and Mrs. Wootten at their home on Porter st.

Naval Leaders Are Guests

Admiral Tennant's guests included Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations; Vice Admiral Dewitt C. Ramsey, Vice Admiral Sherman, Rear Admiral Inglis, Captain Thackeray, Capt. J. M. Villiers, commanding officer of HMS Snipe, and Lieut. Comdr. A. Gray, flag lieutenant to Admiral Tennant.

Among those invited to meet the visiting officer by Admiral Sherman were Admiral Sir Henry Moore, chairman of the British Joint Staff Mission; Rear Admiral P. W. B. Brooking, Capt. G. B. H. Fawkes, chief of staff to Admiral Tennant; Captain King and Captain Wootten.

The admiral's flagship Sheffield and the sloop Snipe have been on a summer cruise with other ships of the West Indies squadron. They left Bermuda late in July, visited Canada, Maine, Boston, New York and Newport, R. I., and tomorrow will continue down the coast, arriving October 31 in Bermuda.

At the United Nations Club last evening there were a number of officers of H. M. S. Snipe which docked at the Navy Yard on Wednesday. The club holds alternate Friday dinner dances from 9 to midnight.

Leander McCormick-Goodhart entertained the officers at a club dinner preceding the dance. Capt. Neill Phillips, chairman of the Friday dances, was among the guests. Also in the company were Capt. and Mrs. C. L. Freeman, Capt. and Mrs. George P. Hunter, Miss Meredith Howard, Mrs. Harold Coolidge, Capt. and Mrs. Robert L. Campbell and Capt. and Mrs. Wallis F. Petersen.

Commodore Ruiz Honored at Dinner

Commodore Frederico Ruiz, who is returning soon to Argentina to a post on the general staff of the Argentine air forces, and Senora de Ruiz, were guests of honor at a farewell dinner party given by Carlos Macchi Zubiaurre and Senora de Zubiaurre on Thursday evening at the Shoreham. Senor Zubiaurre is Financial Counselor of the Argentine Embassy.

Among the other guests were the Counselor of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Drago; Gen. and Senora Carlos von der Becke, Brig. and Senora Louis Garramendy, Col. and Senora Juan Lorio and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis.

C. & S. Bank Plans to Open Third Branch

By S. Oliver Goodman

Plans for a branch bank at Fourth st. and Rhode Island ave. ne., were announced yesterday by Thomas J. Groom, president of the Bank of Commerce & Savings.

Permit has been obtained from the Comptroller of Currency and the bank has purchased the property at 410 Rhode Island ave. The location is in an industrial area and near the Fifth st. and Florida ave. market section, as well as a wide residential population.

President Groom said that when the new building is constructed it will be air conditioned and also equipped with the latest banking facilities. He also said the ground purchased is large enough to provide auto parking facilities.

Main office of the Bank of Commerce & Savings is at Seventh and E sts. nw., and two branches are operated at North Capitol and H sts. and in the 6400 block of Georgia ave. The architectural firm of A. Hamilton Wilson, in process of drawing plans, said that the new structure in exterior appearance will be similar to that of the Georgia ave. building.

EXPORT MANAGER: Robert B. Kinkead, chairman of the export committee of Aircraft Industries Association, yesterday was appointed export manager of Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. For past six years Kinkead has been associated with Boeing Aircraft Co. in its Washington office. From 1940 to 1941, he served the Army Air Forces as chief of press relations in Washington. A graduate of University of Nebraska, he is a past president of the Aero Club of Washington and at one time was associated with United Air Lines in various sales and traffic capacities.

SHIPPERS ELECT: Samuel D. Schell, former executive director of the Maritime Commission, was elected president of the Propeller Club of Washington. Now vice president of the National Federation of American Shipping, Schell during the war was executive deputy administrator of the War Shipping Administration. Other officers chosen by the local club are Rear Admiral Merlin O'Neill of Coast Guard, vice president; Timothy J. Lyons, secretary, and Charles F. Kraft, treasurer. Elected to board of governors were Ira L. Ewers, Frank E. Hickey, Capt. W. N. Mansfield, U.S.N., and James J. Noland.

SALES SPURT: Washington department stores sales in week ended September 27 soared 31 per cent above the like 1946 period. Colder weather was believed a factor. For the four weeks ended September 27 local sales were 6 per cent heavier. Regionally, store sales were 24 per cent improved for the week and up 1 per cent for the four-week period. Figures were reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

ODD BOTS: Liquid savings by individuals amounted to 1.8 billion dollars in second quarter of 1947, considerably higher than 800 million saved in first quarter, SEC reports. The rate of saving, however, was "quite low" compared with last year . . . Roy C. Curley of Philadelphia has been appointed general passenger agent of Canadian National Railways in Washington . . . J. Howard Blake has resigned as director of market research of Glenn L. Martin Co. to form the Market Development Co. in Wellesley, Mass. . . . Briggs Manufacturing Co. to lay off about 3000 workers and curtail auto body output next week because of sheet steel shortage . . . For same reason Chrysler Corp. spokesman said final assembly operations in company's Plymouth division will be halted next and 1500 workers laid off . . . Ball and roller bearing sales rose to peacetime record average of more than 20 million dollars in first nine months this year.

EARNINGS: International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., in consolidated report for first half showed net loss of $3,109,870, compared with net loss of $1,230,-911 for like 1946 period. Other income reports yesterday included:

The Cartoon's Quiet

'The Vigilantes' Is Pure Bedlam

By Richard L. Coe

OFTEN OVERLOOKED in western movies is their overwhelming use of noise. From the soundtrack of "The Vigilantes Return," at the Columbia, pours:

Fists cracking, chairs crunching, glass shattering, wheels squeaking, violins seething, wood ripping, boots clumping, stagecoaches crashing, bullets whirring, singers shouting, drums beating, revolvers clicking, crowds babbling, comics grunting, card-players shuffling, horses whinnying, bones breaking, doors creaking, accents twanging, skirts swishing, coins tinkling, trumpets blaring, shots verberating, wind whistling, rocks chipping, hooves stomping, pulses beating—all this and a massive orchestra scraping, sawing, blaring and tootling.

"The Vigilantes Return" accompanies all this with the traditional strife between law 'n' order. Jon Hall is in the saddle as a right guy in disguise. Margaret Lindsay batters her way through the squalid wrong side of town to show that 'neath her shimmering bosom beats a heart of gold. Paula Drew depicts one of those frivolously educated girls who instinctively gives her love to the wrong man.

The picture is in Cinecolor, a more restful technique of picking up nature's hues than you know what, though it also manages to tint Andy Devine's features with the same shade of green it bestows on the landscape.

All in all, "The Vigilantes Return" will give you few surprises, but westerns aren't made to give surprises.

This week the Columbia screen also offers four of Metro's Academy Award cartoon winners: "The Shootin' of Dan McGee," "Cat Concerto," "Mouse Trouble" and—of all things—"Quiet, Please."

"THE VIGILANTES RETURN." Universal—International release produced by Howard Welsch. Directed by Ray Taylor. Screenplay by Roy Chanslor. Song by Jack Brooks and Milton Schwarzwald. At the Columbia.

"THE ADVENTURESS" goes into its second week at the Hippodrome today, with Deborah Kerr and Trevor Howard in the top roles. It's a light-hearted British spy yarn about an Irish lass who wants to help the Nazis lick Britain but who gets bogged down by a number of things.

CARNEGIE HALL, that agglomeration of Artur Rubinstein, Lily Pons, Vaughn Monroe; memorable music and an absurd plot begins its neighborhood circuit today at the Apex and Naylor theaters. It stays at both houses through Monday.

MONDAY evening, by the way, brings the first showing of "The Power Behind the Nation." This is the film being sponsored by the Motion Picture Association of America (the Eric Johnston Office), which depicts how our natural resources have built the strength of the United States. It's being presented as part of the activities of the American Public Relations Association Convention. The showing will be in the National Archives Auditorium, Pennsylvania ave. at 8th st., at 6:15 p. m. The public is invited.

TODAY'S are the final two performances of "Lady Windermere's Fan" at the National. From here the play goes to Baltimore and, some 40 weeks later, winds up its travels in Montreal.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe tackles the long and the short of Hollywood's battle of the hemline.

A Kid and a Colt Stand Out In 'Wholesome' Film at Met

This is the contribution of a new firm, Eagle-Lion, to the still current cycle set off by "Smokey" a year ago. As in all cycles, this horse story can't begin to measure up to the first entry, Robert Bassler's superb handling of the Will James yarn.

Two important players are first-rate, "Red" himself, a beautiful whiz of a horse, and Ted Donaldson, a youngster whose appeal lacks the self-conscious aplomb of most juvenile actors.

The screenplay devised by Robert E. Kent and Crane Wilbur, however, is strictly from hunger, with contrived situations, dragged-in characters and corny lines. Just because the boys were writing a simple story is no reason for them to have presumed simple-mindedness was in order.

Ted plays Jane Darwell's grandson. He found a little red colt shortly after a bear had killed its mother and nursed it into a fine animal. Because his grandmother is about to loose her ranch, Ted tries to interest a rich racing man in his "Red."

For purposes of the plot a pretty female horse trainer is introduced, played by Noreen Nash, a lass who doesn't seem to know a forelock from a stopwatch. Comedy is injected with Willie Best riding a swift black beauty and America's first inhabitants are given a bow via a strapping young Indian brave who was a wartime bombardier.

"Big Red," to give him his right name, performs heroically, especially in a bear fight, and looks like a real winner in the Cinecolor treatment. The settings around the Mount Shasta region are exactly what they should be. But it's a shame the script-writers couldn't have worked harder to get away from the word and character cliches they achieved.

For all that, "The Red Stallion" tries only to be a simple, innocent story and that is exactly what it is.

"THE RED STALLION." Eagle-Lion release produced by Ben Stoloff for Bryan Foy. Screenplay by Robert E. Kent and Crane Wilbur. Cinecolor by Gar Gilbert. At the Metropolitan Theater.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Clark May Prosecute Colleagues' Ex-Firms

By Drew Pearson

The former Wall Street firms of certain Cabinet members have put one of their Cabinet colleagues—Attorney General Tom Clark—very much on the spot.

Clark

Clark has had dumped into his lap the charges that Dillon, Read & Company plus Harriman, Ripley violated the anti-trust laws in regard to the sales of 25 million dollars preferred stock being issued by the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co.

This charge isn't going to bring happiness to certain gentlemen in and on the edge of the Truman Cabinet—namely Secretary of National Defense Forrestal, former head of Dillon, Read; Secretary of Commerce Harriman, who founded Harriman, Ripley; and Undersecretary of State Lovett, former senior partner of the Harriman firm. Though all three have divorced themselves from their Wall Street firms, there is no doubt in the minds of Washington officialdom that the partners they left behind would give serious consideration to any suggestions made by them.

For some months the Justice Department has been holding a grand jury investigation of Wall Street investment houses, including Dillon, Read. In fact, just before Wendell Berge resigned as Assistant Attorney General in charge of the anti-trust division, he was all set to prosecute. But six months have dragged by and for some mysterious reason nothing has happened. John Sonnett, new head of the anti-trust division and former aid to Forrestal, has not prosecuted.

The whole question is now resting uneasily on the doorstep of overworked Attorney General Tom Clark as to whether he will prosecute the former banking firms of his Cabinet colleagues.

Making Democracy Live—Stanley Bojens, a former GI of San Diego, has developed a peace program called "Peace by Postage," a sort of "personalized foreign policy." Plan consists of sending personal parcels to foreign countries who befriended GI's during the war. "If veterans themselves can win individual friends," says Bojens, "it will be difficult for governments to go to war." . . . Harold Hermanson has inspired the alumni of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Senior High School in the suburbs of the Nation's Capital to give the children of war dead as good an education as the children of fathers who lived. When Hermanson saw some of his buddies killed, he determined to do something for their children. With the help of many patriotic alumni of his old school, Hermanson, a bachelor, has made good that promise.

Not Making Democracy Live—The British government is now trading 20,000 Yugoslavs, who had fled to the British zone of Austria, to Tito in return for British copper and gold mines in southern Yugoslavia seized during the war. Their return in some cases means death . . . Some real estate dealers are brazenly flouting the law requiring them to give veterans preference in renting homes. Though this is required by law, the Republican Congress carefully cut from 400 to 15 the Government enforcement officers supposed to enforce the law. Result: Real estate dealers know they can get away with flouting the veterans . . . Right under the nose of the Justice Department in Washington, the real estate boys have been accepting non-veterans on waiting lists even before new homes and apartments were completed. The law clearly stipulates that non-veterans shall not be able to rent until veterans have had a 30-day priority.

In Eisenhower's State

Eastern Republicans aren't happy over the anti-Negro move in Topeka, Kans., led by Mayor Frank Warren . . . Democratic Former Governor Harry Woodring, also former Secretary of War, was on the side of the young Negro law student, Phillip Burton, who challenged city officials. Burton's mother used to work as a maid for the Woodring family . . . Meanwhile, Alf Landon, former candidate for the Presidency, was strangely silent . . . Eastern Republicans have set their hopes on winning a large block of colored voters away from the Democrats. But the Negro press is already playing up the "Topeka incident" and the Republicans' part in it.

McCue Assails Va. Localities School Policy

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—A number of Virginia localities are not carrying their fair share of the school teacher salary burden, Delegate E. O. McCue of Charlottesville declared here today.

Speaking before 900 teachers, principals and superintendents of District J, Virginia Education Association, McCue, who is chairman of the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council, said this was especially true in view of the large recent State appropriations and the substantial disbursements by the State of other revenues.

The school officials from Charlottesville and an eight-county surrounding area also heard Prof. Tipton R. Snavely of the University of Virginia economics faculty and a member of the Moses School Study Commission, who spoke on possible new sources of taxation in Virginia.

Delegate McCue, who is chairman of a special legislative committee studying ways and means of improving the educational system in Virginia, told the District J members he was delighted, however, to see a number of the counties of Virginia move forward during the past year in their participation in teacher salary costs.

The delegates were told by Professor Snavely that "we are facing the time when we will have to dig deeper into the barrel of taxation in Virginia for additional appropriations." He pointed out that the present State surplus fund of about $12,500,000 would not be sufficient for a recurring appropriations for improving public education.

Summarizing unofficial results of public hearings conducted jointly by the Moses and McCue groups Snavely said that the public seems unanimously ready to bear the cost of an improved education program, but there was little agreement on the means for securing the funds.

Jobless Pay Audit Shows Surplus Drop

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—An audit of the accounts and records of the Unemployment Compensation Commission showing a decrease of $4,015,985 in excess of the income over expenditures for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1946, compared with 1945 was sent to the Governor's office today by State Auditor J. Gordon Bennett.

Expenditures for the period covered by the audit amounted to $15,813,467 and were $5,673,572 less than income which totaled $21,487,040.

For the same period in 1945, total income reached $10,576,868 and was $9,689,557 more than expenditures. The decrease in income over expenditures was attributed by the auditor mainly to a substantial increase in benefit payments to unemployed workers.

The balance in the funds available to the commission for the administration of the unemployment program on June 30, 1946, totaled $67,986,112, the auditor stated. Of this amount, he said, $67,655,294 was on deposit with the United States Treasurer and subject to requisition as needed by the commission for unemployment compensation pay.

Three other audits were sent to the Governor today. They covered the accounts and records of Radford College, J. L. Landram, Hanover County trial justice, and the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court of Roanoke.

In all cases, full accounting had been made of funds handled.

35 Future Homemaker Groups to Meet Today

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—Representatives from 35 groups of Maryland high school Future Homemakers of America will assemble tomorrow at the State House for their annual meeting.

The homemakers are high school students who specialize in home economics and plan to make careers in the field.

Advisers to attend include M. Gladys Dickerson, Greenbelt High School home economics teacher and Elizabeth Amery, State supervisor af Home Economics of the Department of Education.

Betty Brandenburg of Damascus High School is the president of the group and Maxine Green of Frederick High is suated for election to the post.

Va. Senator Says Budget Tops Revenue

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Requests received by Governor Tuck's advisory commission on the budget are 60 per cent in excess of present appropriations, or almost 34 million dollars more than the State's present revenues, and Virginia's chances of working out a satisfactory plan to meet the necessary portion of these demands lies primarily in the work of approximately 20 committees which are working to solve the problem.

This statement was made at the opening session of the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Virginia Manufacturers Association today by State Senator John S. Battle, Charlottesville, who is a member of the budget commission.

Although the State's total income for the January 1 through June 30 period of 1947 was $59,623,105, and was only $21,500,000 for the same period of 1936, "so-called experts tell us that we may anticipate a setting back to around the 35 or 40-million-dollar level within a few years," Senator Battle warned.

Borrowing funds or drawing upon the State's surplus will not solve the problem, declared the senator, adding, "the man who uses his savings or the proceeds of a loan to raise his living conditions and then attempts to maintain that standard can only end in bankruptcy."

In conclusion, Senator Battle told the manufacturers that it is their duty to "apply hte same knowledge and ability you have developed in your own successful business affairs in behalf of the State's business, which is very definitely the responsibility of all of us."

5 Anne Arundel Districts May Have Taxes Cut

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—A preliminary study of Anne Arundel County tax rates presented to the county commissioners today shows the possibility of reducing taxes in five districts and increasing them in three.

The rates are subject to change by the Board of Commissioners, but the tentative budget carries rate reductions for the first, second, third, fourth and fifth districts and increases in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

Comparative rates by districts for 1946 and 1947 are: First District, $1.96 for 1948 and $2.15 for 1947; Second, $2.04 and $2.14; Third, $1.93 and $2.28; Fourth, $2.16 and $2.29; Fifth, $2.19 and $2.17; Sixth, $1.57 and $1.60; Seventh, $2.60 and $2.15, and Eighth, $2.47 and $2.37.

Month's Tax Take Is $1,920,231

Baltimore, Oct. 3 (AP).—The State comoptroller's office reported today receipts from Maryland's new sales tax were $1,920,231 in August.

Collections in July, the levy's first month of operation, were $1,683,000.

State Comptroller James J. Lacy has estimated the State may realize as much as $25 million dollars from the tax in its first year.

When the General Assembly enacted it last March, administration leaders estimated it would bring in about $18,600,000.

Sales Tax Referendum To Be Argued Oct. 15

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—Arguments over whether Maryland must present its two per cent retail sales tax to the voters for approval will be aired in Anne Arundel County Court October 15.

Judge William J. McWilliams set that date after Attorney General Hall Hammond filed a demurrer to a petition for writ that would require to hold a referendum on the sales tax at the Uovember, 1948, general election.

Perfect Score by Boy of 16 Takes Frederick Fair Award

Frederick, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—The only perfect score ever recorded in a State-wide Future Farmers of America contest won first-place honors in beef cattle judging today for John Hugh-Sheckiles, 16-year-old Prince Frederick high school student. He totaled 400 points.

Other officers are: James Walter, Bel Air, and William Dalley, Hagerstown, vice presidents; David Patrick, Lisbon, secretary; Bob Holter, Middlestown, treasurer; and Ed Mullinix, Clarksville, reporter.

Thomas Scarborough, Street, who was awarded $100 for being "star Maryland farmer of 1947," was elected to the executive committee, with Robert Remsburg, Frederick, and Leo Mullendore, Boonsboro.

Beef cattle judging, with 39 teams entered—Thurmont, first; Woodland Way, second, and Guarks, third; individuals, Hugh-Scheckiles, first; Donald Frush, Clear Spring, second, and Eugene Rice, Thurmont, third.

Dairy cattle judging, with 42 teams entered—Easton, first; Jarrettsville, second; Walkersville, third; individuals, Dary Guilford, Hughesville, first; Jim Dorn, Parrettsville, second, and Jim Councell, Easton, third.

Potato judging, with 13 teams—Oldtown, first; Emmitsburg, second, and East New Market, third; individuals, William Kayman, East ket, first; Meredith Adams, Jarrettsville, second, and David Ryan, Oldtown, third.

Paper Won't Scan Files in O'Conor Probe

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—The Hagerstown Daily Mail joined the Kent County News, an Eastern Shore weekly, today in declining to search its files to obtain information sought by United States Senate investigators.

Lik the Chestertown publication, the Mail told the investigators they could search the files at their convenience.

Information sought dealt with the amount of space contracted for in the two publications in connection with the 1946 senatorial campaign of former Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor. The Senate committee is investigating charges of election irregularities brought against O'Conor by his Republican rival, D. John Markey.

Francis T. Kelly, chief investigator for the committee, asked the Mail and the News for data on all political advertising and space donations for and by the Demacrats in the O'Conor campaign.

Editor William B. Usilton 3d of the News replied that the paper's files were open if the investigators wanted to do their own searching, and added, "We have other things to do besides squandering valuable time looking up information for Government agencies."

"If you want the information, you or one of your hired hands can come and dig it out."

Garvin Hager, editor of the Mail, wrote Kelly that searching the files would require too much time, but that "our files are open to your investigators."

Crash Boats Sought for Md. Oyster Patrol

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 3 (AP).—John E. Clark, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission, disclosed today the State is negotiating with the U. S. Maritime Commission for lease or purchase of crash and picket boats for use in enforcing oyster laws.

Clark said negotiations were reopened after earlier attempts at acquiring such fast craft had failed.

The crash boats the State is trying to obtain make up to 30 knots an hour, which would probably enable them to overtake the speediest dredge boats operating illegally on the Potomac River or elsewhere in State waters.

Clark said, "It is expected that the new craft will require less personnel than is at present employed."

Most of the State enforcement boats have three-man crews and some have been in service more than 20 years. Several have top speeds of only six knots per hour.

William H. Labrot of Annapolis, who served with the Navy during the war, is assisting in procurement negotiations, Clark said.

The commission is in the market also for a new amphibious plane to supplement the work of the State's only enforcement plane in use.

3 Get Prison Terms In Automobile Thefts

Baltimore, Oct. 3 (AP).—Three members of a stolen-car ring which the Government charged operated between Baltimore and South Carolina received prison sentences in Federal Court today.

All of the defendants, who pleaded guilty to car thefts and transporting stolen property, were Baltimoreans.

Isadore Goodman, 34, and Emanuel Hoffman, 37, received a sentence of four years and nine months each. Vincent Wunk was sentenced to one year and a day.

The Government said the ring—a fourth man was sentenced to prison in the same case some time ago—handled automobiles that were stolen in Baltimore for sale in South Carolina.

Staples, Apperson Transfer to New Posts in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Resignations of Attorney General A. P. Staples, and Harvey D. Apperson, a member of the State Corporation Commission, were submitted to Governor Tuck today, to become effective Sunday.

Judge Apperson will replace Staples in the Attorney General's office, and Staples goes to the Supreme Court, succeeding Justice George L. Browning, who died recently. Both appointments were made by the Governor in August.

Judge Apperson, who will be followed on the corporation commission by Marshall King, mayor of Fredericksburg, today received a watch from his associates.

A string of pearls was given to Mrs. Pearl K. Bain, Judge Apperson's secretary, who will go with him to the attorney general's office.

Anderson E. Shumate

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 3 (AP).—Anderson E. Shumate, 68, Pearisburg resident and one of the best known men in Giles County, died today in University of Virginia Hospital here of heart failure.

A hospital spokesman said Shumate was admitted to the hospital September 22 suffering with heart trouble. The body was removed to Pearisburg.

It is brick and frame, 6 large rooms and 2 complete tile baths; 3 large bedrooms, 2 and bath on 1st floor; 2 and bath on 2nd; oil heat, recessed radiators, built-in, attached garage, full basement with maid's room; built-in bookcases; knotty pine paneling in dining room. There are 2 open fireplaces, 1 in the kitchen and 1 in the living room; a screened side rear porch overlooking beautiful wooded grounds of ¼-acre which is impossible to adequately describe. And the whole is being offered at a price which, in our expert opinion, offers more for the money than anything else in this section. The price is $21,000. Substantial cash payment is required, and it is to be shown only on a definite appointment in advance through the offices of

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

We Still Need Tokens for Children's Hospital

An unidentified female called the other day to ask whether "Children's Hospital can still use streetcar tokens and other contributions."

Golly, yes. The building fund is still almost $25,000 short and I'm sure we're not going to stop that close to our goal.

Rear Admiral C. R. Train, acting chairman of the hospital, tells me that a recent count revealed that District Liners had sent in 35,133 tokens and more than $900 in cash.

And every mail brings in more. Yesterday, for example, I got some tokens from Harriet K. Finn of 216 Maryland ave. ne. Mrs. Finn wrote:

The buck was enclosed. And we also got $6 from "Mrs. Grady," plus 46 tokens from several anonymous donors.

LAST CALL

Deadline for name suggestions for our Weatherbird is midnight tomorrow. The address is: Weatherbird, The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington, 4, D. C.

0+3

NIGHT SCHOOL

B. H. of 1455 Massachusetts ave. nw. wants to know where a veteran can finish high school at night.

The answer is that there are six night high schools in the District: Central, McKinley, Roosevelt, Chamberlain, Bell Vocational, and the Webster Americanization School.

The first four offer the usual academic curriculum, with the exception that Roosevelt has some English, math, and history courses which are geared to twice the normal speed.

Anybody who is interested in additional information about night schools can get it by calling National 6000, and asking for Charles C. Knight.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND

Our plea that publicity chairmen omit references to raffles, bingo parties, etc., brings an interesting note from Frieda A. Boyce of 2151 California st. nw.

It's written across the face of a printed notice that the Old Dominion Kennel Club will hold its All Breed Sanction Match today at Beech Tree Farm, Falls Church, Va. Mrs. Boyce writes:

"We have no ax to grind, no beneficiary. Just trying to interest the public in pure bred dogs.

Stassen Parries One at Ball Game

NEW YORK—Harold Stassen, who has been drawing big crowds in his speaking engagements throughout the country, faced a crowd of 73,000 people Tuesday. But he was there—at Yankee Stadium—only as a ball fan. A reporter who recognized Stassen asked him bluntly: "Which team are you rooting for, the Yanks or the Dodgers?" . . . "In view of my present position in American politics," Stassen replied, "that's like asking 'Which religion do you think is better?"

FACT: Prime Minister Clement Attlee listened to a speech by Winston Churchill in the House of Commons, and said: "The Honorable Gentleman from Woodford must face the fact that he no longer is head of the Government" . . . "I AM facing the fact," said Churchill, "—such as it is."

GAME: Laura Z. Hobson, author of "Gentleman's Agreement," has a weekly poker session at her home with a group of friends. When last week's game ended, and the other players said goodnight to her, Mrs. Hobson—ever the hostess—said: "It was a nice game, even though I won" . . . During the game, when there was a question about the rules, the author of "Gentleman's Agreement" suggested that the players consult her copy of Hoyle's. "Laura," said Alan Green, "that's the first time in eight months that I've heard you acknowledge the existence of another book."

TERMS: Although "Gentleman's Agreement" has been on the best-seller list for almost a year, five of England's leading book publishers refused to publish a British edition. Their explanation was that there is no anti-Semitism in England . . . The book has been translated into several languages. In all the contracts for these foreign editions, the author insisted on a stipulation that the book be published intact, and that none of the portions which express her anti-Communist and anti-Zionist stands be deleted.

TRIUMPH: Edwin Pauley, jr., won the tennis championship of the New Mexico Military Academy, and received a silver cup for this feat. He brought it home to show to his father, and explained that the appropriate engraving would be made when he returned to the academy. "I'll play you for the championship," suggested Edwin Pauley, sr. They agreed—one set, because the senior Pauley's wind couldn't withstand a longer match against the youngster. The senior Pauley, who recently became assistant to the Secretary of War, won the match, 14-12, and now may consider himself the tennis champion of New Mexico Military Academy.

CHATTER: Bernard Baruch is writing a comment on Jimmy Byrnes' forthcoming book. Baruch will reveal that while the President and the Secretary of State supported his atomic energy plan, it was opposed by the career men in the State Department.

Billy Rose's friends, puzzled at his taking on a column, a daily radio show, magazine pieces, etc., in addition to his nightclub and theater ventures, say that at last they've discovered why he's doing all this: "Rose has found a way How to Take It With Him." . . .

Houghton, Mifflin, the Boston book-publishing firm, will open a New York office. Mrs. Ray Everett will be in charge of it . . . Ralph Kiner and Johnny Mize, who tied for the home-run championship, were at Toots Shor's together last night . . . Harry Karl, who sponsors Joan Davis' broadcasts on the West Coast, will switch his sponsorship to Marie McDonald, his bride.

WILL IT BE O.K. WITH YOUR COMPANY IF THE HOSTESS FROM THE CRIPPLED SHIP COMES WITH US TO TAKE CARE OF THE PASSENGERS?
GUESS SO. IT'S HER JOB TO STAY WITH 'EM. THE SHIP THAT WILL PICK UP THE REST WILL HAVE ITS OWN HOSTESS ABOARD.
THE STUFF SHE PROMISED THE PASSENGERS — BLANKETS FOR SEAT CUSHIONS AND THE GALLEY EQUIPMENT FROM OUR CRIPPLED KITE ARE BEING LOADED ABOARD YOUR PLANE NOW, BUT YOU'LL STILL NEED HER TO TAKE CARE OF THE CUSTOMERS.
GOLLY, YES! SHE'S ONE RESOURCEFUL GAL. IF SHE HADN'T STOPPED THEIR BEEFING BY MAKING MY SHIP COMFORTABLE, THEY'D HAVE BALKED AND I'D BE MINUS A PAY LOAD.
DON'T LET ME INTERRUPT THIS STORM OF APPLAUSE FOR THE BABE WITH THE BRIGHT IDEAS, BUT I'VE GOT ONE QUESTION — WHO THOUGHT OF THIS CHARTER PAY LOAD IN THE FIRST PLACE, ANYHOW?

WAHOO AND STEVE ROPER

THIS BUSINESS MAKES ABOUT AS MUCH SENSE AS A PAGE OF PIG-LATIN! WHY WOULD A SHARP SISTER LIKE JEZEBEL JONES HAVE THE SQUID PRINT FIFTY COPIES OF A GOONY NEWSPAPER FOR HER?
JEZEBEL JONES WINS BEAUTY CONTEST
WHY WOULD SHE SAY SHE MIGHT NEED MORE? WHY WOULD SHE CUT HUNKS OUT OF THEM AND THROW THEM OVERBOARD? WHY DID--- HOLD EVERYTHING! EITHER I'VE GONE OFF MY ONION, OR AT LAST I'M GETTING SOMETHING ON THE SHELL!

DIXIE DUGAN

OH, KEN— YOU'VE FURNISHED IT DIVINELY! I WOULDN'T WANT TO CHANGE A THING—IT HAS ALMOST A WOMAN'S TOUCH—
???
MY WIFE—TAKEN A FEW MONTHS BEFORE SHE WAS KILLED— SORRY— I FORGOT TO REMOVE IT—

DONALD DUCK

HEY, HOLD THAT CHOCOLATE..... I THINK I'LL HAVE STRAWBERRY!
ICE CREAM CONES CHOCOLATE STRAWBERRY VANILLA BANANA
WAIT! MAKE IT VANILLA! OOOPS--HOLD IT... BANANA'S ALWAYS GOOD...HMM—
OKAY, JUST LET ME KNOW WHEN Y' MAKE UP YOUR MIND, SHORTY!
HEY, I GOT IT NOW!

IDEAS AT WORK
I THOUGHT IT WOULD BE SO NICE TO HAVE A RECREATION ROOM IN THE BASEMENT
CHEER UP! WE CAN STILL GO DOWN TO THE DRUG STORE!

OZARK IKE

BUGS
TH' SERIES RIDES ON EVERY PITCH!
HA!...GOT HIM WITH TH' FIRST PITCH!... AN EASY FLY TO OZARK IKE!
AH GOT IT... AH GOT IT... AH...
DON'T FORGET THE BALL, OZARK!!!

MARK TRAIL

ARE YOU FROM DUCKS UNLIMITED?
ED DODD
..AND THE NEXT ONE OF YOU DUCKS UNLIMITED MEN THAT COMES HERE WILL BE SHOT ...ON SIGHT!!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

THIS ROPE LADDER DIDN'T BREAK... SOME MIGHTY FINE SHOOTING CLIPPED IT!
